U.S. Marshals Called Errand Boys For Judges

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The only dirty shirts Marshal Matt Dillon ever delivered were on the backs of ornery yahoos headed for the Dodge City hoosegow. Unlike television's "Gunsmoke" hero, some of today's U.S. marshals are delivering dirty shirts to the laundry at the order of federal judges, according to congressional auditors. That's not all. Some marshals are washing judges' cars, ferrying them to the gas station for fill-ups and acting as chauffeurs, the auditors reported. On one occasion, judges used marshals as servants at a party.

It's against federal regulations for marshals, who are sworn law enforcement officers, to perform personal services for judges. But officials say it's probably not against the law. The General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, described the practice in a report on the effectiveness of the U.S. Marshals Service.

In five judicial districts, the report said, deputy marshals "were used to some extent to perform such duties as washing judges' cars, chauffeuring judges and picking up laundry." Thomas Jurkiewicz, the GAO supervisory management auditor who worked on the report, said the locations involved are Washington, the northern district of Illinois (Chicago), the northern district of Florida (Pensacola and Tallahassee), the southern district of Mississippi (Biloxi, Jackson and Gulfport) and the western district of Kentucky (Louisville, Lexington and Owensboro).

"I have never heard of any judge having a marshal wash his car or take care of his laundry," said Chief U.S. District Judge James B. Parsons of Chicago. "If that's going on I don't know anything about it," declared Chief Judge Dan M. Russell of the Mississippi district. "That's ridiculous."

Parsons said deputy marshals are used to drive senior judges, "who have difficulty getting about," from the train station to the courthouse. Senior judges have retired from active status but handle some cases on a part-time basis. The Florida district's two judges were out of the state and couldn't be reached for comment, said an office secretary. There was no answer at the office of Chief Judge Rhodes Bratcher in Louisville.

In Washington, Chief Judge William B. Jones was on vacation. The acting chief judge, Joseph C. Waddy, also was out of town, but his law clerk said that "the judge has a longstanding policy of never discussing matters with the press."

The GAO found that deputy marshals were regularly performing personal services in the five districts, Jurkiewicz said. The practice cropped up infrequently in other districts, he added. "There were cases where the judge gives the marshal the laundry and says 'take it to the cleaners and get the ticket and then pick it up when it's ready,'" he reported.

"Some were told to take the car to the gas station to get the tank filled. In one case, marshals were used to butter a party," he said. Jurkiewicz said the party incident was in Chicago. "I've never heard of that," retorted Judge Parsons. "Butler a party? We don't do that in the Midwest anyway."

A spokeswoman for the U.S. Marshals Service said agency officials asked the GAO for names of those involved and further details. The GAO refused, she said, "so we couldn't investigate."

This type of thing is in violation of Marshals Service regulations. But to our knowledge, no one is doing it. As far as headquarters is concerned, this is not happening," she said.

The GAO report said the findings were based on inquiries to officials in 29 judicial districts. Carl Imley, general counsel of the Administrative Office of U.S. Courts, said it would be improper for a judge to use a marshal for personal chores. "We certainly don't tolerate that," he said. But he added that he knows of no federal law against it.

Some marshals "expressed a resentment at being required to do this type of work," Jurkiewicz said. "But when a judge asks you to do something, it's in essence a court order. The judges actually have the upper hand."

The marshals technically work for the Justice Department, but they are assigned to the 94 U.S. District Courts to protect judges, plan courthouse security, guard and transport prisoners and serve legal papers on those involved in criminal and civil cases. The GAO said many judges complained of inadequate security measures and recommended that the Marshals Service work with other agencies to tighten the safeguards.

Worst Appears Over In Legion Death Parade

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Health officials were optimistic today that the worst may be over in the explosive outbreak of "legionnaires disease." The source remains a mystery, but there have been no new cases in two days.

Swine flu and other influenza viruses have been all but ruled out as medical researchers continued round-the-clock efforts to identify the cause of the illness that has killed 23 persons.

Two persons who exhibited symptoms of the disease — fever, chills and lung congestion — died Thursday in southwestern Pennsylvania, but state health officials have not yet officially listed them as victims of the disease. As in all confirmed cases, however, they had some connection with a state American Legion convention in Philadelphia two weeks ago.

BULLETIN

ATLANTA (AP) — Scientists at the Center for Disease Control today eliminated influenza and fungi as possible causes of the mysterious "legionnaires disease" and said test results point toward a toxic substance as a cause.

"The epidemic has peaked and is on its way out," Dr. David Sencer, director of the CDC, told a news conference.

of the disease now focuses on an unidentified virus still being sought in the laboratories and a possible toxin that may have infected the victims while in Philadelphia.

New information on a possible viral source was expected when new tests are completed today at state Health Department laboratories in Philadelphia and at the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Meanwhile, teams of medical detectives fanned out today to check the six hotels and scores of restaurants where those attending the convention stayed and ate. They were checking air conditioning systems, water sources, food and even carpets and wallpaper, looking for a toxin — a poisonous substance — that may have triggered the outbreak.

No new cases of the disease have been reported since Tuesday, state Health Secretary Leonard Bachman reported Thursday. He said that some of the 138 persons hospitalized in the outbreak have been allowed to return home.

There was still no evidence of contagious spread of the disease, he added, and evidence points to a slacking off.

"We believe the reporting system is good and we are optimistic," said Bachman, standing before a chart detailing the perplexing strength with which the disease broke forth.

The legionnaires opened their convention in Philadelphia July 21 and adjourned July 24. The following Monday, more than a score of people who attended or had some contact with the convention were ill.

One man who exhibited the disease symptoms died Tuesday, July 27, according to Bachman's chart. Three days later, last Friday, four deaths were recorded. There was one death last Saturday.

Then came the peak: six deaths last Sunday and nine, the highest number for single day, on Monday. More than 100 people were hospitalized by that time. New cases were being confirmed, but all traced back (See back page, sec. 1, col. 1)

State Fails To Okay BH Recreation Center Bonds

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

The Michigan Municipal Finance Commission (MFC) has failed to approve an $800,000 bond issue for the City of Benton Harbor toward construction of a recreation center. Don Fichter, director of the MFC, told The Herald-Palladium today the commission's staff determined that the MFC should not approve the bond issue because of "unsettled conditions within the city."

The staff determination was made about July 1, Fichter said. He explained the commission staff noted that Benton Harbor had city commissioners recalled and wasn't able to hold city commission meetings at that time. He said the recommendation was based on "the general overall situation in the city."

Fichter said Benton Harbor was advised to submit a lower bond issue for commission consideration.

City Manager James Peeples Jr. said it means that an ice skating rink will be deleted from construction plans and said the city might submit a reduced bond issue of about $400,000. A new application for bonds would have to be approved by the city commission which now has a legal quorum with the swearing-in last night of four newly-elected members.

The $800,000 bond was applied for by the city last year when the city commission had a full roster.

The recreation center on the campus of Benton Harbor high school was scheduled to cost $2.4 million — financed by federal and state grants, a small amount from Berrien county revenue sharing and the $800,000 bond issue.

The recreation center is 82 per cent complete with completion scheduled for late November, according to Larry Nielsen, city recreation director.

However, construction work stopped Monday because the city couldn't get release of federal funds for payment to the contractor, Pearson Construction Co.

The funds are expected to be released soon because the city now has a mayor to sign for them.

Peeples said he understood the city's financial condition also was a factor in failure of the MFC to approve the bond issue. He noted there are currently $750,000 in delinquent taxes on the books, and the city has shown no growth in tax base.

Members of the MFC are Frank J. Kelley, state attorney general, chairman; Allison Green, state treasurer, and Dr. John W. Porter, state superintendent of public instruction. MFC approval is required on municipal bond issues.

Big Lottery Prize Heavenly Reward?

By STEVE MCQUINN
Assistant State Editor

BUCHANAN — William Faulhaber of Buchanan won $200,000 in the state's weekly lottery drawing yesterday and he is not dismissing a possible connection between it and the part his wife played a week ago in the rescue of two elderly Buchanan people from Pine Lake.

The lottery winning could have been a kind of Heavenly repayment for a good deed.

"We have thought about that connection, and have kidded a bit about it," Faulhaber admitted this morning in a telephone interview. "Who knows how he works these things," added the 56-year-old Faulhaber. He said he and his wife Geraldine regularly attend the Catholic church in Buchanan and plan to give part of their winnings to the church for use in mission work.

A week ago, on Friday, July 30, Mrs. Faulhaber helped save the lives of Harold Farber, 81, and his wife Bessie, 74. The elderly couple had fallen from their boat into Pine Lake.

Mrs. Faulhaber rowed out to them, slipped an air mattress around Mrs. Farber, and leaving her boat for Farber to hold onto, paddled back to shore on another air mattress and summoned help.

Faulhaber, who owns and operates an accounting firm in Niles, said he doesn't plan to retire. He said he will probably put some of the money in tax shelters and will also probably take a trip his wife has been wanting for some time.

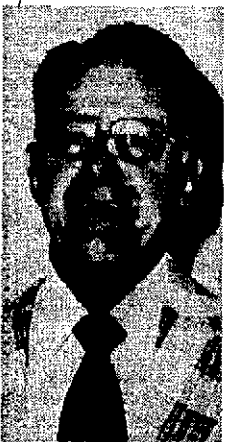

He bought his winning ticket at the Niles Elks' club. The couple has four children and three grandchildren.

Earl Barker, a 65-year-old Sister Lakes man who has qualified to be in a weekly drawing, passed up this week's drawing and will enter his ticket later on, Mrs. Barker said today.

While Faulhaber won the top prize in the weekly drawing at Southfield, the winner of the $25,000 prize was Floyd Wetham, 64, of South Bend, Ind. Last week's comeback winner, 38-year-old Howard Croft of Wixom, came away this week with $15,000.

The $12,000 prize went to Paul Skiba, 32, of Ann Arbor. Irvin Christy, 61, of Birmingham won $10,000.

Lottery Club #22 of Mount Morris won the $5,000 comeback winner. The club's 10 members all are employed at the Chevrolet manufacturing plant in Flint, and have been buying $10 worth of tickets a week for the past three years. It was their first big winner, and they will return next week for a second chance at the top prize.

Homeowners Had Better Ask Jimmy Carter

American homeowners, and Americans who would like some day to become homeowners, would be wise to demand specifics from Jimmy Carter on the Democratic presidential candidate's tax plans.

The outlook isn't good. If Carter is elected president this fall, homeowners can look for more pressure to remove mortgage interest and property taxes as deductions against federal income tax.

That is the carefully considered contention of Carl Konzelman, home section editor of the Detroit News.

Konzelman says this: "While Carter has been careful to avoid specifics on this as well as other issues, he is known to be sympathetic to the idea as part of what he calls 'sweeping reforms' aimed at plugging tax loopholes."

"From Tampa, Fla., in March, for example, the New York Times reported a clash between Carter and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, also a Democrat candidate for the presidential nomination at the time, on the issue."

"Among matters stressed by Jackson in attacking Carter was the belief that Carter's position on tax reform is a 'real threat to the solvency of middle-aged lower-class home owners' and that Carter's ideas on tax reform would bankrupt large numbers of Americans."

"In responding, Carter asserted, according to The Times, 'that his consideration of an elimination of the mortgage interest deductions...was but one facet of a sweeping tax reform that would result in a progressive but lower tax rate and would shift the tax burden of the country to those who can best afford it.'"

Mortgage interest and home property taxes are about the only tax subsidy enjoyed by your average American working family. It's a vein of gold that Democrats in Congress have been trying to tap for years. In 1972, for example, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, before Fanne Foxe when Mills was still chairman of the House Ways & Means Committee, introduced companion bills ending deduction of non-business interest and taxes.

Nothing has happened with these bills, but several Democrats are waiting in the wings to renew the effort to get them passed — but not until, you can bet, they first get their Jimmy Carter in the White House. They would be offending too many voters.

Konzelman estimates 65 per cent of the nation's families qualify as homeowners and would thus be deprived of this one loophole. In Michigan, says the Detroit newsman, "74 per cent of the state's families would qualify to be 'slugged' by ending the deductions."

One other interesting point made by Konzelman is that "interest and taxes on an average home these days easily run $3,000 or more annually. That bare figure is equivalent to four dependent deductions."

Before November, American homeowners should demand a total and precise answer from Jimmy Carter on his so-called tax reform plans. Those teeth he's always flashing could be the wolf's.

It's Nice They Agree

When both Congress and the White House are in substantial agreement on the course of the economy, and that course is favorable, even a confirmed pessimist should be obliged to reassess his position.

In its most bullish assessment since the recession, the Congressional Budget Office says the economy appears to be on a sound recovery at least through the end of 1977, and in fact "it may be possible to sustain the expansion for some time beyond 1977." As recently as March, the congressional panel was skeptical whether the drop in unemployment would continue.

Now, the budget office sees both inflation and unemployment as continuing problems, but well within the guidelines of a moderate recovery. Inflation should range between 5 and 7 per cent through 1977, the agency predicts, and unemployment continue dropping from its present 7.5 per cent of the work force to 6 per cent by the end of next year.

Those are almost exactly the forecasts of the Ford administration. Considering frequent political differences between the legislative and executive branches, agreement on where the economy is heading in the next year and a half is reassuring.

Meeting In Ceylon

Colombo, capital of the Asian nation of Sri Lanka (Ceylon), will have its brief moment in the international spotlight when the Conference of Nonaligned Nations meets there, starting Monday, Aug. 9. About 8,000 representatives of more than 60 countries are expected to attend the conference, which is designed to formulate common policies independent of Soviet or American influence. The issues to be discussed include the status of Israel and Korea, Puerto Rican independence, and race relations in South Africa.

The first conference of Third World countries met in Bandung, Indonesia, in 1956. The purpose was to assert a third voice in world affairs — one differing from those of the western or Communist blocs. A second meeting took place in Belgrade in 1960, and others have been held at quadrennial intervals since then. This year's conference is the first to be held in Asia since the original one at Bandung.

Sri Lanka has spent more than $6-million on advance preparations, with the delegates' safety a major consideration. Tourism will be suspended for the duration of the meeting, and foreign visitors already in the country when the conference begins will be required to undergo security screenings. The delegates, some of whom are chiefs of state, will be closely guarded.

Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike has a special interest in seeing that the conference proceeds smoothly. With Sri Lanka's general elections less than a year away, she is seeking to enhance her personal image as well as that of her country. Her political opponents have complained about the high cost of the meeting, but she retorts that it will bring lasting benefits, including foreign financial aid. Cuba no doubt hopes that will be the case. The next conference is to be held in Havana in 1980.

White Vote Beat Austin, Campaign Aide Declares

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

Richard Austin's race cost him the U.S. Senate nomination, according to his top campaign consultant.

Jack Casey, a campaign and elections expert who advised Austin and is vice president of the Detroit public relations firm of M.G. Casey Inc., said Thursday that vote results starkly showed the split along racial lines.

"It's too clear cut to be anything else as far as I'm concerned," Casey said. "There is no question people viewed him as a black candidate."

Austin, the secretary of state, was beaten with surprising ease in Tuesday's Democratic primary by Rep. Donald Reigle of Flint. And Casey said analysis of returns leaves him no doubt that the fact Austin is black lost him the nomination.

"If you look at the precincts, there were two elections in the primary," Casey said, "the blacks who went overwhelmingly for Austin and the whites who went overwhelmingly for the three white candidates."

Casey said Austin apparently received about 15 per cent of the white vote, and that slipped to less than 10 per cent in most white Detroit and suburban precincts. The black vote turned out and voted nearly 95 per cent for Austin, Casey said, but it wasn't enough.

Austin received a greater proportion of the white vote outside, Casey said, getting upwards of 25 per cent. He was particularly strong in the Upper Peninsula "where there is no black-white social tension."

Casey said election results show two other things — that voters won't tell pollsters about the effect of race on their choice, and that the importance of race depends on the office involved.

"Polls don't read how people are going to react racially," Casey said, referring to surveys which showed Austin far in the lead. "There are certain things you don't reveal to persons asking questions, particularly over the telephone. You say things that are socially acceptable. People told pollsters one thing and did another."

In addition he said, many whites may find a black secretary of state acceptable, but they aren't ready to vote a black into the governor's office or the U.S. Senate.

"The frame of mind of the voter today is that they are not going to vote for a black candidate for a sensitive office," Casey said. "I hope this is something temporary...but I doubt it will change overnight."

Democratic party Chairman Morley Winograd said he believed Austin's race was "an indirect reason" for his losing. He said controversy over campaign contribution from secretary of state branch managers and the impression Austin did not want to debate issues cost him white votes, and left him with only the solid core of his black support.

Winograd also pointed out that Reigle had more workers, had more money for media advertising — and that he campaigned harder for the nomination.

Rubber Talks

Will Resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations between striking rubber workers and the nation's four major tire and rubber manufacturers will resume Saturday. Labor Secretary W.J. Usery Jr. has told both sides to be prepared to keep talking until the 15-week strike is settled. "Come prepared to remain in continuous bargaining," Usery told negotiators for the industry and the United Rubber Workers in telegrams delivered Thursday.

Henry, Shah Meet

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the Shah of Iran met today to discuss the sale of six to eight American nuclear reactors at $1 billion each and an oil-for-weapons trade. Reporters accompanying Kissinger were told not to expect any agreements during his two-day visit.

Berry's World

Delegate Hunts For Impossible

RICHMOND, VA. — The way it began was that members of the Washington County Republican Committee were asked last winter and early spring to "Who will we run for delegates?" Half in jest, Miz Eliza Sprinkle said she would volunteer. The joke turned serious two weeks later when she made her offer formally. Her only condition was that she must run uncommitted. The party agreed, she was placed on the ballot, and won convincingly.

So it is that when the Republican party convenes later this month several hundred undecided primary voters from the southwestern corner of Virginia will be represented by the oldest, and one of the most important GOP delegates in the nation. Born last century, Miz Sprinkle is a few weeks shy of 80. As for her significance, she is one of about 100 uncommitted delegates whose votes could decide not only the party's nominee but the nation's next president.

The early gag has thus become "a terrible responsibility," as she says. And thus her burden may be lightened considerably by events, perhaps a pre-convention rush of pledges to one candidate or another. Miz Sprinkle insists she will not make her own decision until all the evidence is in: "I want to make the right choice. I want to know everything I can about each candidate. I read all the papers, I watch the 10 o'clock, 6 o'clock and 11 o'clock news on TV. The way I feel now I may not decide until the first ballot begins."

Miz Sprinkle's sobriety concerning her vote comes in part from her appreciation for having it. As a child at the turn of the century, she is one of a dwindling number of women who remember when only men had the franchise. The 19th Amendment was not made law until 1920, when Miz Sprinkle was 23. "I remember I went out that first year and registered. Then a few months later I voted for my first president (Warren Harding). I've been voting regularly ever since, except one time — when I was giving birth to my eldest son."

All her votes have been for the GOP. "My daddy was a Republican, and you know how it is — kids always follow the daddy. She says this with a remorse, actually, adding that her husband is a Democrat and her four sons "just blindly go along with him." Thank God she's got a daughter as well, she says, the dear girl sides with mom in thinking the party of Lincoln is the supreme political calling.

For all of her early problems in being recognized by the Republicans, and for all the flak she now gets from the Democratic wing of her family, Miz Sprinkle has done well with the GOP. During her voting lifetime there have been 11 presidents, seven of them Republicans. Two of them, Harding and Hoover, do not rate well in history, and another, Nixon, is best forgotten, but in all Miz Sprinkle feels "the Republicans have always offered the best of the bunch." (Well, except when Roosevelt ran. She remembers FDR as "a fine man.")

As for Jerry Ford and Ronald Reagan? She feels both candidates have strong qualities, but she is quite stingy with specifics. She doesn't want to make hard comparisons until the convention caucuses are ended, the platform is established, and both sides have had their final say. "I'm still searching," she confesses. "I'm still not sure which one would be the best man to straighten things out."

As for the issues, crime, welfare, government spending: When Miz Sprinkle was a girl, a murder in New York would make news in Richmond — now it's not even news in New York.

So she will travel to the convention, in effect, searching for the impossible. But that's all right. After 80 years, Eliza Sprinkle finds that she is still of importance to her party and her nation, she is still part of the action, she is still with hope, and, as she says it, this makes looking for the impossible somewhat easier.

Military Not 'Equal' To Task

WASHINGTON — Watching the macho military try to cope with women in its midst as supposed equals would be funny, if it were not so offensive.

Most of the attention has centered upon the service academies, which were forced by law to admit women for the first time in their long history this year.

A woman cadet found in bed with a male cadet was forced to resign from the Merchant Marine Academy, although her companion was allowed to remain and graduate on schedule. The academy reluctantly reinstated her only after the American Civil Liberties Union and a U.S. Senator protested the double standard.

And it caused a stir when the first woman plebe out of 81 in the entering class at the U.S. Naval Academy resigned. Yet there were no similar overtones of "can't take it" when 15 male plebes also resigned the same week.

But the most flagrant discrimination against women continues to be the noncommissioned officer enlistment practices of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. The Air Force technically admits women recruits on an equal qualifying basis with men, although there are serious complaints that in practice Air Force recruiters allow no more than 15 per cent of any given job category to be filled by women, even though it might mean some of the male-reserved jobs go empty while women are turned away.

Two months ago, Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld ordered the Secretaries of the Army and the Navy to review their standards for recruiting to weed out regulations that discriminate against women.

Rumsfeld, beyond issuing the order, has not exactly given the problem top priority, and no real progress has been made to date.

The Army, Navy and Marine Corps, which opened most non-combat specialties to women in 1972 with the end of the draft and congressional passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, have official regulations which require that women cannot enlist without graduating from high school, although men can do so. They also impose higher "mental requirement" criteria on women than they do on men.

In addition, a study by the General Accounting Office shows that job opportunities for women in all the services are limited because recruiters fail to tell women about occupational options, no standards have been established for measuring women's strength, stamina and other abilities, and combat requirements restrict both jobs and promotions available.

Federal law prohibits women from being assigned to combat aircraft or vessels other than hospital and transport ships, but there is no legislation preventing the assignment of women to other combat-related occupations. In actual practice, however, the military has excluded women from all such assignments, which tend to include the most desirable specialties in terms of pay, authority and promotion possibilities.

Benton Harbor Back To Official Business

"I think we all ought to join in singing a chorus of 'Happy Days Are Here Again,'" Benton Harbor City Commissioner Arnold Bollin said last night as four newly-elected city commissioners were sworn in.

The commission at a special meeting took its first official action since May 17 — a unanimous vote of its eight members authorizing the signature of new Mayor Joel Patterson to appear on checks.

Taking oaths of office last night were Patterson, Commissioner-at-large Norval Weiss, Second Ward Commissioner Tommie Parks and Third Ward Commissioner Michael Govatos.

One seat is vacant. Commissioner-at-large Helen Ford was recalled in Tuesday's election. The post can be filled temporarily by appointment of other commission members, pending an election.

The recall of Mrs. Ford left only Fourth Ward Commissioner Alfred Williams still in office as a member of former Mayor Charles F. Joseph's "Clean Slate."

Joseph and three other commissioners were recalled in May and the city commission was unable to conduct business until last night because it couldn't raise a legal quorum.

City Manager James Peeples, Jr., explained after the meeting that immediate action was necessary to authorize Patterson's signature because the city charter requires the mayor's signature on checks. Peeples said banks honored a facsimile of former Mayor Joseph's signature during the two-and-a-half months the commission took no action.

Patterson is scheduled to sign a document today to release $1.1 million in federal Community Development funds for the city, according to Peeples. The grant had been approved earlier by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) but the city could not receive the money because HUD requires the signature of the mayor or mayor pro tem on a document to release the funds.

A crowd of some 35 family and friends of the new city officials watched during the swearing-in ceremonies last night.

Patterson made a brief statement: "I make this pledge, and I think I speak for all the members of the commission, that we will not try to impress you with words, but we will try to impress you with deeds — deeds of kindness, justice and fair play."

The new city officials took office after results of Tuesday's city election to fill recalled commission seats were certified yesterday by the city board of canvassers.

Acting City Clerk T.J. (Jack) Carter said the totals as certified by the board were: Patterson, 918, Ralph Lhotka, 558, and Donald Finley, 179, in the mayor's race; Weiss, 864, and Winston Minott, 356, for commissioner-at-large; Parks, 149, unopposed for Second Ward commissioner, and Govatos, 291, Nathaniel Robinson, 209, for Third Ward commissioner.

The official canvass uncovered errors in reading of two voting machines in the second precinct of the First Ward in unofficial returns. The corrections made by the board boosted the victory totals for Patterson and Weiss.

The certified totals showed Weiss received 46 more votes and Minott 47 more than the unofficial count reported in Thursday's Herald-Palladium. Parks' certified count was eight more than unofficial returns reported Wednesday.

Carter said yesterday that Tuesday night he didn't actually decline to reconvene election workers at the second precinct of the First Ward to check for apparent errors.

But he explained: "I didn't agree to reconvene because I didn't know if I had the authority to recall them. I'm not going to do something I don't know I have the authority to do."

Carter said he had talked with County Clerk Forrest Kesterke after the polls had closed election night. Carter said Kesterke told him to leave the matter up to the board of canvassers which yesterday inspected the machines and detected the errors in which vote totals were transposed in the unofficial count.

Home Center Chain Buys Nowlen Lumber Company

Nowlen Lumber Co., in business in Benton Harbor since 1902, has been sold to Affiliated Home Centers, Inc., a family-owned chain of some 35 building supply stores and lumberyards headquartered in Kansas City, Mo.

Al Shark, new manager of the store, said Affiliated Home Centers bought the real estate and stock and is currently remodeling the interior of the main building to expand the company's line of merchandise. Purchase price was not disclosed. Nowlen Lumber, located at the corner of Wall and Eighth streets, was founded by the late Bert Nowlen and later became a partnership of brothers Stanley, Hilton, Eugene and Tom A. Nowlen.

Shark said Stanley, 84, plans to retire, and Tom A. will continue to be employed by the company as a consultant and advisor for the company. The other two brothers left the partnership several years ago. Shark said the store will now be known as the Nowlen Home Center.

Shark said the floor space at the store will be expanded by removing office space and the company will introduce new lines of carpeting, wallpaper, electrical and plumbing fixtures, power tools and lawn and garden equipment. New assistant manager of the store is Bill Allen III, a native of California. Allen and Shark, a native of Iowa, were previously assistant manager and manager, respectively, of a lumberyard in Granger, Ind.

Affiliated Home Centers, primarily based in the Midwest, also owns building supply stores and lumberyards in Paw Paw, Marcellus, Sturgis, Watervliet, Edwardsburg, Decatur, White Pigeon and Vicksburg. They operate under individual names.

Whirlpool Talks Break Down Again

Contract negotiations between Whirlpool's St. Joseph division and Local 1918 broke down again yesterday and a Whirlpool spokesman said no further meetings have been scheduled. Jay Van Den Berg, director of industrial and community relations for the St. Joseph division, said negotiators for the two sides made "no progress at all" during two consecutive days of bargaining.

He said the federal mediator adjourned yesterday's session at 5 p.m. and added the mediator has scheduled no further meetings. Union officials could not be reached for comment this morning. Members of Local 1918, International Association of Machinists, voted May 7 to reject the company's contract offer and have been locked out of the plant since then. The past two days of bargaining were the first consecutive days of meetings since the contract was rejected by union members. Two one-day negotiating sessions had been held before Wednesday.

Van Den Berg said the company's final offer has not changed, but Local 1918 Business Agent Ed Kepp charged that the company is attempting to take away 6½ cents from the cost-of-living benefits which was the result of an increase in the cost of living since the old contract expired.

"We have requested the company put the 6½ cents back on the table, at which time we would schedule a mass membership meeting and then let the people (union members) be the deciding factor on whether to accept or reject the company's final offer," Kepp said.

"The company has refused to grant the union's request of reinstating the 6½ cents." Normal operations have been halted at the St. Joseph division since the union contract rejection, but salaried personnel and some 200 temporary employees have been producing component parts for other Whirlpool divisions.

SJ APARTMENT DECISION DUE NEXT MONTH

The St. Joseph city planning commission will make its decision on a special use permit for a proposed 46-unit apartment complex at 141 Langley avenue in September.

Details of the apartment complex were presented to the city planners yesterday by the developers and builders, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Smith of St. Joseph. But Commission Chairman James Heathcote said more specific project plans and blueprints would be needed before the commissioners could make a decision. The planners must make a recommendation to the city commission on a special use permit because the site is currently zoned for two-family housing, he added. No public hearing is required.

The Smiths have said the apartment complex is aimed at young executives and retired persons and have stated rents would range from $250 to $400 a month. Smith is the owner of Leonard Smith Construction Co., Inc., 914 Main street, St. Joseph. His wife, Debra, said she is employed by Berrien Real Estate Service, 1014 Main street, St. Joseph. They also presented their plans to the city commission Monday night.

Smith told the planning commission construction costs for the apartment project are estimated at $800,000 excluding site development. The plans were reported in Tuesday's edition of The Herald-Palladium, but Heathcote said "outside of what was said in the paper this is the first time I've seen them. Personally I don't like to make a decision based on a half-hour presentation."

The proposed development would be built on the 4.65-acre site of the old Baptist Children's home.

Mrs. Smith and William Brown of LeRoy Troyer and Associates, a Mishawaka, Ind., architectural and planning firm, made most of the presentation to the commission. Mrs. Smith told the commissioners she and her husband commissioned a market and feasibility study to best determine to how use the site. Single family homes and two family homes were considered besides the apartments, she added.

While the study determined

there was a market for each of the three housing types, it also showed the proposed apartments were the most economically feasible, Mrs. Smith reported. Mrs. Smith said the project would be built in two stages if it receives approval from city officials. The first phase would contain 24 apartments in four buildings, a swimming pool and a community building. The second phase would contain another 24 apartments, a handball court and a putting green.

Smith said he owns other apartment projects in Niles, Buchanan, Bridgman and Watervliet, and "we're getting calls daily on apartments in St. Joseph. It's not just for moderate income, but high income, too." Smith also said he is anxious to get city approval before September because "I'd like to have financing committed by then."

Plans also call for the apartments to have 14½ bathrooms and a security system. Smith said details on the security system haven't been completed yet. Either security guards or an electronic gate opened with some sort of card or key will be used, depending on cost he added.

Mrs. Smith said two parking spaces are planned for every apartment. There will also be six additional spaces for the community building for a total

Landfill Authority Asks Police To Enforce Trash Hauling Rules

Hauling uncovered rubbish in a truck is a violation of state law, and Twin City area police agencies have been asked to enforce it, according to Ben Luckner, superintendent of the Northwest Berrien county landfill, just north of Ross field. Luckner said the landfill authority has asked police agencies to more stringently enforce the law because blowing paper and debris have created problems along roads near the landfill. The landfill is owned jointly by the Cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, the Townships of Benton and St. Joseph and the Village of Shoreham. The landfill is open for public use.

Mercy Names Chief Of Anesthesiology

Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, has announced the appointment of Dr. Byung C. Rhee to its staff as chief of anesthesiology services and director of respiratory therapy treatment.

Dr. Rhee, 33, most recently served on the staff of Hahnemann Medical College and hospital, Philadelphia, where he received his training in anesthesiology. He also trained in general surgery at Mercy Hospital, Pontiac. Dr. Rhee has had extensive training in anesthesia and respiratory therapy involving open heart surgery on both adult and pediatric patients, the hospital's announcement said.

C.T. Loftus, Mercy executive vice president, said the hospital plans to increase open heart surgery from two operations to three a week during the coming year.

Dr. Rhee is a native of Seoul, Korea. He and his wife, Young, have two children and live at 777 East Napier avenue, Fairplain.

Single family homes and two family homes were considered besides the apartments, she added.

While the study determined

there was a market for each of the three housing types, it also showed the proposed apartments were the most economically feasible. Mrs. Smith reported. Mrs. Smith said the project would be built in two stages if it receives approval from city officials. The first phase would contain 24 apartments in four buildings, a swimming pool and a community building. The second phase would contain another 24 apartments, a handball court and a putting green.

Smith said he owns other apartment projects in Niles, Buchanan, Bridgman and Watervliet, and "we're getting calls daily on apartments in St. Joseph. It's not just for moderate income, but high income, too." Smith also said he is anxious to get city approval before September because "I'd like to have financing committed by then."

Plans also call for the apartments to have 13½ bathrooms and a security system. Smith said details on the security system haven't been completed yet. Either security guards or an electronic gate opened with some sort of card or key will be used, depending on cost he added.

Mrs. Smith said two parking spaces are planned for every apartment. There will also be six additional spaces for the community building for a total

Landfill Authority Asks Police To Enforce Trash Hauling Rules

Hauling uncovered rubbish in a truck is a violation of state law, and Twin City area police agencies have been asked to enforce it, according to Ben Lucker, superintendent of the Northwest Berrien county landfill, just north of Ross field. Lucker said the landfill authority has asked police agencies to more stringently enforce the law because blowing paper and debris have created problems along roads near the landfill. The landfill is owned jointly by the Cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, the Townships of Benton and St. Joseph and the Village of Shoreham. The landfill is open for public use.

Sixteen members of the Benton Harbor Chapter of Squaws, Incorporated, and their families attended the fifth biennial conclave of National Squaws, Incorporated, in Cleveland, O., July 22-25.

Squaws, Braves and Paposes attending the conclave included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeFrance, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace L. Dunn Jr. and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bellis, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Watson, Mrs. Gladys Burks, Mr. and Mrs. James Peeples and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chatman and son, Mr. and Mrs. George Loder, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. Harzel Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. George Westfield, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bulger, Mrs. Claudia Stafford, Mrs. Frank Browning, and Mrs. Mary

The Benton Harbor chapter also received the rotating attendance trophy at the third biennial conclave in Detroit in 1972. Benton Harbor was not eligible in 1974 because the fourth biennial conclave was hosted here.

The second award received at the conclave was the SOTY (Squaw of the Year) award which was presented to Squaw Diane DeFrance. Each local chapter chooses a member to receive the SOTY award. These awards are then issued to each SOTY recipient at the conclave.

As also is biennially done at the conclave, the national body of Squaws presented $2,800 to Mt. Sinai hospital in Cleveland for treatment and research of hypertension. This was the national project of Squaws for the last two years. The Squaws new national project for the next two years will be the Legal Defense Fund of the NAACP.

Dutch Adopt American T-Shirts

Popular In Amsterdam

By SHIRLEY CHAMPA

AMSTERDAM (AP) — United States T-shirts emblazoned with the logos of top American sports teams are all the rage among Dutch youngsters.

Decorated with huge '76s and bold red, white and blue stripes, the shirts have an American Bicentennial flavor.

The scene on the streets is not much different from an American town, but all the accents are Dutch.

Boutiques on Amsterdam's fashionable Kalverstraat are filled with the shirts. A clerk in one shop said hundreds were sold in a week.

"Since we got the first stocks in the beginning of June we've been selling them as fast as we get them in," she said.

Store racks are also crammed with American university sweatshirts — a style United States college students have cherished for years.

One Dutchman wearing a Michigan State university sweatshirt said he didn't know where Michigan was. "It's just something fun to wear," he explained.

The United States makes many of the shirts but others are imported from Spain, Portugal, Italy and even Communist Romania. The shirts mostly sell for 25 guilders or about $10. Similar ones sell in the United States for half as much.

FAR-FLUNG FASHION: Two Dutch teenagers sport United States T-shirts in an Amsterdam boutique. The American shirts — many with sports logos — are currently all the rage among the Dutch.

some of the more offbeat shirts. One proclaims "Be a Man and Do It — Join the U.S. Navy." "American Cruising Ship" is emblazoned across another. Shirts resembling old flour sacks declare "Heart of America" and "Gold Medal Flour." Others have no slogans but are covered with red, white and blue stars and stripes. Uncle Sam glares from another.

Popular also are new and used American bowling and garage mechanic shirts. Dutch trend-setters are proudly sporting shirts that proclaim "Snowline Bowl and Billiards, Oakhurst," "Boulevard Lanes, Duver, Ohio," and "Cloverleaf Speedway."

In one exclusive shop a shirt with "Dallan Chevy and Olds Garage, Inc." stitched on the back is selling for 60 guilders or $24.

One Dutch girl commented, "It's crazy. People here pay a lot of money to wear somebody's old shirt."

While Dutch kids are snapping up the American shirts in fashionable stores, Americans in souvenir shops nearby are busy buying Holland T-shirts decorated with windmills and tulips.

A National Geographic film will be shown Monday, Aug. 9, at 12:15 p.m. in the auditorium of the Benton Harbor public library.

The public is invited and anyone wishing to bring a lunch may do so.

"But, the Dutch Made Holland" is the story of a thousand-year-old war for productive land taken from the sea.

The National Geographic film highlights the storm of 1963 which washed out 300 miles of dikes and how the dikes were rebuilt.

Books added to the library collection include "The Raider," Jesse Hill Ford; "Sylvia Plath," Edward Butcher; "Flannery O'Connor," Dorothy McFarland; "The President Planter," Roger Rusbach. Also "The Mountain of the Lord," Benjamin Mazer; "Antique Country Furniture of North America," John Shea; "Black Eyed Susans," Mary Helen Washington, and "How to Negotiate a Business Loan," Richard Belew.

Vienna Nursing Schools Campaign

VIENNA (AP) — Thanks to an extensive campaign by the city administration to promote the profession, 1,110 women and 46 men have applied for the fall semester in nursing studies.

This is more than the number of places available in the municipal schools, but authorities said they intend to expand the facilities to cope with the steadily increasing demand.

Currently there are 1,171 female and 60 male nurses in training. It is expected that 257 diplomas will be awarded this year and 268 in 1977.

Play Safe With Meat

Even though ground beef is plentiful and economical, homemakers should exercise care in handling the meat as soon as it arrives from the market.

Because ground meat is perishable, it should be stored immediately in the coldest part of the refrigerator or meat compartment and should be used within 24 hours after purchase.

Attend Squaws Conclave

DIANE DEFANCE
Receives Award

Sixteen members of the Benton Harbor Chapter of Squaws, Incorporated, and their families attended the fifth biennial conclave of National Squaws, Incorporated, in Cleveland, O., July 22-25.

Squaws, Braves and Papooses attending the conclave included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeFrance, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace L. Dunn Jr. and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rellis, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Watson, Mrs. Gladys Burks, Mr. and Mrs. James Peeples and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chatman and son, Mr. and Mrs. George Loder, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. Harzel Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. George Westfield, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bulger, Mrs. Claudia Stafford, Mrs. Frank Browning, and Mrs. Mary Baird. The Benton Harbor chapter received two awards at the conclave. The local chapter had the largest number of Squaws from any local chapter in attendance and was presented the rotating attendance trophy to be held until the next biennial conclave.

The Benton Harbor chapter also received the rotating attendance trophy at the third biennial conclave in Detroit in 1972. Benton Harbor was not eligible in 1974 because the fourth biennial conclave was hosted here.

The second award received at the conclave was the SOTY (Squaw of the Year) award which was presented to Squaw Diane DeFrance. Each local chapter chooses a member to receive the SOTY award. These awards are then issued to each SOTY recipient at the conclave.

As also is biennially done at the conclave, the national body of Squaws presented $2,600 to Mt. Sinai hospital in Cleveland for treatment and research of hypertension. This was the national project of Squaws for the last two years. The Squaws new national project for the next two years will be the Legal Defense Fund of the NAACP.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Twang Not Iowa's Fault

Dear Ann Landers: Saw you on the Tonight Show with Barbara Walters hosting in place of Johnny Carson. You really are a nifty dancer but then, Ray Bolger could make anybody look good.

I loved your white dress with the rows of fringe. Did you make it yourself?

I have also seen your sister, Dear Abby, on the Tonight Show, and she, too, is darling. But I wish you girls would keep your mouths shut.

What in the world is wrong with your voices? You both have the same speech impediment. You could both use a good speech therapist. Have you ever heard a playback of yourselves? That rasping, irritating nasal twang CAN be corrected. Please don't blame it on Iowa. I was raised in Des Moines and I don't sound as if I am talking through two sets of false teeth.

Someone should level with you, and your best friend Barbara Walters won't because she doesn't sound a hell of a lot better. Sign me — Sure Ears From Houston Who Tells It Like It Is.

Dear Ears: Thanks for your warm comments. Glad you liked my dress. No, I didn't make it myself. Bill Blass deserves the credit.

As for that rasping, irritating, nasal twang — nobody's perfect. In the meantime, Barbara Walters will soon be making a million claims a year with her "impediment." Eat your heart out, Houston.

Bad Advice

Dear Ann Landers: I was disturbed by the reply you gave the 11-year-old girl who asked if she could get pregnant before she started to menstruate. You said no.

I'm a registered nurse who works in labor-delivery. I've cared for four 11- and 12-year-olds who became pregnant before the onset of their periods. These girls happened to have intercourse at the time of their first ovulation and got caught. Please change your answer. It would be awful if that youngster started to fool around because of you.

A similar occurrence is the new mother who gets pregnant before her six-week check-up, assuming she is "safe" because she has not resumed her menstrual cycle.

Pre-teens and women who have two babies in one year make rotten patients. We don't want 'em. — O.B. Nurse In Sfid.

Dear Nurse: You are right. I was wrong. That answer was one of the worst I have ever given and I am ashamed of myself. Dozens of doctors and nurses wrote to set me straight and so did several teenagers. It's sackcloth and ashes for me these next 30 days.

Childless, Happy

Dear Ann: I've seen several letters to the editor and comments by other columnists who doubted your survey which reported 70 per cent of the parents who responded would NOT have had children if they had it to do over again.

Recently my husband and I watched a dear friend, a fine, decent, caring person, destroyed by her daughter. When we see what others are going through with their kids we are glad we were not "blessed" with a family — and there are many more like us. — Anonymous — Of Course

Dear Ann: The cloak of anonymity brings out the truth like nothing else. Thanks for writing.

Dr. Lester Coleman

Does it still hold that if a woman has had one Caesarean delivery that subsequent children will be born in the same way — Mrs. J. D. D., Tem.

Dear Mrs. D.: It was once considered a medical adage that "once a Caesarean, always a Caesarean." This is based on the fact that the pelvic bones of the mother do not change during later pregnancies.

In most instances, the delivery of a child by Caesarean birth is due to the fact that the child is too large to pass through the normal vaginal canal. Hence, an incision is made in the lower part of the abdominal wall for the rapid delivery of the child.

In some instances, even if there is no unusual discrepancy between the size of the child and the mother's pelvic bones, the operation is performed when the baby's life is threatened by too long a period of labor.

It is estimated that about one out of every 40 deliveries is done by Caesarean section.

The only way it can be determined if subsequent pregnancies will require Caesarean section is to discuss with your doctor the basic reasons that made the original one necessary.

Is it true that left-handed children suffer more frequently than right-handed children? — Mrs. F. E., Nev.

Dear Mrs. E.: There is no relationship between the two, from a physical point of view.

There is, however, a great possibility that stuttering may be the end result of undue pressure that is placed on left-handed children to convert them to right-handedness.

"There was a time in our society when the left-handed person was made to feel stigmatized, almost as if he had a deformity."

Today, there is less and less emphasis put on the value of right-handedness as against left-handedness.

The important attitude is to allow the child the freedom of functioning in the way that is most comfortable for him. No pressure should be put on him to change from one hand to the other.

Stuttering is only one of the psychological penalties that can be imposed on him by such unnecessary pressures.

Corn Popping Family Affair

Who pops the popcorn? According to a recent survey it's a family affair.

Mothers most often do it, but children at a very early age soon get into the act. And many families report that Dad is the chief popcorn expert.

Is Your Home Safe?

A mother is in the kitchen preparing lunch for her young son playing nearby. To reach a can of soup, she moves a chair to the cabinets and steps up on it. As she reaches up, she loses her balance, falls and is knocked unconscious. Her child is scared. No one else is at home.

Home accidents such as this happen all too frequently and falls are the leading cause. Inattention and carelessness are often principal reasons for falling down stairs, tripping over something or slipping. More often than not, though, people fall because they create potentially dangerous situations themselves.

A leading insurance company suggests several ways families can make and keep their houses "fall safe."

Don't clutter stairways and landings with all sorts of things. You just create an obstacle course built for tripping and falling.

Bounding up and down the stairs is often the first step toward tumbling down them. Hold on to the handrail to maintain your balance, but do not let children use it as an indoor slide.

Keep stairways well lit. Check that the stairs' surfaces are in good repair and not slippery. If they are carpeted, make sure there are no worn or torn spots. And, if you have a large load to carry up the stairs, split it up and make two trips. You'll find it a safer and healthier method.

How often do you use a chair and execute a delicate balancing act to reach an object on a high shelf? Save time and limb by using a step stool or stepladder.

Water or grease on any walking surface can cause a bad slip and fall. Cans, boxes or toys left on the floor in main walkways can be tripped over too easily, as can a carelessly placed extension cord. Scatter rugs that aren't slip resistant can also scatter you or someone in your family.

Protect young children from stairways, landings, open windows and porches. The little time and effort it takes to install protective railings, gates and safety latches can save a child from a permanently disabling injury.

The first trick accounted for ninth, 10, queen and ace of spades. Dave drew trumps with three leads while chucking two diamonds from dummy. Then he led the eight of spades. East took his king and played the king of clubs. Dummy's ace won. Dave discarded his last club on the jack of spades, ruffed a club, played his last two trumps while chucking the last spade and club from dummy. East did his best by chucking his last two spades, but West had to throw a diamond somewhere along the way. Dave decided he only did this because he had nothing but diamonds in his hand whereupon it was a simple matter to play West for the diamond queen.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Twang Not Iowa's Fault

Dear Ann Landers: Saw you on the Tonight Show with Barbara Walters hosting in place of Johnny Carson. You really are a nifty dancer but then, Ray Bolger could make anybody look good.

I loved your white dress with the rows of fringe. Did you make it yourself?

I have also seen your sister, Dear Abby, on the Tonight Show, and she, too, is darling. But I wish you girls would keep your mouths shut.

What in the world is wrong with your voices? You both have the same speech impediment. You could both use a good speech therapist. Have you ever heard a playback of yourselves? That rasping, irritating nasal twang CAN be corrected. Please don't blame it on Iowa. I was raised in Des Moines and I don't sound as if I am talking through two sets of false teeth.

Someone should level with you, and your best friend Barbara Walters won't because she doesn't sound a hell of a lot better. Sign me — Sore Ears From Houston Who Tells It Like It Is

Dear Ears: Thanks for your warm comments. Glad you liked my dress. No, I didn't make it myself. Bill Blass deserves the credit.

As for that rasping, irritating, nasal twang — nobody's perfect. In the meantime, Barbara Walters will soon be making a million claims a year with her "impediment." Eat your heart out, Houston.

Bad Advice

Dear Ann Landers: I was disturbed by the reply you gave the 11-year-old girl who asked if she could get pregnant before she started to menstruate. You said no.

I'm a registered nurse who works in labor-delivery. I've cared for four 11- and 12-year-olds who became pregnant before the onset of their periods. These girls happened to have intercourse at the time of their first ovulation and got caught. Please change your answer. It would be awful if that youngster started to fool around because of you.

A similar occurrence is the new mother who gets pregnant before her six-week check-up, assuming she is "safe" because she has not resumed her menstrual cycle.

Pre-teens and women who have two babies in one year make rotten patients. We don't want 'em. — O.B. Nurse In Sgld.

Dear Nurse: You are right. I was wrong. That answer was one of the worst I have ever given and I am ashamed of myself. Dozens of doctors and nurses wrote to set me straight and so did several teenagers. It's sackcloth and ashes for me these next 30 days.

Childless, Happy

Dear Ann: I've seen several letters to the editor and comments by other columnists who doubted your survey which reported 70 per cent of the parents who responded would NOT have had children if they had it to do over again.

Recently my husband and I watched a dear friend, a fine, decent, caring person, destroyed by her daughter. When we see what others are going through with their kids we are glad we were not "blessed" with a family — and there are many more like us. — Anonymous — Of Course

Dear Anon: The cloak of anonymity brings out the truth like nothing else. Thanks for writing.

Dr. Lester Coleman

Does it still hold that if a woman has had one Caesarean delivery that subsequent children will be born in the same way - Mrs. J. D. D., Tenn.

Dear Mrs. D.: It was once considered a medical adage that "once a Caesarean, always a Caesarean." This is based on the fact that the pelvic bones of the mother do not change during later pregnancies.

In most instances, the delivery of a child by Caesarean birth is due to the fact that the child is too large to pass through the normal vaginal canal. Hence, an incision is made in the lower part of the abdominal wall for the rapid delivery of the child.

In some instances, even if there is no unusual discrepancy between the size of the child and the mother's pelvic bones, the operation is performed when the baby's life is threatened by too long a period of labor.

It is estimated that about one out of every 40 deliveries is done by Caesarean section.

The only way it can be determined if subsequent pregnancies will require Caesarean section is to discuss with your doctor the basic reasons that made the original one necessary.

Is it true that left-handed children stutter more frequently than right-handed children? - Mrs. F. E., Nev.

Dear Mrs. E.:

There is no relationship between the two, from a physical point of view.

There is, however, a great possibility that stuttering may be the end result of undue pressure that is placed on left-handed children to convert them to right-handedness.

There was a time in our society when the left-handed person was made to feel stigmatized, almost as if he had a deformity.

Today, there is less and less emphasis put on the value of right-handedness as against left-handedness.

The important attitude is to allow the child the freedom of functioning in the way that is most comfortable for him. No pressure should be put on him to change from one hand to the other.

Stuttering is only one of the psychological penalties that can be imposed on him by such unnecessary pressures.

Corn Popping Family Affair

Who pops the popcorn? According to a recent survey it's a family affair. Mothers most often do it, but children at a very early age soon get into the act. And many families report that Dad is the chief popcorn expert.

Is Your Home Safe?

A mother is in the kitchen preparing lunch for her young son playing nearby. To reach a can of soup, she moves a chair to the cabinets and steps up on it. As she reaches up, she loses her balance, falls and is knocked unconscious. Her child is scared. No one else is at home.

Home accidents such as this happen all too frequently and falls are the leading cause. Inattention and carelessness are often principal reasons for falling down stairs, tripping over something or slipping. More often than not, though, people fall because they create potentially dangerous situations themselves.

A leading insurance company suggests several ways families can make and keep their houses "fall safe."

Don't clutter stairways and landings with all sorts of things. You just create an obstacle course built for tripping and falling.

Bounding up and down the stairs is often the first step toward tumbling down them. Hold on to the handrail to maintain your balance, but do not let children use it as an indoor slide.

Keep stairways well lit. Check that the stairs' surfaces are in good repair and not slippery. If they are carpeted, make sure there are no worn or torn spots. And, if you have a large load to carry up the stairs, split it up and make two trips. You'll find it a safer and healthier method.

How often do you use a chair and execute a delicate balancing act to reach an object on a high shelf? Save time and limb by using a step stool or stepladder.

Water or grease on any walking surface can cause a bad slip and fall. Cartons, boxes or toys left on the floor in main walkways can be tripped over too easily, as can a carelessly placed extension cord. Scatter rugs that aren't slip resistant can also scatter you or someone in your family.

Protect young children from stairways, landings, open windows and porches. The little time and effort it takes to install protective railings, gates and safety latches can save a child from a permanently disabling injury.

In your bathroom use slip-resistant mats in the tub and shower, as well as slip-resistant rugs. Also, install handgrips to help keep your balance getting in and out of the tub.

Carefully check every area of your house and remove any potential hazards. Make your house safe for living.

Griffin Sees Harmonious Convention

By MIKE GRANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's floor manager for the Republican National Convention predicts the party's presidential nominee will be chosen without the bitterness of previously contested GOP conventions.

Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan said Thursday that with 12 days to go before the convention opens in Kansas City, all signs are for "a lot more harmony and togetherness... than newsmen might like to expect."

He predicted a first ballot victory for Ford, and said Ronald Reagan's campaign officials have indicated they probably will not use procedural issues to deny the President delegates committed to him under laws in 19 states.

At a breakfast meeting with reporters, Griffin also said, "At this point there doesn't seem to be any real battle shaping up on the platform."

Griffin said, "There seems to be real effort on both sides to avoid dramatizing the differences among Republicans rather than focus on differences with Republicans, which is what the platform is for."

Griffin said, "I think the result (Ford's nomination) is going to be pretty obvious before the gavel comes down in Kansas City."

He said even the most conservative delegate counts give Ford an edge of 80 delegates over Reagan. That does not include officially uncommitted delegates whom Ford campaign officials expect to vote their way, he said.

Ford campaign leaders have been proposing that delegates agree to follow laws in 19 states and local party rules in others which require them to vote in proportion to the outcome of presidential primary elections in their states.

A federal appeals court has said the state legislatures have no control over the workings of a national political party.

Griffin said Reagan officials at a meeting earlier this week agreed in principle that the state laws he followed despite the court decision.

There are about 500 delegates bound to vote for Reagan and 300 tied to Ford by binding state primary laws. Some are known to prefer the candidate opposite from the one they are bound to vote for.

No one knows how many there are. But GOP officials believe Reagan would benefit most if those delegates were freed to vote for the candidate of their choice, or to abstain in the early balloting.

Connally: Not A Candidate

DETROIT (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally said Thursday it would be "difficult" for him to turn down an invitation to be President Ford's running mate.

But Connally added he is not a candidate for vice president, even though he was in Detroit to address an organization which has endorsed him for the post.

Connally was speaking before members of the Michigan Republican Heritage Council, a group of 34 ethnic organizations in the state.

Asked about reports that Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., had joined other Republicans in questioning whether it would be wise politically for Ford to pick him, Connally replied:

"Wise for who? I have to laugh about that. I don't know anyone who is close to me who said I'm a candidate."

But pressed further, Connally admitted it would be difficult for him to turn down such an invitation from Ford. "I'd have to have a long, detailed discussion about it," he said.

Connally, who served as secretary of the treasury under former President Richard Nixon, accused Republican congressmen of engaging in "self-annihilation" by trying to link him to the Watergate scandal, and called those attempts "a hatchet job."

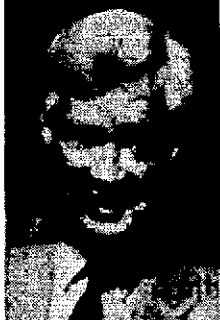

"I wasn't involved in Watergate," Connally said. "It only seems to me that they want to hurt the President."

Two Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee that heard Watergate evidence during the Nixon impeachment investigation have urged Ford to review testimony and tapes concerning Connally before picking a vice presidential candidate.

Connally said Thursday he agreed the President should review all tapes, but pointed out that White House tapes concerning him were played at his bribery trial, and that he was acquitted.

Connally was found innocent of charges that he had taken a bribe to gain an increase in milk prices in return for political contributions to the 1972 Nixon re-election campaign.

He told his Michigan audience he favors making public any tapes concerning him or others involved in the dairy industry, and added that the Democratic vice presidential candidate, Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, and others also had received dairy industry campaign contributions.

Griffin Sees Harmonious Convention

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's floor manager for the Republican National Convention predicts the party's presidential nominee will be chosen without the bitterness of previously contested GOP conventions.

Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan said Thursday that with 12 days to go before the convention opens in Kansas City, all signs are for "a lot more harmony and togetherness... than newsmen might like or expect."

He predicted a first ballot

victory for Ford, and said Ronald Reagan's campaign officials have indicated they probably will not use procedural issues to deny the President delegates committed to him under laws in 19 states.

At a breakfast meeting with reporters, Griffin also said, "At this point there don't seem to be any real battle shaping up on the platform."

Griffin said, "There seems to be real effort on both sides to avoid dramatizing the differences among Republicans rather than focus on differences with Republicans, which is what the platform is for."

Griffin said, "I think the result (Ford's nomination) is going to be pretty obvious before the gavel comes down in Kansas City."

He said even the most conservative delegate counts give Ford an edge of 80 delegates over Reagan. That does not include officially uncommitted delegates whom Ford campaign officials expect to vote their way, he said.

Ford campaign leaders have been proposing that delegates agree to follow laws in 19 states and local party rules in others which require them to vote in proportion to the outcome of presidential primary elections in their states.

A federal appeals court has said the state legislatures have no control over the workings of a national political party.

Griffin said Reagan officials at a meeting earlier this week agreed in principle that the state laws be followed despite the court decision.

There are about 500 delegates bound to vote for Reagan and 300 tied to Ford by binding state primary laws. Some are known to prefer the candidate opposite from the one they are bound to vote for.

No one knows how many there are. But GOP officials believe Reagan would benefit most if those delegates were freed to vote for the candidate of their choice, or to abstain in the early balloting.

Connally: Not A Candidate

DETROIT (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally said Thursday it would be "difficult" for him to turn down an invitation to be President Ford's running mate.

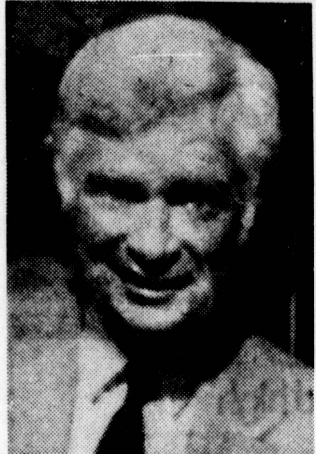

But Connally added he is not a candidate for vice president, even though he was in Detroit to address an organization which has endorsed him for the post.

Connally was speaking before members of the Michigan Republican Heritage Council, a group of 34 ethnic organizations in the state.

Asked about reports that Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., had joined other Republicans in questioning whether it would be wise politically for Ford to pick him, Connally replied:

"Wise for who? I have to laugh about that. I don't know anyone who is close to me who said I'm a candidate."

But pressed further, Connally admitted it would be difficult for him to turn down such an invitation from Ford. "I'd have to have a long, detailed discussion about it," he said.

Ford Hunts Veep; Reagan After Votes

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is hunting for a vice presidential candidate, but Republican challenger Ronald Reagan, who already found one, is busy hunting convention delegates in his running mate's home state.

Presidential spokesman Ron Nessen has confirmed that Ford will wait until after the GOP convention in Kansas City names the party's presidential nominee to select a running mate. But he said Ford has expanded the list of Republicans whose advice he will consider in making that choice.

The President sent letters to 300 GOP mayors and elected local officials Thursday to ask their views on a vice presidential nominee. He already had asked the opinions of all 4,518 delegates and alternates to the convention, all Republican members of the Senate and House and some high-ranking party leaders.

Meanwhile, Reagan and his running mate, Sen. Richard Schweiker, head into Pennsylvania today, hoping to add to the six new delegates they picked up in New York and New Jersey on Thursday. The joint campaigning effort won the pledged support for Reagan from two delegates in New York and four in New Jersey. But the former California governor still trails Ford in an Associated Press delegate survey, with neither candidate having the 1,130 delegates needed for nomination.

Ten days before the convention's start, Ford has 1,100 delegates to Reagan's 1,035. There are 124 uncommitted delegates. The AP total counts only those delegates publicly stating a preference or legally bound — not those leaning toward a candidate.

Pennsylvania now stands 76 for Ford, 10 for Reagan and 17 uncommitted. The uncommitted delegates are prime targets of the Reagan-Schweiker hunt, but Schweiker says he feels Pennsylvania's support of the President may be eroding.

In campaigning with Schweiker in Mississippi, New York and New Jersey, Reagan has claimed that adding the liberal Schweiker to the conservative Reagan team boosted the campaign.

"I'm very optimistic. I don't believe we lost support any place," he said Thursday. He said Schweiker's selection "was aimed at November, not August."

Schweiker added, "We believe this is the only kind of base that can beat Jimmy Carter." He said the Democratic ticket of Carter and Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota would beat a GOP ticket headed by Ford. "A Ford candidacy has shown that incumbency is not a positive factor in an election," Schweiker said.

Soweto Violence Continues

By LARRY HEINZERLING

Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Thousands of angry blacks roamed the streets of the Soweto township today, stoning cars and trucks, throwing up roadblocks of wrecked cars and other debris and molesting workers on their way to jobs in Johannesburg.

It was the third straight day of violence in the huge ghetto eight miles south of Johannesburg which spawned the black upheaval in mid-June in which at least 176 persons were killed and more than 1,100 were injured. Three blacks were killed Wednesday (the Rand Daily Mail reported that police shot and killed a fourth black Thursday and wounded five others, but police did not confirm the report).

Police were put on a nationwide standby alert, and police reinforcements were rushed to Soweto.

The blacks are demanding the release of student leaders arrested in the wake of the June riots and held without charges or trial. Police said the crowds appeared increasingly militant.

Black and white police in armored personnel carriers dispersed several groups of blacks with tear gas.

Shots were fired near the Klipspruit district of Soweto, where crowds were reported stoning motorists and overturning cars.

Gunfire was also heard in the Meadowlands and Naledi districts.

Eight people were reported injured when police fired tear gas in an attempt to disperse demonstrators near the Pheteni district who were trying to prevent people going to work.

However, a railway spokesman said peak-hour passenger trains from Soweto to Johannesburg were running normally.

Senate Approves Clean Air Measure

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed legislation Thursday to revise and broaden the federal Clean Air Act.

The measure, passed 78-13, includes new restrictions to limit industrial development that might significantly increase air pollution in relatively smog-free areas of the nation.

It also provides for a two-year stretchout of time for the automobile industry to meet rigid emission standards.

The new deadline for cars to comply fully with standards for emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide was set for 1979 models, with full compliance with a new relaxed standard for nitrogen oxide control set for 1980 models.

An amendment by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., to force compliance one year earlier was defeated 61-30.

Senate passage of the bill cleared it for a conference with the House, which is considering a similar measure.

The Senate bill also directs studies by the National Academy of Science on the effects of aerosol spray containers on the possible depletion of the ozone layer protecting the earth from the ultraviolet radiation of the sun.

If the Environmental Protection Agency finds that aerosol containers containing fluorocarbons may endanger human health, it would be required to propose regulations to restrict their manufacture and use by Jan. 1, 1978.

An amendment by Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., to ban manufacture of aerosol containers after Jan. 1, 1978, unless it is found they impose no health hazard was defeated 64-28.

The Senate bill allows for an extension of time, up to 10 years, for cities to improve the use of automobiles where necessary to meet primary national standards for protection of public health from polluted air.

The bill also provides for a penalty of up to $25,000 a day after Jan. 1, 1979, for industrial plants that fail to comply with emission control orders.

Chaos Seen In CB Expansion

By DANIEL Q. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Protesters orchestrating demonstrations over the air, prostitutes soliciting customers and police fighting back with electronic jamming — all are possibilities envisioned in a federal government study of the future of citizens band radio.

The wild proliferation of the small-talk medium could cause international protests in the next few years as CBers snarl world-wide communications, the report speculates.

And through it all, the Federal Communications Commission may be powerless to step in and regulate the chaos.

The report was prepared by Arthur D. Little Inc., a private consulting firm, for the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy.

In a series of scenarios, the study speculates about developments in telecommunications over the next 15 years. The scenarios are not predictions but, in the words of the study, are "futures" — they could happen.

The report also envisions: —The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. carrying all television service into homes over phone lines. TV stations stop broadcasting on the air. —The U.S. Postal Service jeopardized by competition from private firms. The rivals deliver color facsimiles of letters into homes over the telephone network and electronically provide newspapers and magazines that can be read on television screens. The scenarios are like history written in advance. They recount imaginary events as though they have already happened.

The CB scenario envisions antibusing demonstrators using radios to organize riots. But by 1977, it says, police will have learned to jam CB conversations by broadcasting noise.

Other uses will create problems as well. Lookouts will warn bandits of approaching police, and prostitutes will cruise the streets broadcasting their offers.

In 1977, the scenario says, scrambling equipment will be on the market that will allow private conversations.

In 1978, the report says, increased sunspot activity will cause American CB conversations to skip thousands of miles, disrupting communications in Europe and South America.

By 1979, the FCC will have virtually abandoned efforts to enforce its rules.

By 1980, 100 FM channels will be freed for CB use.

Boaters and hitchhikers begin using CBs, the scenario says. A motel chain starts a CB reservation service.

Jobless Appeal System Is 'Crummy': Unionist

By MARY STEVENS

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Employment Security Appeal Board members know little about compensation law and don't meet requirements that they work full time, charges a union spokesman.

"The system is a crummy system," said Jordan Rossen of the United Auto Workers, which has filed suit against the board. The suit, pending in the Michigan Court of Appeals, asks the court to order the board to meet the legal requirements the UAW says it is violating.

The three board members are appointed by the governor to process appeals of unemployment compensation claims.

Rossen, in remarks Thursday to a special House committee investigating the panel, said William McBearty, chairman of the appeals board, asked the UAW to support higher salaries for board members who currently are paid $19,000.

McBearty refused to comment. Gerard Peplowski, a member who has also been criticized by Rossen, has also declined to respond.

Rossen said Michigan's appeal board is the only one in the country that does not require representation from the public, employers and workers. He said a plan has been submitted to the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) that the board be replaced by a three-member panel made up of unemployment compensation referees, who must pass exams to demonstrate their knowledge and skill.

Rossen cited a Michigan Supreme Court ruling that prohibits board members from doing outside work during formal business hours. He claimed that both McBearty and Peplowski continued doing outside work after their appointments.

Rossen said the UAW told state labor director Keith Molin and S. Martin Taylor, director of the MESC, about the allegations last year. The two told him, Rossen said, that the governor asked them to begin an investigation last March. Rossen said the UAW decided to file suit against the board after Taylor and Molin indicated Gov. William Milliken did not have the power to do anything about the union allegations.

Rossen said the appeals board has to rely on "faulty legal advice, and it ignores court orders." For example, he said, the board has ignored court orders that it take evidence on hearing cases, "depriving claimants and employers of proper hearings."

Rossen said the fact that Ralph Irvine, attorney for the board is also president of Alliance Underwriters insurance company constitutes a conflict of interest. Irvine has testified to the board that he is head of the company and a minor stockholder.

Stevensville To Inspect Charity Drive Finances

By ALICE KOCH
Stevensville Correspondent

Stevensville village council last night voted to inspect financial statements of charitable organizations seeking permission to solicit funds within the village before acting on their drive requests.

Action came after Trustee Charles "Bud" Kerlikowski said, "We (council members) have a responsibility to the people in this village to make sure the money they are contributing to such organizations is not being eaten up in administration costs."

The council read requests last night from the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation (CFF) and the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) to conduct fund raising campaigns in the village. Both were denied permission to collect contributions last year but council later reversed its decision for the CFF.

Council instructed Clerk Mrs. Bernice Schoenfelder to notify the two organizations of its decision. The CFF is planning its door to door campaign for Sept. 13-25 and the DAV requested its permit for Aug. 28.

In other business, council accepted a low bid from Sackett's Concrete Tile Co., Kalamazoo, of $1,025, for 500 feet of 12-inch drain tile to be used on St. Joseph avenue. Council rejected a bid of $1,444 from Lamar Tile Co., Grand Rapids.

Council last month authorized the purchase of 800 feet of tile at approximately $6 per foot. Kevin Green, acting street superintendent, reported only 500 feet was needed and the cost would be $2.05 per foot, less a 15 per cent discount.

Development of a village park was discussed with possible sites mentioned as village-owned property on Karen court and St. Joseph avenue or on Ridge road. The Ridge road land is owned by Rudy Bohn. No action was taken.

Council instructed the clerk to contact Gerald Howard, local postmaster, requesting postal drop boxes in the St. Joseph avenue shopping district and the village square.

DETROIT (AP) — While its car sales are down sharply, American Motors reports its Jeep deliveries are moving at a record clip.

The smallest of the domestic automakers said Thursday sales of its four-wheel utility vehicles last month were 8,211, an all-time high for a July and up 41 per cent from a year ago.

South Haven Airport Expansion Hearing Attracts No Objectors

By TOM RENNER

SOUTH HAVEN — No objections were raised last night during a Michigan Aeronautics commission public hearing here on the anticipated environmental impact from the proposed expansion of the South Haven airport.

Except for city and officials, only five residents of property in the vicinity of the airport attended the hearing. Their inquiries related to the proposed timetable for acquiring land to accommodate the expansion.

Review of the environmental assessment study is part of the process of developing a 20-year airport master plan for the city by R. Dixon Speas and Associates of Minneapolis.

The master plan will provide for the expansion of the airport to be able to accommodate business-type jet aircraft over the next two decades.

Expansion of the airport would create a minor noise nuisance for residents in the immediate vicinity of the airport, according to consultant Nigel Finney.

However, he estimated that traffic projections for jet aircraft indicate that the noise level would be at a nuisance level only about nine minutes in a 24-hour day. The peak level would still be below minimum federal noise regulations, he added.

Finney also predicted that airplane technology in the future will reduce even further the noise factor from jet aircraft.

The proposed plan, estimated to cost approximately $2 million, could be funded up to $5 per cent by the state and federal governments.

If undertaken, the expansion would include a new 5,300-foot northeast-southwest runway and a 3,600-foot crosswind northwest-southeast runway. The existing runway would become a taxiway for the new main runway.

Finney estimated that 157 acres of property would have to be acquired under the proposed expansion. He said the purchase would cause the relocation of two residences and that 111 acres of the acquired property could continue to be used for agricultural purposes.

He told the property owners not to expect the city to begin purchasing land on a large scale in the immediate near future. However, he noted that even without any expansion the city will need to acquire some additional land to extend clear areas for the existing runway.

He predicted that the first real expansion work would not come until the early 1980s.

Written comments from the public on the environmental study can be filed with the South Haven city clerk until Aug. 15, according to a Michigan Aeronautics commission spokesman.

UAW Official Set As BUW Speaker

Owen Bieber, of Grand Rapids, director of Region 1-D in (Western Michigan) for United Auto Workers, has been named speaker for a Blossomland United Way labor rally Tuesday, Aug. 17, at Benton Harbor Holiday Inn, according to Cecil Bush, labor participation chairman of the 1976 BUW campaign. BUSI SAID THE 7:30 p.m. dinner will be preceded by a social hour.

Region 1-D is one of several

UAW international union administrative districts in Michigan. Bieber has served on the region staff in Grand Rapids in various capacities since 1961, and was elected to his present post in 1974. He is a member of the personnel and labor advisory council of grand Valley State college.

Purpose of the rally is to build greater organized labor participation in the 1976 Blossomland United Way campaign. Bush said that about 27 per cent of dollars pledged to United Way comes from corporate donations, while most of the rest is received from individual donors. Approximately 10,000 persons belong to some 52 labor unions in the United Way area, and support from this sector has contributed significantly to over-the-goal success in the last three BUW campaigns.

Art Vega, international representative, UAW, will serve as master of ceremonies for the dinner, with an invocation delivered by Rev. Silas Legg, acting director of Berrien County Action, Inc. A 1976 BUW campaign film, "A Special Job" will be shown and comments on the upcoming solicitation will be given by Walter Browne, general campaign chairman, and W. Gary Baker, BUW executive director. Jim F. Miller, BUW community services staff person, is meeting co-ordinator.

UAW Official Set As BUW Speaker

Owen Bieber, of Grand Rapids, director of Region 1-D in (Western Michigan) for United Auto Workers, has been named speaker for a Blossomland United Way labor rally Tuesday, Aug. 17, at Benton Harbor Holiday Inn, according to Cecil Bush, labor participation chairman of the 1976 BUW campaign. BUSH SAID THE 7:30 p.m. dinner will be preceded by a social hour.

Region 1-D is one of several

UAW international union administrative districts in Michigan. Bieber has served on the region staff in Grand Rapids in various capacities since 1961, and was elected to his present post in 1974. He is a member of the personnel and labor advisory council of grand Valley State college.

Purpose of the rally is to build greater organized labor participation in the 1976 Blossomland United Way campaign. Bush said that about 27 per cent of dollars pledged to United Way comes from corporate donations, while most of the rest is received from individual donors. Approximately 10,000 persons belong to some 52 labor unions in the United Way area, and support from this sector has contributed significantly to over-the-goal success in the last three BUW campaigns.

Art Vega, international representative, UAW, will serve as master of ceremonies for the dinner, with an invocation delivered by Rev. Silas Legg, acting director of Berrien County Action, Inc. A 1976 BUW campaign film, 'A Special Job' will be shown and comments on the upcoming solicitation will be given by Walter Browe, general campaign chairman, and W. Gary Baker, BUW executive director. Jim F. Miller, BUW community services staff person, is meeting co-ordinator.

Turndown Puzzles Slugger

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers slugger Willie Horton, who got his start in an inner-city high school here, says he can't understand why Detroit voters have rejected a millage proposal that means the death of sports in the city's public schools. Detroit voters, in an 81,861-48,432 vote Tuesday, defeated a five-mill proposal that would have kept sports alive in public schools. Now the schools, like the city itself, are cutting back services because of financial shortages. "This is going to be a great loss to our city," Horton said. Last year's top American League designated hitter, Horton attended Detroit Northwestern High School. "Sports have done a lot to keep people together in the last decade. It opened the way for a lot of black and white people to get together," Horton said.

Before Inheritance...

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Court of Appeals has upheld a state law requiring the father of an illegitimate child to legally acknowledge the child is his before it can share in his estate. The court ruled Thursday on the appeal of Ellen Jackson and her son, Jeffrey, born out of wedlock and father by James Easley. Easley was killed and Wayne County Circuit Court awarded Easley's estate to his son by marriage. The appeals court said the decision was proper since a father must file an acknowledgment of paternity in probate court before his illegitimate child can be an heir. A probate court order that the father support an illegitimate child does not establish that child's right of inheritance, the court said.

City Councilman Killed

ITHACA, Mich. (AP) — Corunna City Councilman Thomas Renwick was killed when a car struck him Thursday on U.S. 27 near Ithaca, officials said. Gratiot County deputies said Renwick, 36, who is employed by a construction company, was standing along the highway when a car went out of control, ran off the roadway and struck him. The car also crashed into the rear of a construction company truck that Renwick and another worker were using to remove warning zone signs. Renwick and the driver of the auto, Hendrik Zwarsensteyn, 63, of Okemos, were both pronounced dead at the scene.

More Federal Judges?

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — The number of judges for the federal court covering Western Michigan and the Upper Peninsula could be doubled by late next spring, says the court's chief judge. U.S. District Court Judge Noel Fox made the prediction after learning a subcommittee of the Judicial Conference of United States Courts had recommended adding a fourth judge for the 49-county Western District of Michigan. Currently, Fox and Wendell Miles are the district's only judges. But the U.S. Senate has approved money to pay a third judge and the question awaits action in the House. Fox said the subcommittee's call for a fourth judge was "a strong one" and he is optimistic the full Judicial Conference will agree. Recommendations of the Conference, headed by Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger, usually are approved by the full court and sent to Congress.

Teacher Pacts Lagging

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Nearly 300 school districts remain without new teacher contracts as Michigan schools prepare to open in about a month, the state Board of Education reports. The board said Thursday the unsettled contracts involve 56 per cent of the districts in the state. Contract negotiations are underway in those districts and there is no way to tell if widespread school strikes will erupt, a state Department of Education spokesman said. Bitter school strikes kept students out of class in several Michigan districts two years ago, prompting lawmakers to wrestle with writing a law to curb illegal teacher walkouts. Gov. William Milliken ultimately vetoed the proposed bill. As of last Tuesday, 221 of Michigan's 530 K-12 districts, or 42 per cent, reported signed contracts, and 10, or 2 per cent, reported tentative agreements, the board said.

Judge Keeping Lid On Red Squad Files

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Brown told some 100 angry, jeering people Thursday that they would not get to see "Red Squad" files kept on them until he decides what to delete.

He also denied a request from East Lansing attorney Zoltan Ferency that the Michigan State Police, which kept the files on subversives, be ordered to notify all of the estimated 50,000 persons on whom the files were kept.

The 100 people, plus a dozen of 30 attorneys, crammed the Lansing City Council chambers because they could not fit in the courtroom. They were among 150 persons who, after petitioning Brown, were told that the State Police kept files on them under a 1950 law that set up the Red Squad unit to keep track of subversives.

Originally intended to control Communist activity, the law was later used to collect information on other so-called "subversive" activities, including participation in protest rallies.

Present at the hearing were old and young, blue-jeaned and business-suited people, including former U.S. Rep. Raymond Cleveland of Ann Arbor, marijuana folk hero John Sinclair, attorneys, union members, reporters, professors and students.

"I want us to thank the court for giving us the opportunity to get back together again. Many of us haven't seen each other in several years," said Ferency, a long-time political activist and Human Rights Party candidate for governor in 1974.

Brown declared the 1950 law unconstitutional and ordered the subversives unit disbanded after the HRP filed suit against the State Police. Under court order the files have not been destroyed.

Brown told the crowd at Thursday's hearing that the State Police had agreed to release all files compiled under the 1950 law, but only if "third party references" were removed.

"What are third party references?" one angry person in the audience shouted at Brown during the noisy and chaotic hearing.

"I will not know the answer to that until I see a file," said Brown.

Food-Dragging Charged

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — A dozen Sault Ste. Marie businessmen have charged a governor's panel with dragging its feet and ignoring the possibility that Kincheloe Air Force base may actually be closed. The New Sault businessmen's committee charged Thursday that Gov. William Milliken's 23-member Kincheloe Economic Action Committee is concentrating all its efforts on keeping Kincheloe open, and is not adequately investigating alternative plans in case the Chippewa County base is shut down. New Sault members said they may try to sue the Air Force to make it either keep the base open, or phase it out slowly while providing some kind of aid to help the area recover from the anticipated economic blow. Milliken's panel, headed by Lake Superior State College President Kenneth J. Shouldice, was charged with trying to save Kincheloe after the Department of Defense announced last spring that the base was a possible candidate for closure.

'Protecting' Is Key Word

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. planned today to discuss ways to protect recently hired minorities and women as well as older workers in time of layoffs. UAW officials said one proposal would guarantee that workers with low seniority retain recall rights for three years after being laid off. "If we can get that one, it will one hell of a good stroke of business," said Bill Colbath, administrative assistant to UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone. Colbath said the union also wants such workers to be told how they are rated by their supervisor when they are laid off. He said workers should have a right to know if their record has been marked "not to be rehired."

Arraignments For 20-Plus

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — Arraignments on drug-related charges were scheduled today for more than 20 persons from the Algoma and New Baltimore areas who were arrested Thursday in a police dragnet. State Police said the arrests broke up a major drug ring in southeastern Michigan. Those arrested were charged with the selling of one or more drugs, including heroin, PCB and marijuana. Troopers said the arrests took place at a number of residences in southern St. Clair County and northeastern Macomb County. The arrests ended a four-month investigation by State Police detectives.

Ox Horns For Sale

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ceremonial swords, mink stoles and a set of mounted ox horns will be among the items for sale at the annual auction conducted by the Michigan State Police. There will also be more mundane items such as bicycles, televisions, air conditioners, rings, cameras, tools, and camping equipment. The merchandise to be sold includes unclaimed, recovered and confiscated merchandise, mostly accumulated by the State Police in various investigations. Auction-goers will be able to shop through the lunch hour at the sale, which begins at 9 a.m. on Aug. 19 at the National Guard drill hall in Lansing.

Oil-Gas Leasing Rights

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Oil and gas leasing rights to 103, 725 acres of state land across Michigan will be offered at an auction slated for Aug. 25, according to the Department of Natural Resources. The lease sale, involving land in 21 counties, has been authorized by the Natural Resources Commission. The largest offerings include 25,347 acres in Clare County, 15,245 acres in Montcalm County, 14,683 acres in Roscommon County and 14,583 acres in Oakland County. The lease auction will be conducted at the Lansing Civic Center beginning at 10 a.m.

No-Fault Insurance Section Is Illegal

By PATRICK CONNALLY
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state appeals court says a section of Michigan's no-fault insurance law is unconstitutional because it discriminates against the poor.

The appeals court Thursday declared unconstitutional the part of the 1973 law which subtracted from survivor benefits the amounts received from government sources such as Social Security or workers compensation.

The appeals court said the section discriminates against poor people since the no-fault law does not force such deductions when similar benefits are paid from private sources.

"Those who have no private insurance or who cannot afford such insurance receive fewer benefits because of that fact," the appeals court said.

The ruling came in a suit by Heather O'Donnell of Ypsilanti and her three children against State Farm Mutual automobile Insurance Co., which carried her no-fault insurance. Mrs. O'Donnell's husband, Gary, director of the Michigan Kidney Foundation, was killed in February, 1974, when his car collided with a State Police car during a chase with a third vehicle in Ypsilanti.

O'Donnell's no-fault insurance policy provided $1,000 a month for three years via a wage-loss clause for survivors. But under state law, State Farm deducted Mrs. O'Donnell's monthly $560 social security benefits, leaving only $440 a month in no-fault survivor payments.

The appeals court said discriminating between governmental benefits and private benefits was "patently unreasonable."

A more acceptable plan, the court suggested, might be one such as those in Illinois and Florida, where deductions are limited to workers' compensation benefits. This type of law might be reasonable, the court said, because such benefits are provided without cost to the beneficiary.

Many Bargains In Small Cars

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Car buyers who wait until the end of a model year to do their car shopping will find plenty of bargain-priced 1976 subcompacts from which to choose this summer.

But those in the market for something larger may have to hop from dealer to dealer before they locate the car of their choice, and it likely won't come with a sale price tag.

Most summers, dealers offer close-out discounts on their current stocks to make room for the higher-priced new models, which the auto companies begin shipping in August.

This year, dealer showrooms are overflowing with slow-selling small cars, but are just about out of many sporty compact, intermediate, full-size or luxury models.

That's because consumer demand for larger models has come roaring back after two years of waning interest, and Detroit, which had been thinking small since the energy crisis in 1973, didn't anticipate so dramatic a market turnaround when it drew up its 1976-model production schedules.

The makers have been revising their output plans weekly since the spring but still haven't been able to catch up with the mounting demand for bigger cars.

"It's a real oddity the way we have such a huge supply of small cars and so few of the others," said one industry analyst.

He noted that dealer supplies of many compact, mid-size, standard and luxury models as of Aug. 1 were down to 20 to 30 days, while stocks of subcompacts remained at unwieldy levels ranging from 95 to 135 days.

A 60- to 70-day supply normally is considered optional.

The industry has been unable to improve its stocks in recent weeks because they have had to close many assembly plants to install new tooling for 1977 models.

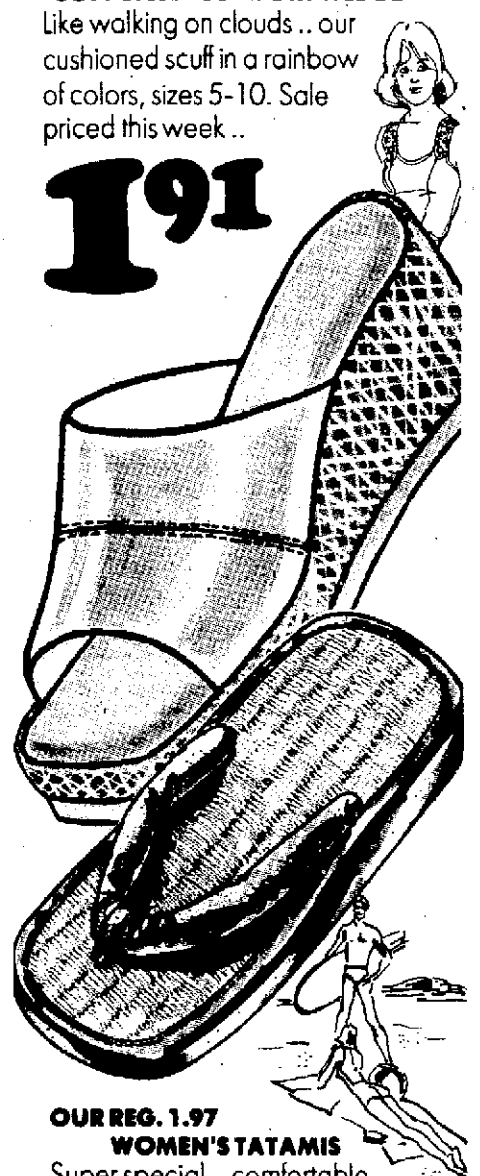

A dozen plants are closed this week for model changeovers, but another eight began assembling the new cars as the industry hopes to replenish stocks as other plants resume production.

DETROIT (AP) — Car buyers who wait until the end of a model year to do their car shopping will find plenty of bargain-priced 1976 subcompacts from which to choose this summer.

But those in the market for something larger may have to hop from dealer to dealer before they locate the car of their choice, and it likely won't come with a sale pricetag.

Most summers, dealers offer close-out discounts on their current stocks to make room for the higher-priced new models, which the auto companies begin shipping in August.

This year, dealer showrooms are overflowing with slow-selling small cars, but are just about out of many sporty compact, intermediate, full-size or luxury models.

That's because consumer demand for larger models has come roaring back after two years of waning interest, and Detroit, which had been thinking small since the energy crisis in 1973, didn't anticipate so dramatic a market turnaround when it drew up its 1976-model production schedules.

The makers have been revising their output plans weekly since the spring but still haven't been able to catch up with the mounting demand for bigger cars.

"It's a real oddity the way we have such a huge supply of small cars and so few of the others," said one industry analyst.

He noted that dealer supplies of many compact, mid-size, standard and luxury models as of Aug. 1 were down to 20 to 30 days, while stocks of subcompacts remained at unwieldy levels ranging from 95 to 135 days.

A 60- to 70-day supply normally is considered optional.

The industry has been unable to improve its stocks in recent weeks because they have had to close many assembly plants to install new tooling for 1977 models.

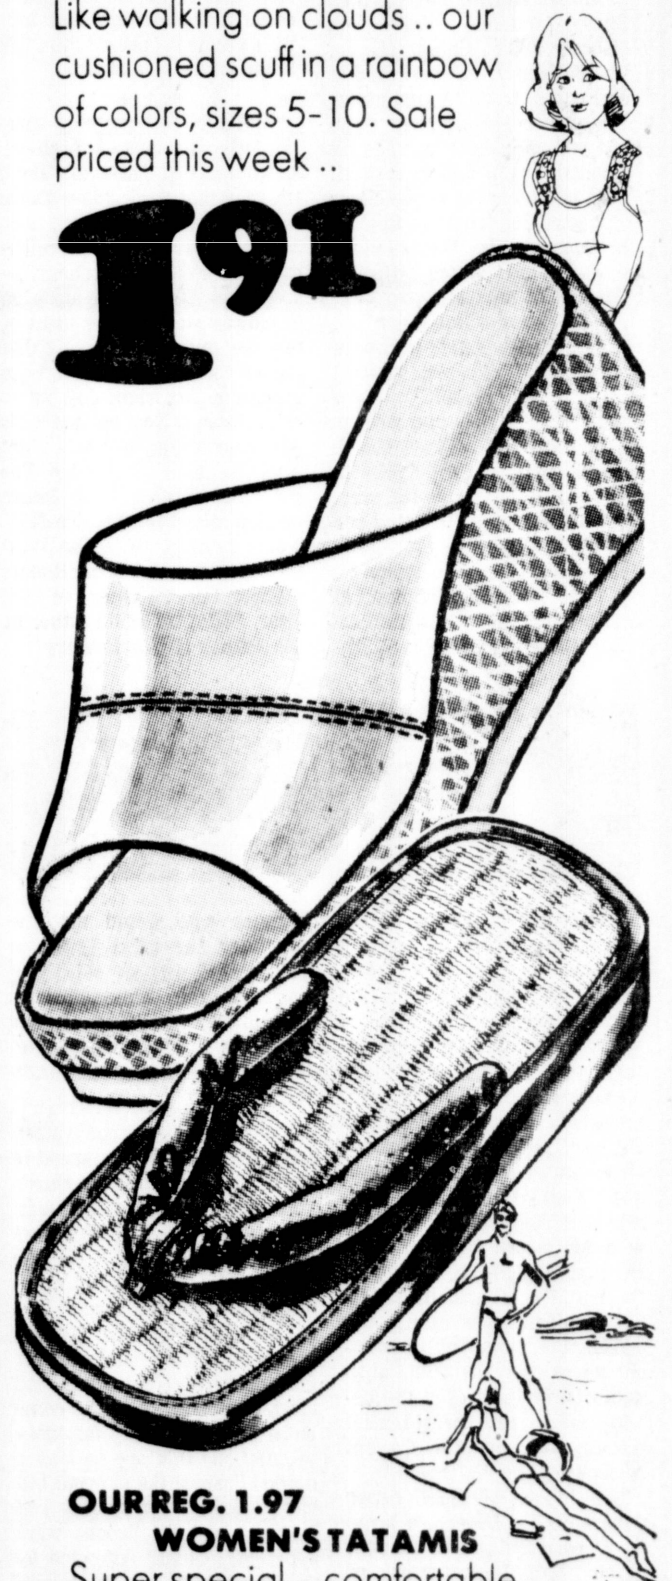

A dozen plants are closed this week for model changeovers, but another eight began assembling the new cars as the industry hopes to replenish stocks as other plants resume production.

Peggy Lee To Help Japan Celebrate

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A few weeks late, Japan is getting ready to celebrate America's bicentennial with fireworks, festivals — and Peggy Lee.

One of this country's most appealing exports, Miss Lee has been invited to be guest of honor at a series of celebrations, including a fireworks festival at Karuizawa, and a formal dinner in her honor, given by the U.S. ambassador, James D. Hodgson. Her visit is sponsored by the Mitsukoshi Department stores, which will present four Lee concerts in Tokyo, Sapporo and Osaka in early August.

Miss Lee was chosen, said Mitsukoshi President Shieru Okada, "because her great warmth and lovely personality are representative of the American people."

"The Japanese have sent 30 requests for songs they would like to hear," said the singer as she prepared for the trip at her Beverly Hills home. "I'm amazed at how much of my work they know. They asked for songs that go back to when I was writing with Victor Young. They want not only 'Fever' but 'Johnny Guitar' and 'Autumn in Rome.' I've also written a special song for Japan 'Dreams of Summer.'"

Like certain brands of chateau wines, Peggy Lee seems to improve with the years. At 55 she is singing to a second generation of fans, and her blonde beauty seems little changed. The survival road has not been easy, given the ever-changing nature of pop music and the rigors of road travel. She admitted to hospital visits in recent years, also a career lapse when hard rock swept through the music world.

"When that kind of music took over, I was destroyed emotionally," she admitted. "I didn't understand it. I couldn't find my place in it. I told myself if that's where music is going, I don't want to go along, so I'd better find something else to do."

"But after a while I made a conscious effort to study and understand what the younger musicians were doing. Gradually I came over. I realized there were some new, wonderful things evolving. Some of the soft rock is very interesting, and the Latin songs are something I can understand."

"More good songs are coming along all the time. There is a dearth of beautiful ballads, but I can always go back to the great songs of Cole Porter, George Gershwin, Otto Harbach and Jerome Kern, Rodgers and Hart, Rodgers and Hammerstein." While getting ready for the Japan trip, Miss Lee was also picking out music for a Rodgers and Hammerstein TV special being produced by Gary Smith and Dwight Hemion. She was also fishing up an A&M album she made with Cy Coleman.

"Mirrors," and planning a concert tour of Europe.

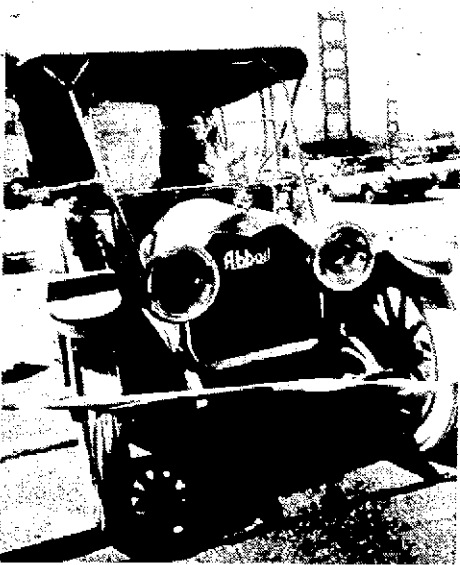

"The doctors tell me I should change my life-style," she remarked, "but what can I do? I don't drink, I don't smoke. I try to take care of myself, but I like to work. And when I work, I pay attention to detail. I don't mean that I'm like Craig's wife; I simply like to be professional."

Along with her other activities, Miss Lee is doing some writing on her early career, which tells much about her current habits. Born Norma Egstrom in Jamestown, N.D., she started singing on a Fargo radio station. Later was hired as band singer by Benny Goodman. That's when she got her education in the music business.

"It was like boot camp," she recalled, "tremendously tough to endure. But if you come through it, you'll be in shape for anything that comes along."

MICHIGAN "LANDMARKS"

There are 50 states in the Union, but every so often a bizarre event occurs in Massachusetts that seems to rate national coverage. By now, if you have followed my commentary, you will hopefully have abandoned the notion the Commonwealth is populated by new left looks. It was a combination of working-class isolationism and Kennedy-inspired anti-Nixonism that put us in solitary with McGovern back in 1972. However, the media, misled by the number of articulate new left professors roaming the jurisdiction, persisted in treating us as the left-wing, anti-militarist stronghold of the nation until the presidential primary last spring was swept by Jackson and Wallace.

Our latest political caper centers on Ft. Devens, a large Army base outside of Boston, which the Department of Defense decided to shut down as superfluous. Closing Devens would create an economic disaster area, much of which lies in the congressional district of Father Robert Drinan, the eminent critic of the "military-industrial complex." However, with remarkable unanimity, the entire Massachusetts delegation in Washington protested this is a punitive measure. The Department of Defense fell back on its computers, which indicated that Devens was about as vital to national defense as Ft. Jefferson in the Dry Tortugas.

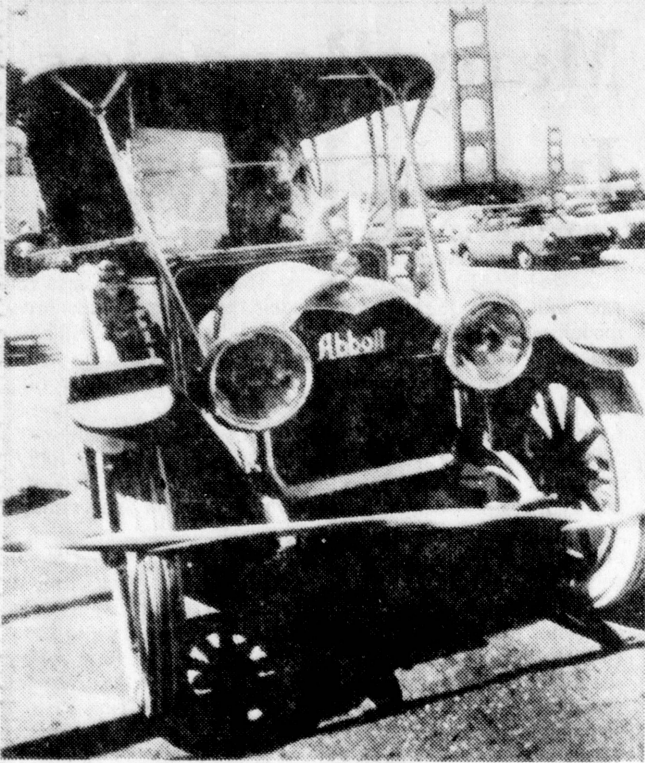

Congressman Thomas P. O'Neill, Democratic leader in the House and no one to be spooked by a computer, thus introduced in the Military Construction Bill a one-year delay on all military closings, pending case-by-case congressional review. "Tip" perhaps figured that a year from now the nation would have a Secretary of Defense who would ask the computer the right question. This passed with the solid support of the Massachusetts delegation, including Father Drinan and Michael Harrington, another leading "anti-militarist."

Alas, President Ford vetoed the measure, and it returned to the Hill for a possible two-thirds vote overriding his decision. The attempt failed in the Senate where Senator George McGovern — in an act of gross discourtesy to his lonely 1972 supporters — said that stalling would only "add one year for Chambers of Commerce and other interested groups to come down here and lobby for those installations that are no longer needed." Since the original bill had passed the Senate 90-3, Ted Kennedy and Ed Brooke were apparently caught flatfooted by the President's surge of support, but they put up a good fight — Brooke was particularly moving when he predicted that Americans would suffer "a gradual erosion of faith in their government . . . because of the arbitrary decisions of faceless bureaucrats." There was not a dry eye in the Senate, but Devens isn't in South Dakota.

The House voted to override the veto, but not without a comic note. Despite Father Drinan's abolition of Devens from the sins of militarism, poor Harrington was perplexed. First he issued a press release urging an override, then he abstained on the vote, and finally said he had wanted to vote to sustain the veto! However, Father Drinan has promised a new "crusade" to save Devens, and maybe this time Harrington (whose district was carried by Jackson in the primaries) will get his ducks in a row. It is essential for a crusader.

Senate Favors Tax Break For College Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is recommending a $250-a-year tax cut to help students pay their way through college or vocational school. The special credit would start at $100 next July 1 and rise by $50 a year until it hit the maximum $250 in 1980. If the student had a job and filed his own tax return, he could subtract up to $250 from taxes owed. Otherwise, the tax credit would go to the student's parents or spouse, whichever paid his college expenses for tuition, books or fees. The credit does not cover room and board expenditures.

The credit, written into a multi-billion-dollar tax bill Thursday, would cost the U.S. treasury $1.1 billion a year when fully effective. No similar credit was contained in the House version of the tax bill.

The Senate also: —Approved a sweeping revision of the estate tax, which would reduce government revenues by $2 billion a year. The effect would be to exempt from the tax all but the richest 2 per cent of estates. Current law applies to the top 7 per cent. The House is considering similar legislation.

—Voted a $500-a-year tax credit, which is subtracted from taxes owed, to help athletes train for the U.S. Olympics or Pan-American games teams. Organizations that foster development of Olympic athletes would be assured tax-exempt status, and citizens who contribute to such groups would be allowed a tax deduction.

The young athletes would be allowed a credit of 20 per cent of the first $2,500 of training costs.

—Twice rejected efforts led by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, to kill the massive tax bill and retain only the provisions extending individual tax cuts through Dec. 31, 1977.

Once the Senate approves the overall bill, possibly tonight, a Senate-House conference committee must work out countless differences in the Senate's tax-revision package and one approved by the House last year.

Muskie, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, contended the bill is so full of special-interest provisions and "tax giveaways" that it threatens the new congressional budget-making process.

At one point in his battle with Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, Muskie vowed to quit the Budget Committee unless the Senate gave him a vote of confidence by trying harder to stick to the budget. He later told reporters this threat was a bit of oratorical exaggeration.

—Approved a new program allowing a worker to avoid taxation on the premiums paid by his employer for a group legal-service plan. This provision, if upheld by the House, could lead to widespread legal-aid plans in much the same way that firms now buy health insurance for their employees.

Before approving the $250-a-year tax credit for college or vocational-school students, the Senate rejected an alternative offered by Sen. James Buckley, Con-R-N.Y., that would have allowed a tax deduction for tuition paid to a private college or elementary or high school.

He said this would end discrimination against parents who pay education taxes even though their children attend private schools. He lost, 52 to 37.

Present law exempts from the estate tax the first $60,000 worth of a deceased person's property, and allows an additional $60,000 exemption if the property is willed to the surviving spouse.

The change voted by the Senate would replace the exemption with a gradually increasing credit. When fully effective in 1981, the credit would be $50,000, which would be equivalent to a $197,000 exemption. In addition, half the estate or $250,000, whichever is greater, could escape taxation if willed to the spouse.

Legislation pending in the House would make a similar change.

Mystery Disease Toll Slackening

to the convention. No deaths related to the disease were reported Tuesday, but two persons who had been ill for several days died Wednesday.

"There is a possibility that we will never find the answer," said Bachman, speaking of the cause for the outbreak. He promised to continue the investigation "for a year or two years if it is needed to get to the bottom of it."

Bachman said he believed some unidentified natural toxin which the victims came in contact with in Philadelphia may have caused the disease.

Eight persons from Philadelphia's community health department are conducting that search with the help of an expert from the Center for Disease Control.

"We have no suspicions, no clues," said Dr. David Soricelli, Philadelphia's deputy commissioner for community health. He added that the investigation will take at least three days and that no results are expected before Monday.

If the disease is the result of a toxin, Bachman said it would be a new one for him — "I'm not familiar with any toxin that through gaseous means or ingestion would cause this type of reaction."

Bachman also said he had discussed with public safety officials the possibility that a toxic substance may have been deliberately planted, but he discounted that possibility.

"It stretches my imagination to believe that there is any human capacity to create such a subtle and effective sabotage," he said.

Meanwhile, the virologists in the laboratories in Philadelphia and Atlanta have now ruled out most bacterial diseases, a fungus, plague and most exotic diseases as the source of the Pennsylvania outbreak.

When tests results were reported Thursday, the virus trackers added influenza — including swine flu — to the list of unlikely sources.

"I'm 99 per cent sure it's not a flu virus," said Dr. Jay Satz, the state Health Department's top virologist.

Riegle, Esch Square Off On Key Campaign Issues

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — U.S. Senate candidates Donald Riegle and Marvin Esch made it clear today that solving unemployment, curing the economy and reconstituting the government will be the key issues in their fall campaign.

Riegle, a Flint Democrat, and Esch, an Ann Arbor Republican, made their first joint appearance since their Tuesday primary election victories.

In a peppery exchange, the candidates rolled through a 25-minute interview taped for WKAR-TV at Michigan State University.

The men, both 10-year congressional veterans, said they wanted to stick with issues and avoid attacking each other personally. They said they would welcome a number of joint appearances between now and the Nov. 2 general election.

"I've always debated on the issues and never paid any attention to my opponent," Esch said. Riegle, asked if he would appear frequently with Esch, said:

"I sort of get bored listening to Marv in terms of my own ears," but that appearances could be arranged.

Esch said a comparison of the men's voting records will be an important part of the campaign, adding he has strived for a balance budget and tying tax reform to a balance budget.

"How does the rhetoric compare with the record?" Esch asked. Esch also said he was "one of the first seven or eight Republicans to speak out" against the Vietnam war.

Both candidates said the government bureaucracy is too big and muddles too much in the affairs of individuals and private industry. Both questioned a proposed Federal Trade Commission probe of the auto industry.

In attacking the federal bureaucracy Riegle aligned Esch with the Republican administration, which has controlled the executive branch since 1968. Esch branded Riegle as part of the Democratic establishment that has controlled Congress for years.

'Improper' Firing Claimed In Lawsuit

A former grounds superintendent for North Shore Memory Gardens in Hagar township has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court against the cemetery, seeking $25,000 damages for what he claims was an "improper" firing.

Man, Son Injured

NILES — A Watervliet man was hospitalized this morning after the car he was driving was struck head-on by a semi-trailer truck on US-31 south of Niles, according to state police at the Niles post.

Admitted to Pawling hospital, Niles, was James E. Williams, 39. He was reported in fair condition this morning. Troopers said Williams and his son, James Jr., 18, were southbound on US-31 about 6:15 a.m. when their car was struck head-on by a northbound semi driven by Steven J. Hosford, 24, Osceola, Ind. The younger Williams was treated and released from Pawling.

Hosford was ticketed for violation of the basic speed limit, officers said. The truck had swerved into the left lane to avoid an auto which had stopped to make a left hand turn, troopers said.

The suit contends Mott performed all services required under the contract but was still fired, and seeks the $25,000 for various losses he claims were incurred because his employment was terminated.

Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, Muskie vowed to quit the Budget Committee unless the Senate gave him a vote of confidence by trying harder to stick to the budget. He later told reporters this threat was a bit of oratorical exaggeration.

—Approved a new program allowing a worker to avoid taxation on the premiums paid by his employer for a group legal-service plan. This provision, if upheld by the House, could lead to widespread legal-aid plans in much the same way that firms now buy health insurance for their employees.

Before approving the $250-a-year tax credit for college or vocational-school students, the Senate rejected an alternative offered by Sen. James Buckley, Con-R-N.Y., that would have allowed a tax deduction for tuition paid to a private college or elementary or high school.

He said this would end discrimination against parents who pay education taxes even though their children attend private schools. He lost, 52 to 37.

Present law exempts from the estate tax the first $60,000 worth of a deceased person's property, and allows an additional $60,000 exemption if the property is willed to the surviving spouse.

The change voted by the Senate would replace the exemption with a gradually increasing credit. When fully effective in 1981, the credit would be $50,000, which would be equivalent to a $197,000 exemption. In addition, half the estate or $250,000, whichever is greater, could escape taxation if willed to the spouse.

Legislation pending in the House would make a similar change.

to the convention. No deaths related to the disease were reported Tuesday, but two persons who had been ill for several days died Wednesday.

"There is a possibility that we will never find the answer," said Bachman, speaking of the cause for the outbreak. He promised to continue the investigation "for a year or two years if it is needed to get to the bottom of it."

Bachman said he believed some unidentified natural toxin which the victims came in contact with in Philadelphia may have caused the disease.

Eight persons from Philadelphia's community health department are conducting that search with the help of an expert from the Center for Disease Control.

"We have no suspicions, no clues," said Dr. David Soricelli, Philadelphia's deputy commissioner for community health. He added that the investigation will take at least three days and that no results are expected before Monday.

If the disease is the result of a toxin, Bachman said it would be a new one for him — "I'm not familiar with any toxin that through gaseous means or ingestion would cause this type of reaction."

Bachman also said he had discussed with public safety officials the possibility that a toxic substance may have been deliberately planted, but he discounted that possibility.

"It stretches my imagination to believe that there is any human capacity to create such a subtle and effective sabotage," he said.

Meanwhile, the virologists in the laboratories in Philadelphia and Atlanta have now ruled out most bacterial diseases, a fungus, plague and most exotic diseases as the source of the Pennsylvania outbreak.

When tests results were reported Thursday, the virus trackers added influenza — including swine flu — to the list of unlikely sources.

"I'm 99 per cent sure it's not a flu virus," said Dr. Jay Satz, the state Health Department's top virologist.

CHARGE PRESSURE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three military lawyers say their assigned duties defending cadets involved in West Point's cheating scandal have resulted in pressures from superiors and derogatory statements that could follow them throughout their careers.

The increase would pay the wages of 1,000 dog wardens to round up strays, enforce the law against sidewalk fouling and check on licenses.

Riegle, Esch Square Off On Key Campaign Issues

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)

— U.S. Senate candidates Donald Riegle and Marvin Esch made it clear today that solving unemployment, curing the economy and reconstituting the government will be the key issues in their fall campaign.

Riegle, a Flint Democrat, and Esch, an Ann Arbor Republican, made their first joint appearance since their Tuesday primary election victories.

In a peppery exchange, the candidates rolled through a 25-minute interview taped for WKAR-TV at Michigan State University.

The men, both 10-year congressional veterans, said they wanted to stick with issues and avoid attacking each other personally. They said they would welcome a number of joint appearances between now and the Nov. 2 general election.

"I've always debated on the issues and never paid any attention to my opponent," Esch said. Riegle, asked if he would appear frequently with Esch, said:

"I sort of get bored listening to Marv in terms of my own ears," but that appearances could be arranged.

Esch said a comparison of the men's voting records will be an important part of the campaign, adding he has strived for a balance budget and tying tax reform to a balance budget.

"How does the rhetoric compare with the record?" Esch asked.

Esch also said he was "one of the first seven or eight Republicans to speak out" against the Vietnam war.

Both candidates said the government bureaucracy is too big and meddles too much in the affairs of individuals and private industry. Both questioned a proposed Federal Trade Commission probe of the auto industry.

In attacking the federal bureaucracy Riegle aligned Esch with the Republican administration, which has controlled the executive branch since 1968. Esch branded Riegle as part of the Democratic establishment that has controlled Congress for years.

'Improper' Firing Claimed In Lawsuit

Man, Son Injured

NILES — A Watervliet man was hospitalized this morning after the car he was driving was struck head-on by a semi-trailer truck on US-31 south of Niles, according to state police at the Niles post.

Admitted to Pawating hospital, Niles, was James E. Williams, 39. He was reported in fair condition this morning.

Troopers said Williams and his son, James Jr., 18, were southbound on US-31 about 6:15 a.m. when their car was struck head-on by a northbound semi driven by Steven J. Hosford, 24, Osceola, Ind. The younger Williams was treated and released from Pawating.

Hosford was ticketed for violation of the basic speed limit, officers said. The truck had swerved into the left lane to avoid an auto which had stopped to make a left hand turn, troopers said.

township has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court against the cemetery, seeking $25,000 damages for what he claims was an "improper" firing.

The plaintiff, Albert Mott, of Otsego, claims he accepted "lifetime employment" as grounds superintendent in May, 1974. Mott contends Frank F. Loomis, III, president of the cemetery corporation, offered an annual salary of $10,000, and that he would be given a rent-free home, as well as paid hospital and insurance benefits.

Mott claims he sold his home in Paw Paw at less than market value to take the new job, but was fired by Loomis in April, 1975, and was forced to move from the home provided by the cemetery.

The suit contends Mott performed all services required under the contract but was still fired, and seeks the $25,000 for various losses he claims were incurred because his employment was terminated.

Ross Field Schedules Celebration

Airplane and helicopter rides, skydivers, World War II planes and Miss Michigan will feature National Aviation Day observance at Ross field Sunday, Aug. 22, according to Ronald Momany, Twin Cities airport manager.

Momany yesterday presented details of the event at a meeting of representatives of businesses, industries and civic groups who have contributed to the program to which the public is invited.

Momany, who has coordinated the plans for the event, said it is the first of its kind at Ross field. He said the purpose of the program is to stimulate interest in aviation and build community support for the airport.

Momany said, "The original purpose of National Aviation Day, which always falls the weekend after Orville Wright's birthday on Aug. 19, was to honor American aviation heroes. Over the years this purpose has been broadened to include stimulation of interest in aviation and to reflect development and progress in aviation."

Momany said the program at Ross field has been in the planning stages since April. He said it will cost about $2,000 to put on the program, with most of the money contributed by private sources.

A tentative schedule of events is as follows:

—There will be a pancake breakfast that will start at 7 a.m. sponsored by the Taildraggers flying club at the Alpha hangar.

—Airplane and helicopter rides will begin at 8 a.m.

—There will be skydiving at 10 a.m. and noon.

—Miss Michigan, Diane Kaye Hanson, of Berrien Center, will arrive by plane at 10:30 a.m. She will serve as official hostess for the event.

—The "War Birds", a group of World War II planes, will be flown at 11 a.m. and again at 3 p.m.

—A demonstration of remote controlled model airplanes is scheduled at 1 p.m.

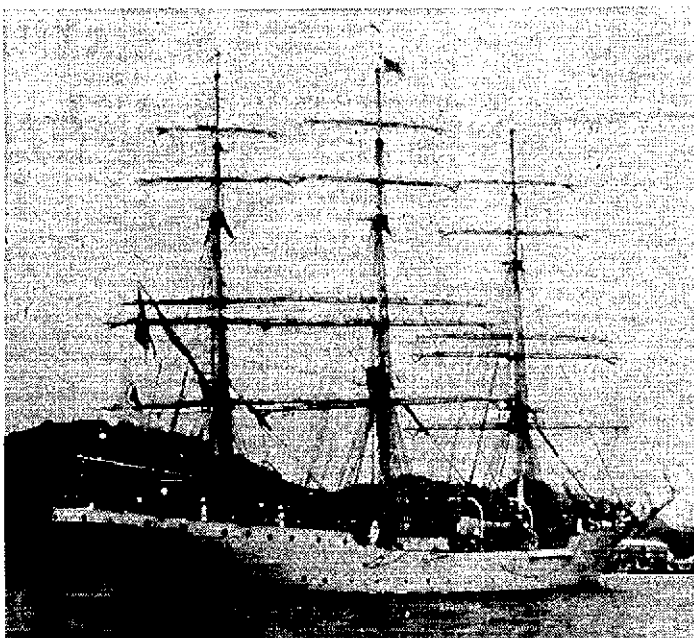

Other events include an open house at the terminal. Miss Benton Harbor and Miss St. Joseph will be assisting at the terminal. There will be a number of military, recreational, experimental and antique aircraft on display on one of the runways. Momany said the program will last until 5:30 p.m.

Momany said he also is trying to line up a demonstration of a hot air balloon.

U.P. Cool To Food Stamps

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Less than 30 per cent of Upper Peninsula residents eligible for food stamps participate in the program, according to the Department of Social Services. About 68,000 of the U.P.'s 342,000 residents are considered eligible for food stamps. But the latest figures available show only 20,000 were enrolled in the program during April. Statewide, about 1.2 million persons are eligible for food stamps, and about half participate in the program, records show. Keweenaw has the lowest participation rate among the U.P. counties. Only 17 per cent, or 181 persons, of those eligible receive food stamps. The participation rate in Chippewa County is 24 per cent and Houghton and Dickinson counties both have 25 per cent rates. The highest rate is in Baraga County where 66 per cent of those eligible, or 1,000 persons, receive food stamps. Ontonagon County has 54 per cent and Lake County 50 per cent.

Apple Growers Asking Triple 1975 Prices

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Michigan apple marketers yesterday announced asking prices for this year's short apple crop that in some cases are three times higher than processors paid last fall.

As a further indication of their confidence in this short-crop year, members of the marketing committee of the Michigan Processing Apple Growers want to charge interest to processors who don't pay cash for the crop.

Thomas Butler, manager of the Growers, said asking prices are $10 per hundredweight for Northern Spys, $8.75 per hundredweight for "preferred" slicing varieties and $8 per hundredweight for sauce apples.

With the exception of Jonathans, the prices are for apples of US 1 processing grade, sized 2½ inches or larger. Jonathans will be sold on a 2½-inch-up basis, according to the proposed schedule. A price of $4 per hundredweight is asked for juice apples and apples smaller than 2½ inches, Butler said.

The proposed prices will be submitted to processors today. Growers and processors have until Sept. 20 to voluntarily agree on terms of sale for the crop. After that, binding arbitration under the state agricultural bargaining act will be mandatory.

Unlike past years, the committee has not said which varieties of apples belong in the "preferred" and "sauce" categories, said Butler. The omission wasn't explained.

The asking prices are based on a 1978 Michigan apple crop that the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) estimated would be 11.9 million bushels. Last year's crop in the state was 17.1 million bushels, according to USDA figures.

Last fall, after a deadlock in price negotiations under the Michigan Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Act was broken, processors agreed to pay $3.25 per hundredweight for Spys, $3 per hundredweight for slicers, $2.25 per hundredweight for sauce apples and $1.75 per hundredweight for juice apples, Butler recalled.

It was stated last year that the large apple crop in New York — much of which is processed and competes with Michigan apples — helped to force down prices here.

Butler said yesterday that this year's crops in New York, Pennsylvania and other processing apple states are expected to be relatively small. With short crops expected in Michigan and in the East, Butler called the current asking prices "realistic."

He added that although prices in Michigan were low last fall, processors continued to bid up the prices as apples came from storage into the open market. The Spy price went as high as $9 and Jonathans peaked at $7.25, he said.

The asking prices are "FOB the farm," which means processors would have to pay to move the apples to the plant, Butler said.

Another bargaining point this year is that the processor pay cash for the apples within 30 days of delivery. An interest charge of 1½ per cent per month would be added to money owed to the grower if he wasn't paid within the 30 days, Butler said.

Miss Jackson said state Rep. George Cushingberry Jr., D-Detroit, has agreed to introduce legislation when the House reconvenes this fall to allow building and operation of the track. Detroit

When asked if charging interest is an item that can be negotiated under the state bargaining act, Butler replied "Can a chemical company do it to a grower?" He said that growers are commonly charged a 1½ per cent rate.

Mayor's Vote Is Tie-Breaker In Three Oaks

By DORIS ADAMS

Three Oaks Correspondent THREE OAKS — An ordinance regulating parking in the village was adopted by the Three Oaks village council during last night's regular meeting.

Herbert Klinedinst, village president, cast the deciding vote after councilmen voted to a 3-3 tie.

Councilmen voting against were Harold Heckathorn, Mrs. Hannah Noble and Richard Woolley.

Voting in favor were Councilmen Dennis Grosse, Chester Decker and Ronald Mason.

The measure calls for a two-hour parking limit on Elm street between Ash and Sycamore streets; on Maple, between Elm and Cherry; and on Linden between St. John's United church property and Oak street.

In addition, no overnight parking will be allowed on any street or village parking lot between 2 and 6 a.m. Any person convicted of a violation of the ordinance will face a fine of not more than $100 or not more than 90 days in jail.

The ordinance is to go into effect as soon as notices are posted. In other action, the low bid of $6,297, submitted by Burns Construction Co., Macy, Ind., for construction of a metal pole building to be used for storage by the village street department was accepted.

Work on the building is expected to start in two weeks. Funds for the project are to come from federal revenue sharing money.

A bid of $6,150, submitted by Edward Drier of Three Oaks, for the old village garage on West Linden street was also accepted. It was the only bid received.

J.S. Wolfe, building inspector, was granted permission to issue a building permit to Wallace Lowery to construct a new home on Tulip drive at Indiana street.

A reciprocal aid agreement presented by Fire Chief James Flick was accepted. The agreement outlines provisions for the fire department to aid other area departments when needed and for the village to receive aid when needed.

The Disabled American Veterans (DAV) chapter of Stevensville was granted permission to sell forget-me-nots in the village Aug. 20.

Black Syndicate Aims To Build Race Track

DETROIT (AP) — A group of black business people announced plans Thursday to build a multimillion-dollar horse racing track in Detroit, if they can get state legislative approval. Sponsors said it would be the first black-owned and operated race track in the country. Dr. Jeanne Jackson, board chairwoman of the recently formed Detroit Downs Racing Corp. and owner of a thoroughbred racing stable, said the corporation tentatively plans to build the track at the Michigan State Fairgrounds. Miss Jackson said the track would employ hundreds of people and bring an estimated $7 million annually into the city. However, the project first must be approved by the Michigan Legislature because there already are the legal limit of two tracks in the area — Hazel Park Race Track and the Detroit Race Course.

Miss Jackson said state Rep. George Cushingberry Jr., D-Detroit, has agreed to introduce legislation when the House reconvenes this fall to allow building and operation of the track. Detroit city council almost approve the track. Plans call for the facility to operate in the winter, during the same months as the Windsor, Ont., Raceway. Hazel Park and DRC operate in the summer.

The corporation estimates it will take three years and up to $25 million to build the facility once it gains state and city approval. But Miss Jackson said Detroit Downs races could be held at the Hazel Park or DRC in the interim, through a rental agreement. The corporation hopes to begin its first racing season in 1977.

Apple Growers Asking Triple 1975 Prices

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Michigan apple marketers yesterday announced asking prices for this year's short apple crop that in some cases are three times higher than processors paid last fall.

As a further indication of their confidence in this short-crop year, members of the marketing committee of the Michigan Processing Apple Growers want to charge interest to processors who don't pay cash for the crop.

Thomas Butler, manager of the Growers, said asking prices are $10 per hundredweight for Northern Spys, $8.75 per hundredweight for "preferred" slicing varieties and $8 per hundredweight for sauce apples.

With the exception of Jonathans, the prices are for apples of US 1 processing grade, sized 2½ inches or larger. Jonathans will be sold on a 2½-inch-up basis, according to the proposed schedule. A price of $4 per hundredweight is asked for juice apples and apples smaller than 2½ inches, Butler said.

The proposed prices will be submitted to processors today. Growers and processors have until Sept. 20 to voluntarily agree on terms of sale for the crop. After that, binding arbitration under the state agricultural bargaining act will be mandatory.

Unlike past years, the committee has not said which varieties of apples belong in the "preferred" and "sauce" categories, said Butler. The omission wasn't explained.

The asking prices are based on a 1976 Michigan apple crop that the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) estimated would be 11.9 million bushels. Last year's crop in the state was 17.1 million bushels, according to USDA figures.

Last fall, after a deadlock in price negotiations under the Michigan Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Act was broken, processors agreed to pay $3.25 per hundredweight for Spys, $3 per hundredweight for slicers, $2.25 per hundredweight for sauce apples and $1.75 per hundredweight for juice apples, Butler recalled.

It was stated last year that the large apple crop in New York — much of which is processed and competes with Michigan apples — helped to force down prices here.

Butler said yesterday that this year's crops in New York, Pennsylvania and other processing apple states are expected to be relatively small. With short crops expected in Michigan and in the East, Butler called the current asking prices "realistic."

He added that although prices in Michigan were low last fall, processors continued to bid up the prices as apples came from storage into the open market. The Spy price went as high as $9 and Jonathans peaked at $7.25, he said.

The asking prices are "FOB the farm," which means processors would have to pay to move the apples to the plant, Butler said.

Another bargaining point this year is that the processor pay cash for the apples within 30 days of delivery. An interest charge of 1½ per cent per month would be added to money owed to the grower if he wasn't paid within the 30 days, Butler said.

When asked if charging interest is an item that can be negotiated under the state bargaining act, Butler replied "Can a chemical company do it to a grower?" He said that growers are commonly charged a 1½ per cent rate.

Mayor's Vote Is Tie-Breaker In Three Oaks

By DORIS ADAMS
Three Oaks Correspondent

THREE OAKS — An ordinance regulating parking in the village was adopted by the Three Oaks village council during last night's regular meeting.

Herbert Klinedinst, village president, cast the deciding vote after councilmen voted to a 3-3 tie.

Councilmen voting against were Harold Heckathorn, Mrs. Hannah Noble and Richard Wooley.

Voting in favor were Councilmen Dennis Grosse, Chester Decker and Ronald Mason.

The measure calls for a two-hour parking limit on Elm street between Ash and Sycamore streets; on Maple, between Elm and Cherry; and on Linden between St. John's United church property and Oak street.

In addition, no overnight parking will be allowed on any street or village parking lot between 2 and 6 a.m. Any person convicted of a violation of the ordinance will face a fine of not more than $100 or not more than 90 days in jail.

The ordinance is to go into effect as soon as notices are posted. In other action, the low bid of $6,297, submitted by Burns Construction Co., Macy, Ind., for construction of a metal pole building to be used for storage by the village street department was accepted.

Work on the building is expected to start in two weeks. Funds for the project are to come from federal revenue sharing money.

A bid of $6,150, submitted by Edward Drier of Three Oaks, for the old village garage on West Linden street was also accepted. It was the only bid received.

J.S. Wolfe, building inspector, was granted permission to issue a building permit to Wallace Lowery to construct a new home on Tulip drive at Indiana street.

A reciprocal aid agreement presented by Fire Chief James Flick was accepted. The agreement outlines provisions for the fire department to aid other area departments when needed and for the village to receive aid when needed.

Black Syndicate Aims To Build Race Track

DETROIT (AP) — A group of black business people announced plans Thursday to build a multimillion-dollar horse racing track in Detroit, if they can get state legislative approval. Sponsors said it would be the first black-owned and operated race track in the country. Dr. Joanne Jackson, board chairwoman of the recently formed Detroit Downs Racing Corp. and owner of a thoroughbred racing stable, said the corporation tentatively plans to build the track at the Michigan State Fairgrounds. Miss Jackson said the track would employ hundreds of people and bring an estimated $7 million annually into the city. However, the project first must be approved by the Michigan Legislature because there already are the legal limit of two tracks in the area — Hazel Park Race Track and the Detroit Race Course.

Miss Jackson said state Rep. George Cushingberry Jr., D-Detroit, has agreed to introduce legislation when the House reconvenes this fall to allow building and operation of the track. Detroit city council almost approve the track. Plans call for the facility to operate in the winter, during the same months as the Windsor, Ont., Raceway. Hazel Park and DRC operate in the summer.

The corporation estimates it will take three years and up to $25 million to build the facility once it gains state and city approval. But Miss Jackson said Detroit Downs races could be held at the Hazel Park or DRC in the interim, through a rental agreement. The corporation hopes to begin its first racing season in 1977.

Amateur Field Blitzes Point Ten Broeck Takes Lead

LANCE TEN BROECK
Second Round Leader

By JOHN VANDEN HEED
Sports Editor

Lance Ten Broeck and his fellow collegians are rapidly erasing any doubts about this week's Western Amateur field being on a par with past years.

Ten Broeck, a 20-year-old from Chicago who plays for the University of Texas, posted one of the eight sub-par rounds recorded Thursday while taking the second round lead at Point O'Woods Golf & Country Club.

The Sweet 16 player from a year ago posted a 70 to go with Wednesday's round of 71 for a 141 and a commanding three-stroke lead on the demanding par 72, 6,968-yard Benton Harbor course.

But while Ten Broeck was jumping out front in the race for today's medalist honors and the Cameron Eddy Trophy which goes with the distinction, the competition was fierce elsewhere as the original 183-man field was cut to 50 Thursday. It took a 151, which matches the lowest first cut score in the history of the Western Am at the Point, to get into today's 36 holes of competition.

And more scrambling was expected today, because this evening the field will be sliced to the Sweet 16 for match play Saturday and Sunday. Based on the results of the first 36 holes, it will take a 286 to get into the Sweet 16 — a tally which would be next to the lowest in eight-year history on the Am links.

Standing three strokes behind Ten Broeck starting today's double round which started at 8:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. were NCAA champion Scott Simpson of San Diego, Calif., and Big Ten winner Ralph Guarasci of Columbus, Ohio.

Guarasci, a 19-year-old who played in his Ohio State Buckeye "uniform," and Jim Blair of Orem, Utah, this year's Western Athletic Conference champion, posted 68s Thursday for the low rounds so far in the tournament.

Eddie Mudd of Louisville, Ky., the first round leader with a 70, posted a 77 Thursday while slipping six strokes behind Ten Broeck, who was second on opening day.

Ten Broeck, who played in the same threesome as the tobacco chewing and spitting Mudd, just had to quip, "I played with him two days and he didn't get me once."

And Ten Broeck was eagerly awaiting the chance today at the tournament's medalist honors. "I like 36 hole days," he declared. "I play better in the afternoon. You are looser and you are warmed up."

But the 6-2, 180-pound long hitter had to change his sleeping habits for today's action. He slept for 13½ hours Wednesday night and didn't get up until noon Thursday.

Ten Broeck said he has played "awful ever since last November to last month," but Thursday he got an eagle on No. 15 with a 40-foot putt, birdies on 4 and 13 and bogeys on 11 and 18 in his 35-35-70 round. He also missed the fairways with drives on No. 13, 14, 16 and 18 but still played the holes two under.

The Texas junior-to-be says a change in grip has helped his game recover. Just last week, he won the Chicago District Tourney.

Guarasci, a "100 per cent Italian" who learned all his golf from his father, Frank, a former club pro, got his 68 with eagles on No. 3 and 8 (a 135-yard shot), birdies on 9, 14 and 15 and bogeys on 2, 10 and 16.

"I got it four under just trying to play for par," noted the 19-year-old. "If you try to make birdies or try to charge on this course, you will shoot millions."

Blair, who was about the fifth man on the Brigham Young team which was runner up in the NCAA tourney in June, got his 68 with birdies on No. 3, 7, 8, 15, 17, plus a bogey on No. 9.

"I'm really playing good," said the first-time Western Am player. "I missed just one green."

Others posting sub-par rounds Thursday with Ten Broeck, Guarasci and Blair were Simpson (70), Scott Hoch of Raleigh, N.C. (70), David Edwards of Edmond, Okla. (70), Peter Jacobsen of Portland, Ore. (71) and Buddy Gardner of Montgomery, Ala. (71). And all made Thursday's cut.

There were a total of eight Sweet 16 players from 1975 in this year's tourney, and six made Thursday's cut. Getting through with Ten Broeck was Randy Simmons (50 score), of Shoreport, La., a teammate of Ten Broeck's at Texas and a finalist in last year's Western Am. Others were Bob Byman (148) of Raleigh, N.C., an All-American from Wake Forest; Jacobsen, an All-American from the University of Oregon; Mike Reid (146) of Kirkland, Wash., an All-American from Brigham Young, and Fred Ridley (150) of Winter Haven, Fla.

Western Amateur Highlight For Reid

By JOHN VANDEN HEED
Sports Editor

It's been a year of extreme ups and downs for Mike Reid, the first round U.S. Open leader and that prestigious tourney's overall low amateur.

And, fortunately for southwestern Michigan golf fans, the Western Amateur here this week at Point O'Woods Golf & Country Club appears to be one of the Kirkland, Wash., golfer's summer highlights.

Reid, the son of a retired Air Force colonel, earned All-American honors for the third straight time this year, but his Brigham Young team finished second to Oklahoma State in the NCAA golf tourney in June.

The 21-year-old then went to the U.S. Open later in June, where the publicity temporarily ruined his golf game.

The six-foot, 150-pounder then took some time off from golf, went fishing and got his head back on straight.

Reid was tied for sixth on rounds of 73-73-146 going into today's final 36 holes of medal play and stood an excellent chance of repeating as a Sweet 16 competitor for match play Saturday and Sunday.

Reid says the U.S. Open publicity has "been like a millstone around my neck...It's been haunting sometimes...like a player who gets a hole-in-one, it has taken a little while to settle down."

After the U.S. Open, Reid did have another good tourney with a second in the Washington State Open. But he followed with two bad ones — the Colorado Open and the Trans-Mississippi.

Reid recalls getting newspaper clippings on the U.S. Open two to three weeks after the event from friends. And the articles didn't help him remember he was still a struggling amateur.

"It's been a real challenge for me to play within myself," says Reid. "I've just had to calm myself down and kind of pull the pieces together." Reid got it together by going back to Washington and doing some fishing...he and his brother caught about 70 bass, perch and crappies one day.

"This is one tournament that I didn't want to come into feeling mentally run out," continued Reid, while adding, "I don't think I would have been able to play so well two weeks ago."

While Reid has been getting his game together, he also has been trying to help his former Brigham Young teammates regain some pride by upstaging the NCAA champion Oklahoma State players here in the Western Amateur.

All five of the BYU players made the first cut Thursday with Reid and John Fought (who shared low am honors in the Open with Reid) at 146, Jim Blair 147, Jim Nelford 149 and Mike Brannon 151.

Surviving for Oklahoma State

were Jaime Gonzalez (143), Britt Harrison (150), Dave Edwards (150) and Lindy Miller (151). Tom Jones, a Sweet 16 player here in 1974, had a 152 and missed the cut by one stroke.

Interestingly, Scott Simpson, the individual NCAA champ, is still alive at 144.

But unfortunately, Reid, who was fifth individually in the NCAA and was named BYU's outstanding senior athlete, is making his last Western Am appearance.

The public relations major has graduated from college and now plans to turn professional in September after the U.S. Amateur is over. He plans to play on the Australian and New Zealand tours before trying for his PGA card in December.

"I have some opportunities and some people interested," says Reid of possible pro sponsors. "It's just a matter of hammering out the details."

Knowing that Reid will be gone from the area scene after the Western Amateur must leave southwestern Michigan golf fans with a "down" feeling.

Clubs Eye Blazer Players Pistons Pick Barnes In Dispersal Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the National Basketball Association has held its dispersal draft, a number of NBA teams might think it only fair that the Portland Trail Blazers hold one of their own.

If they did, the Trail Blazers probably would collect almost as much for their two front lines alone as the NBA took in for the 12 American Basketball Association players selected Thursday.

For example, how much do you think other NBA teams would fork over if they could take home Bill Walton or Sidney Wicks or Moses Malone or Maurice Lucas? Lloyd Neal would not come cheap either, and no doubt someone would pay a few shekels for former No. 1 draft pick Larue Martin and current No. 1 draft pick Wally Walker.

All but Walker, who has yet to sign, belong to the Trail Blazers now after they selected Lucas and Malone in the telephone draft conducted at the NBA league office here.

They had to trade All-Star guard Geoff Petrie, the last original player from Portland's 1970 expansion club to Atlanta with reserve Steve Hawes to get Atlanta's No. 2 selection spot in the draft.

But it appears there are NBA general managers willing to send Portland adequate replacements in the following days and weeks if the Trail Blazers will part with some of their big men.

Veteran 6-8 forward Sidney Wicks once again found himself a big name in the trade rumor mill and there also was speculation that Malone would not be with the Blazers for long. Portland probably will get its money's worth after shelling out $50,000 for the 6-10 Malone and $300,000 for the 6-8 Lucas, two of the ABA's bright young stars last season with St. Louis and Kentucky, respectively.

With the prices for the players pre-determined, only the Chicago Bulls dropped more in the kitty. They paid $1.1 million for 7-2 center Artis Gilmore of Kentucky, the top prize in the draft, which was still another step toward completing the merger agreement between the NBA and ABA.

Chicago had the first selection by virtue of its won-lost record last year, the worst of any of the 18 NBA teams or the four ABA teams that will be part of the merger this season.

The other high-priced selections were guard Ron Boone of St. Louis, picked No. 3 by Kansas City for $50,000; forward Marvin Barnes of St. Louis, selected No. 4 by Detroit for $300,000, and guard Bird Averitt of Kentucky, picked No. 8 by Buffalo for $125,000. Buffalo swapped picks with Milwaukee and threw in a second-round draft pick next spring to get a shot at Averitt.

In all, 12 of the 29 available players from the St. Louis and Kentucky franchises were selected — all but one on the first of the three rounds of the draft — and the teams paid a total of $2,832,750 for them. The money will be used to cover obligations to ABA players, the Kentucky and St. Louis franchises and those NBA teams which gave up original draft rights to the players involved.

The eight players not selected become free agents.

Western Amateur Highlight For Reid

By JOHN VANDEN HEED
Sports Editor

It's been a year of extreme ups and downs for Mike Reid, the first round U.S. Open leader and that prestigious tourney's overall low amateur.

And, fortunately for southwestern Michigan golf fans, the Western Amateur here this week at Point O'Woods Golf & Country Club appears to be one of the Kirkland, Wash., golfer's summer highlights.

Reid, the son of a retired Air Force colonel, earned All-American honors for the third straight time this year, but his Brigham Young team finished second to Oklahoma State in the NCAA golf tourney in June.

The 21-year-old then went to the U.S. Open later in June, where the publicity temporarily ruined his golf game.

The six-foot, 150-pounder then took some time off from golf, went fishing and got his head back on straight.

Reid was tied for sixth on rounds of 73-73-146 going into today's final 36 holes of medal play and stood an excellent chance of repeating as a Sweet 16 competitor for match play Saturday and Sunday.

Reid says the U.S. Open publicity has "been like a millstone around my neck...it's been haunting sometimes...like a player who gets a hole-in-one, it has taken a little while to settle down."

After the U.S. Open, Reid did have another good tourney with a second in the Washington State Open. But he followed with two bad ones — the Colorado Open and the Trans-Mississippi.

Reid recalls getting newspaper clippings on the U.S. Open two to three weeks after the event from friends. And the articles didn't help him remember he was still a struggling amateur.

"It's been a real challenge for me to play within myself," says Reid. "I've just had to calm myself down and kind of pull the pieces together." Reid got it together by going back to Washington and doing some fishing...he and his brother caught about 70 bass, perch and crappies one day.

"This is one tournament that I didn't want to come into feeling mentally run out," continued Reid, while adding, "I don't think I would have been able to play so well two weeks ago."

While Reid has been getting his game together, he also has been trying to help his former Brigham Young teammates regain some pride by upstaging the NCAA champion Oklahoma State players here in the Western Amateur.

All five of the BYU players made the first cut Thursday with Reid and John Fought (who shared low am honors in the Open with Reid) at 146, Jim Blair 147, Jim Nelford 149 and Mike Brannon 151.

Surviving for Oklahoma State

were Jaime Gonzalez (145), Britt Harrison (150), Dave Edwards (150) and Lindy Miller (151). Tom Jones, a Sweet 16 player here in 1974, had a 152 and missed the cut by one stroke.

Interestingly, Scott Simpson, the individual NCAA champ, is still alive at 144.

But unfortunately, Reid, who was fifth individually in the NCAA and was named BYU's outstanding senior athlete, is making his last Western Am appearance.

The public relations major has graduated from college and now plans to turn professional in September after the U.S. Amateur is over. He plans to play on the Australian and New Zealand tours before trying for his PGA card in December.

"I have some opportunities and some people interested," says Reid of possible pro sponsors. "It's just a matter of hammering out the details."

Knowing that Reid will be gone from the area scene after the Western Amateur must leave southwestern Michigan golf fans with a "down" feeling.

Clubs Eye Blazer Players Pistons Pick Barnes In Dispersal Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the National Basketball Association has held its dispersal draft, a number of NBA teams might think it only fair that the Portland Trail Blazers hold one of their own.

If they did, the Trail Blazers probably would collect almost as much for their two front lines alone as the NBA took in for the 12 American Basketball Association players selected Thursday.

For example, how much do you think other NBA teams would fork over if they could take home Bill Walton or Sidney

Wicks or Moses Malone or Maurice Lucas? Lloyd Neal would not come cheap either, and no doubt someone would pay a few shekels for former No. 1 draft pick Larue Martin and current No. 1 draft pick Wally Walker.

All but Walker, who has yet to sign, belong to the Trail Blazers now after they selected Lucas and Malone in the telephone draft conducted at the NBA league office here.

They had to trade All-Star guard Geoff Petrie, the last original player from Portland's 1970 expansion club to Atlanta with reserve Steve Hawes to get Atlanta's No. 2 selection spot in the draft.

But it appears there are NBA general managers willing to send Portland adequate replacements in the following days and weeks if the Trail Blazers will part with some of their big men.

Veteran 6-9 forward Sidney Wicks once again found himself a big name in the trade rumor mill and there also was speculation that Malone would not be with the Blazers for long. Portland probably will get its money's worth after shelling out $350,000 for the 6-10 Malone and $300,000 for the 6-9 Lucas, two of the ABA's bright young stars last season with St. Louis and Kentucky, respectively.

With the prices for the players pre-determined, only the Chicago Bulls dropped more in to the kitty. They paid $1.1 million for 7-2 center Artis Gilmore of Kentucky, the top prize in the draft, which was still another step toward completing the merger agreement between the NBA and ABA.

Chicago had the first selection by virtue of its won-lost record last year, the worst of any of the 18 NBA teams or the four ABA teams that will be part of the merger this season.

The other high-priced selections were guard Ron Boone of St. Louis, picked No. 3 by Kansas City for $50,000; forward Marvin Barnes of St. Louis, selected No. 4 by Detroit for $50,000, and guard Bird Averitt of Kentucky, picked No. 8 by Buffalo for $125,000. Buffalo swapped picks with Milwaukee and threw in a second-round draft pick next spring to get a shot at Averitt.

In all, 12 of the 20 available players from the St. Louis and Kentucky franchises were selected — all but one on the first of the three rounds of the draft — and the teams paid a total of $2,832,750 for them. The money will be used to cover obligations to ABA players, the Kentucky and St. Louis franchises and those NBA teams which gave up original draft rights to the players involved.

The eight players not selected become free agents.

'Woodpeeperbile' Would Cage Mean 'Ole Woody

By AL MAC LEESE
FLINT, Mich. (AP) — All Michiganites worthy of the name are — or should be — incensed by Woody Hayes' two most recent outbursts. After all, what are outbursts for but to create outrage?

Hayes, who directs the savage onslaughts of the Ohio State University football team, most recently assaulted Michigan's sensibilities at a Big Ten football kickoff luncheon in Chicago last week.

For openness, he admitted that he had lashed to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) about recruiting violations committed by Michigan State University football officials.

(Persons who turn in other persons to "authorities" are known by various names. Such usages as "snitch," "fink," "stool pigeon" and "informant" come to mind.)

Woody, one of the titanic figures of our era, cannot be classified with such shopworn words. I suggest the words "woodpeeper" or "woodsneak."

But Hayes' second outburst — an alleged one — is of greatest concern because it falls under the category of atrocities that can be dealt with constructively.

Bob Page, sports reporter for Detroit radio station WJR, contends that the Woodpeeper slapped him and attempted to throttle down questions formulated by Ed Ronderos, sports editor of MSU's student newspaper. Page says the Woodpeeper's throttling down of Ronderos was physical but other reports from Chicago have it that the Woodpeeper merely seemed to attempt to slap and throttle as a result of bothersome questions.

Whatever occurred, the incident is just another example of the Woodpeeper's shabby treatment of fearful newshounds. When Woody wins a game, he may talk to reporters. When he loses, he may not talk to reporters. Either response is objectionable. But since the Woodpeeper apparently will be around until the next Ice Age, we must find a way to protect reporters from the Woodpeeper and, incidentally, the Woodpeeper from MSU and University of Michigan fans during autumnal rites. Too, we can protect the Woodpeeper from himself.

My solution is that the Woodpeeper be enclosed in a cage on wheels before, during and after football contests.

I have in mind a vehicle similar to those that enclose lions and tigers and bears. This contrivance could be called a Woodpeeperbile. Not only would it prevent clashes but one can just imagine the publicity that would accrue to OSU after it unveils the vehicle.

Since the Woodpeeperbile has wheels, the Woodpeeper would not be hampered much in his coaching duties while his and some other coach's thundering berds are gaumphing around the gridiron.

Assistant coaches and sturdy benchwarmers could combine to push and shove the Woodpeeperbile up and down the sidelines while sackers and ravagers sack and ravage.

The Woodpeeper would be free to signal, gesture, wave his arms and scratch himself. He would, of course, be wired to maintain contact with those coaches who are not industriously hauling him hither (enemy territory) and Yon (home territory).

Many persons, while they may favor my proposal, probably doubt that it can be implemented. Enclosing a Big Ten coach in a cage could be considered a violation of his civil rights.

This is arrant nonsense. If the Big Ten and the NCAA favor this suggestion, the Woodpeeper would not utter a peep. He has proven his loyalty to those bodies — one need only cite his peepery and sneaky concerning officials at MSU.

It should be firmly stipulated, however, that the NCAA see to it that reporters and fans and other hostiles do not take advantage of the Woodpeeper while he is in his Woodpeeperbile.

There are people, even in the media, who would, given the opportunity, taunt and jeer at a person in a cage. Some persons have been known to prod engaged people with sticks and hurl things into such enclosures.

This should not be tolerated. If the NCAA enacts my proposal I will insist upon protection for the Woodpeeper. Elsewise, I withdraw the idea.

One other thing. Newcomers to Michigan — as well as residents of Ohio — should not think that my proposal smacks of barbarism.

History has given us examples of states and nations that allowed their citizens special dispensation to avidly dislike certain historic figures. For example, special dispensations were issued to citizens of territories occupied by Genghis Khan and Attila the Hun.

So it is in Michigan regarding Woody Hayes. In fact, many Michiganites would not trade the unlust tract in Clio for the whole state of Ohio.

Lakeshore, South Haven Fall In Mack Districts

Rod Austin pitched a seven-hitter Thursday as Decatur beat Lakeshore-Legion 5-3 in the Connie Mack district tournament at Portage.

Holland eliminated South Haven Legion 9-1 in the Wyoming district Thursday.

Austin fanned five in helping Decatur advance into Friday's 3:15 p.m. contest. Lakeshore will play in the loser's bracket at 1 p.m.

Steve Rennhack took the loss for Lakeshore, despite allowing just three hits, striking out eight and not walking anyone. Six Lakeshore errors proved to be their undoing.

Mike Cochran slammed two doubles and single and Jeff Caple added a pair of triples for the winners. Rennhack collected a pair of RBIs.

South Haven could come up with just three hits in falling to Holland. The local team's only run came in the third when Duane Regalla and Ken Cullum walked and Brad Dickerson singled to load the bases. Jerry Canale then singled in the only run for the losers.

Lakeshore East, Buchanan Take Wins

Paul Freer had two hits, including a triple, and John Korey two hits as Lakeshore East beat Benton Harbor No. 2 6-4 in the North Lincoln Invitational Babe Ruth tournament. Brian Warnock was the winning hurler. Greg Ward pitched a three-hitter as Buchanan defeated Bridgman 11-2. David Karpinski, Jim Anderson, and Jeff Butler all had two hits for the winners while Dave Price added a double and Bob Couchman a triple.

Buchanan will face Benton

Harbor No. 2 Saturday at 6 p.m. and Lakeshore East will play Decatur at 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Tonight Lakeshore West plays Benton Harbor No. 1 at 6 p.m. and North Lincoln meets Fairplain at 8:30 p.m.

Woody Hit By Another Accusation

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — One Big 10 football player has alleged that Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes offered him an all-expense paid trip to the 1974 Rose Bowl in Pasadena, according to a copyrighted story in the Michigan State student newspaper today.

The player, who told the State News earlier this week Hayes had given him a $50 bill during a dinner in January, 1974, told the paper Thursday. "About two weeks before, OSU left for California, Woody called and told me that he heard I was offered a trip to the Rose Bowl."

"He started lecturing me on how illegal it was for another school to offer me such a trip," the student told the State News. "But I had not received such an offer."

"Then, about five days before OSU was to leave for the coast, Woody called me and said that I was welcome to come with him to the Rose Bowl. If I remember right, they left on a Saturday and he called me on either the Monday or Tuesday before. I told him that I didn't want to go."

Such an alleged offer is in violation of Big 10 and National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, the State News said.

The player had been highly recruited by many colleges, including OSU, before deciding on another Big 10 school, the State News reported. The newspaper said the player asked to remain anonymous to protect his remaining eligibility in the conference.

Three BH Players At Morgan State

Three members of the 1975 Benton Harbor football squad are attending Morgan State University on football scholarships.

Mike Schulz and Maurice and Willie Burton (no relation) have already started practice at the Baltimore, Md., school for the upcoming season.

Schulz set a number of Lake Michigan Athletic Conference

(LMAC) passing records last season with the Burtons, both wide receivers, on the catching end of most of the passes. The trio all gained honorable mention on the LMAC all-conference team.

Maurice was also an outstanding track performer for the Tigers.

"We hope these young men can make us a winner or be part of a winning team," offered Morgan head football coach Earl Banks. "Schulz I think has the best chance of playing right away. He throws the ball real well."

"He's on the third team now but we have a long ways to go in practice yet."

Depending on their showing in practice, the three also might be included on the Morgan State squad which is going to Japan next month. Morgan State will meet power Grambling Sept. 25 in Tokyo as part of the Japanese celebration for America's Bicentennial. The two teams are going there as guests of the Japanese Football Association.

Morgan State, which went 4-5 last season, is a member of the Midwestern Athletic Conference and of the East

White Sox Call Iowa Catcher

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox have purchased the contract of catcher George Enright from Iowa of the American Association. Enright will temporarily replace Brian Downing, who fractured a finger July 25.

Enright was expected to report to the Sox today for a two-night twin bill with Kansas City.

In 81 games with Iowa, the 22-year-old hit .238 with 22 runs batted in. On Aug. 9 Enright will be optioned back to Iowa, a Sox spokesman said.

DUFFY AT THE POINT: Duffy Daugherty, former Michigan State University football coach, will be part of WHFB and WHFB-FM's broadcast crew Sunday at the Western Amateur Golf Tournament from the Point O' Woods Golf and Country Club in Benton Harbor. Daugherty will join sports director Chuck Champbell, Point pro Sam Drake, assistant pros Will Frantz and Jerry Kulig and Berrien Hills pro Tim Sowinski on the broadcast.

Tourney Win To Plangger's

Rick Plangger pitched a two-hitter Thursday night as Plangger's eliminated Fister's Real Estate from the Class A fastpitch softball district with a 1-0 victory.

Plangger struck out 10 and walked just one as the local team ran its record to 63-33 and moved into the district championship game against Fayette of Niles. Plangger's and Fayette meet at 7:30 tonight. If Plangger's wins, another game will be necessary at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Dan Knuth took the loss for Fister's.

Plangger's scored the game's only run in the bottom of the sixth. With one out Rick Davis singled, was sacrificed to second by Ron Mandarino and scored on a single by Dick Hocker.

Davis finished with a triple and a single and Rick Plangger added a pair of singles.

MSU's Hunt Files Suit

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A top Michigan State University football player, barred from playing this season as the result of MSU's athletic suspension, has filed suit asking that the penalty be set aside.

A university spokesman said Joseph Hunt, a defensive back, filed suit against the university and was to appear today before U.S. District Court Judge Noel P. Fox to ask for an injunction prohibiting his suspension.

Hunt was one of seven players penalized by the National Collegiate Athletic Association because of recruiting violations at MSU. MSU is on a three-year NCAA suspension and the school has an almost entirely new coaching staff as the result of the action.

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes has admitted alerting athletic officials to MSU's wrongdoings.

Hunt contends in his suit that he was suspended from the team without due process and that he was unable to confront his accusers. Hunt also claims the action interferes with his opportunity to complete his college football career and has damaged his hopes of participating in professional football.

The university suspended Hunt under orders from the NCAA. University attorney Leland Carr was expected to ask the judge to name the NCAA as defendants too, even though that organization was not named in the suit.

Hunt was penalized for his using a credit card that belonged to an individual the NCAA said represented the university's athletic interests.

Hunt was suspended for the entire year and the six other MSU players received lesser penalties.

PATERNITY SUIT: Sugar Ray Leonard, the gold medal winning captain of the US Olympic boxing team, has had a paternity suit filed against him by the Prince Georges County, Md., state's attorney's office as part of a federally assisted crackdown on welfare cheaters in the county. Leonard was told that his 19-year-old girlfriend, Juanita Wilkinson, whose picture he wore on his right leg in Montreal, applied for welfare for her illegitimate son, Little Ray, and she had to tell authorities who the father was so they could determine whether Sugar Ray is, in fact, the father and if he can provide support for the child. ## Wins Thriller

Freddie Roush pitched a four-hitter as Michigan Bell nipped Plangger's No. 2 1-0 in 10 innings to clinch second place in the Twin City Fastpitch Softball League. Rich Roberts was the loser, despite yielding only five hits and fanning 13 batters. Gary Rose drove in the game's only run with a 10th-inning triple.

Paul Freer had two hits, including a triple, and John Korey two hits as Lakeshore East beat Benton Harbor No. 2 6-4 in the North Lincoln Invitational Babe Ruth tournament. Brian Warnock was the winning hurler. Greg Ward pitched a

Three BH Players At Morgan State

Three members of the 1975 Benton Harbor football squad are attending Morgan State University on football scholarships.

Mike Schulz and Maurice and Willie Burton (no relation) have already started practice at the Baltimore, Md., school for the upcoming season.

Schulz set a number of Lake Michigan Athletic Conference

(LMAC) passing records last season with the Burtons, both wide receivers, on the catching end of most of the passes. The trio all gained honorable mention on the LMAC all-conference team.

Maurice was also an outstanding track performer for the Tigers.

"We hope these young men can make us a winner or be part of a winning team," offered Morgan head football coach Earl Banks. "Schulz I think has the best chance of playing right away. He throws the ball real well."

"He's on the third team now but we have a long ways to go in practice yet."

Depending on their showing in practice, the three also might be included on the Morgan State squad which is going to Japan next month. Morgan State will meet power Grambling Sept. 25 in Tokyo as part of the Japanese celebration for America's Bicentennial. The two teams are going there as guests of the Japanese Football Association.

Morgan State, which went 4-5-1 last season, is a member of the Midwestern Athletic Conference and of the East Collegiate Athletic Conference. It is a NCAA Division II school but has made application for Division IA.

Jim Rutter, assistant principal at Fairplain junior high school, is an associate of Banks and informed the coach of the trio.

"I guess it was kind of a package deal," states Rutter. "They wanted a passing unit to replace the one they lost."

White Sox Call Iowa Catcher

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox have purchased the contract of catcher George Enright from Iowa of the American Association. Enright will temporarily replace Brian Downing, who fractured a finger July 25.

Enright was expected to report to the Sox today for a two-night twin bill with Kansas City.

In 81 games with Iowa, the 22-year-old hit .226 with 22 runs batted in. On Aug. 9 Enright will be optioned back to Iowa, a Sox spokesman said.

Tourney Win To Plangger's

Rick Plangger pitched a two-hitter Thursday night as Plangger's eliminated Fister's Real Estate from the Class A fastpitch softball district with a 1-0 victory.

Plangger struck out 10 and walked just one as the local team ran its record to 63-33 and moved into the district championship game against Fayette of Niles. Plangger's and Fayette meet at 7:30 tonight. If Plangger's wins, another game will be necessary at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Dan Knuth took the loss for Fister's.

Plangger's scored the game's only run in the bottom of the sixth. With one out Rick Davis singled, was sacrificed to second by Ron Mandarino and scored on a single by Dick Hocker.

Davis finished with a triple and a single and Rick Plangger added a pair of singles.

MSU's Hunt Files Suit

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A top Michigan State University football player, barred from playing this season as the result of MSU's athletic suspension, has filed suit asking that the penalty be set aside.

A university spokesman said Joseph Hunt, a defensive back, filed suit against the university and was to appear today before U.S. District Court Judge Noel P. Fox to ask for an injunction prohibiting his suspension.

Hunt was one of seven players penalized by the National Collegiate Athletic Association because of recruiting violations at MSU. MSU is on a three-year NCAA suspension and the school has an almost entirely new coaching staff as the result of the action.

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes has admitted alerting athletic officials to MSU's wrongdoings.

Hunt contends in his suit that he was suspended from the team without due process and that he was unable to confront his accusers. Hunt also claims the action interferes with his opportunity to compete his college football career and has damaged his hopes of participating in professional football.

The university suspended Hunt under orders from the NCAA. University attorney Leland Carr was expected to ask the judge to name the NCAA as defendants too, even though that organization was not named in the suit.

Hunt was penalized for his using a credit card that belonged to an individual the NCAA said represented the university's athletic interests.

Hunt was suspended for the entire year and the six other MSU players received lesser penalties.

PATERNITY SUIT: Sugar Ray Leonard, the gold medal winning captain of the US Olympic boxing team, has had a paternity suit filed against him by the Prince Georges County, Md., state's attorney's office as part of a federally assisted crackdown on welfare cheaters in the county. Leonard was told that his 19-year-old girlfriend, Juanita Wilkinson, whose picture he wore on his right leg in Montreal, applied for welfare for her illegitimate son, Little Ray, and she had to tell authorities who the father was so they could determine whether Sugar Ray is, in fact, the father and if he can provide support for the child. ## Wins Thriller Frenchie Roush pitched a four-hitter as Michigan Bell nipped Plangger's No. 2 1-0 in 10 innings to clinch second place in the Twin City Fastpitch Softball League. Rich Robards was the loser, despite yielding only five hits and fanning 13 batters. Gary Rose drove in the game's only run with a 10th-inning triple.

Tigers Continue Surge To Cellar

DETROIT (AP) — Boston's fortunes are on the upswing, while Detroit's continue to nosedive.

It'll take a lot more upswing, however, for the Red Sox to get very high in the American League East standings. The Tigers, meanwhile, don't need much more nose-diving to hit the cellar.

Rookie Butch Hobson smacked a two-run homer and Jim Rice had a solo blast Thursday night to power Boston to a 5-4 victory over Detroit.

It was the fifth straight loss for the fifth-place Tigers, dropping them to within one-half game of last-place Milwaukee. The setback put Detroit eight games below .500 — the lowest it's been all season.

Boston, which hosts Milwaukee for three games starting tonight, has won six of its last seven but trails leader New York by 14 games.

The Tigers are 15½ behind heading into a four-game weekend series against Cleveland. They're scheduled to pitch Dave Roberts, 10-11, against Jackie Brown, 7-6, in the Lutheran Night opener tonight.

"It's gonna turn," Detroit Manager Ralph Houk insisted. "We're staying in ballgames. We just haven't been getting the big hit in the middle to break things open."

It was Hobson's hit that broke things open for Boston. He drilled his homer off the upper deck facing in left off starter-ender Dave Lemanczyk, 3-3, in the sixth inning. It snapped a 2-2 tie and Rice added what proved the game-winner with his shot into the upper deck in left off Bill Laxton in the eighth.

Boston got gift runs in the fourth and fifth. The first scored on a bad-hop grounder by Cecil Cooper after a runner reached base on shortstop Tom Verzyer's error. A single that bounced off the bag at second helped set up Carl Yastrzemski's RBI single for the other.

Aurelio Rodriguez hit a two-run homer in the Tiger second. He singled in the seventh and took third when the ball bounced past centerfielder Fred Lynn for an error. Bill Freehan sent him home with a ground out and hit a solo homer in the ninth.

Reggie Cleveland, who relieved starter Rick Jones in the third, raised his record to 6-5 with relief help from Bill Lee.

Bert Blyleven, a major league pitcher since 1970, only recently learned how to throw a fastball.

Lacking one major tool of the trade for much of his career, Blyleven still has managed 104 victories. The latest came Thursday night when Blyleven relied on his usual baffling curve ball and a newly-discovered fastball to pitch the Texas Rangers to a 1-0 victory over the California Angels.

Blyleven, a 25-year-old righthander, has been a stone's throw away from superstardom in his career. It now turns out that the thrown stone was a fastball.

Sid Hudson, Texas' pitching coach, said Blyleven's problem was in the palm of his hand all the time. Hudson merely had Blyleven change the grip on his fastball.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Baltimore Orioles topped the Cleveland Indians 6-2; the Kansas City Royals downed the Minnesota Twins 6-4, and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the New York Yankees 9-3 in a rain-shortened six-inning game.

Thursday night, the Rangers scratched out a run in the second inning. Jeff Burroughs lofted a wind-blown double, moved to third on Tom Grieve's sacrifice and scored on Len Randle's sacrifice fly.

Blyleven, 9-12, allowed only two runners to reach second base and forced 16 Angels to ground out. "I tried to kick myself in the tail from the sixth inning on and keep the ball down," said Blyleven, who recorded his fourth shutout of the season.

Third baseman Doug DeCinces, emerging from Brook Robinson's long shadow, is beginning to build his own reputation.

"I'm just starting to play regularly," said DeCinces, who belted a home run and a two-run triple to pace the Orioles' attack. "I have to prove to the fans, especially the fans in Baltimore that I'm good enough to fill in for Brooks."

The Royals won their 64th game of the season and Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog said they only have to win 31 of their last 58 games to grab the title in the AL West.

"I think 95 will do it," said Herzog after Fred Patek's two-run tie-breaking single in the sixth inning propelled the Royals to a three-game sweep of the Twins, 11½ games back.

Reliever Danny Frisella struck out five of the six batters he faced, including Thurman Munson and Lou Piniella, to thwart a Yankee rally in the fifth inning.

Coach Cleared In Libel Suit

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Court of Appeals has ruled that the captain of a high school basketball team cannot collect libel and slander damages from the coach who suspended him for disloyalty to the team.

Ruling on the appeal of Daniel A. Iacco, who was captain of the Clare High School basketball team in 1973, the court said Thursday coach John Bohannon had a "qualified privilege" to criticize his players.

And since there was no evidence that his statements about Iacco were made with malice or with ill will, Bohannon is not guilty of libel or slander, the court said in upholding an earlier decision by the Clare County Circuit Court.

Iacco was suspended from playing in a state tournament playoff game against Beaverton High School in March, 1973.

His coach told him, in front of his teammates, that "to be reinstated there must be an overt and sustained demonstration of team loyalty. We must see and hear your faith in your team's ability to win."

The court said Bohannon had a duty to criticize his players "with respect to their performance as members of the team and to act in a fashion which would promote the maximum team effort."

Cubs Edge Expos, 4-3

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Solo homers by George Mitterwald and Rick Monday and two unearned runs in the fifth inning gave the Chicago Cubs a 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader Thursday night.

The second game was rained out after a 77-minute delay in the second inning and will be made up as part of a doubleheader Sunday.

The Cubs were leading 2-0 when Mitterwald and Mick Kelleher reached base in the fifth on consecutive one-out singles. Cubs starter Ray Burris, 8-11, then attempted a sacrifice bunt. Montreal starter Don Stanhouse, 7-5, threw the ball over the head of third-baseman Larry Parrish and two runs scored.

Mitterwald's third homer of the year and Monday's 18th came in the third inning.

The Expos scored a run in the fifth on consecutive doubles by Tim Foli and Gary Carter and added two more in the sixth, when Del Unser slugged a home run, his eighth of the season, with Earl Williams on base.

The Los Angeles Dodgers have been chasing Cincinnati up a hill all season, but have finally run into a big Red stop sign, it seems.

The Reds have put some daylight between themselves and their closest pursuers in the National League West, opening up a formidable 10-game lead with Thursday night's 3-2 victory over the Dodgers.

The pace has the defending World Champions going like 100 this season.

The Reds won 108 games last season and figure to hit the century mark again, the way they've been playing of late. They've won eight of their last nine games and 24 of 32.

The Philadelphia Phillies are dominating the East Division the way Cincinnati is the West. With Thursday night's 5-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh's 7-4 loss to the New York Mets, the Phillies have opened a stunning 14-game lead over the Pirates.

In other National League action, the San Diego Padres trimmed the Houston Astros 4-3, and the San Francisco Giants nipped the Atlanta Braves 2-1.

Tony Perez slugged a bases-empty homer, Pete Rose doubled and singled twice and Fred Norman scattered seven hits to lead Cincinnati over Los Angeles. Perez' 12th homer, coming off loser Don Sutton, 12-9, gave the Reds a 3-0 lead.

Ollie Brown's home run triggered a four-run Philadelphia fifth inning and helped the Phillies beat St. Louis in a rain-shortened eight-inning game. Hector Cruz' homer had provided the Cards with a 2-0 lead in the second inning.

Jon Matlack pitched and batted New York over Pittsburgh with relief help from Skip Lockwood. The New York starter allowed all of Pittsburgh's six hits before leaving the game in the eighth inning. In addition, Matlack drove in one run and scored another as the Mets hammered four Pirate pitchers for 17 hits.

Doug Rader drove in two runs and Dave Friesleben and Butch Metzger combined on an eighth-inning, lifting San Diego over Houston.

Sweet 16 players from a year ago failing to advance were Tom Seckmann of Omaha, Neb., who suffered a wrist injury Wednesday while shooting an 80 and withdrew, plus Del de Wink of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., an "oldtimer" at 32 in the Am who failed to make the cut after shooting a two-day total of 153.

Two Sweet 16 players from 1974 are also still alive...Doug Fischesser (150) of Niles, the only southwestern Michigan survivor, and Buddy Alexander (150) of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Other leaders include Jamie Gonzalez of Rio de Janeiro Brazil, who joined Jacobson in the 145 score bracket. Gonzalez, another Oklahoma State golfer, has won golf tournaments in 12 different countries. He won the Brazilian Amateur championship just last Sunday, and left immediately on a 24-hour plane trip which got him to Benton Harbor at 7 p.m. Monday.

Joining Reid at 146 are BYU teammate John Fought, who hails from Portland, Ore., plus John Stark of San Antonio, Tex., a University of Houston player, and Mike Sol of DeKalb, Ill., a Northern Illinois player who won the Mid-American Conference championship the past two years, including a record 68 round on the Lake Doster course at Plainwell, Mich.

With Blair and Mudd at 147 are Mike Hurley of Albion, Mich., who plays at Western Michigan and won the Michigan Amateur this year, and Brian Dempsey of Everett, Wash., who goes to Bible school "just to learn more about what it is to be a Christian."

Other All-Americans making the cut were Jim Nelford (149), Tim Simpson (149), Mike Brannan (151) and Lindy Miller (151). All-Americans not making the cut were Tom Jones (152), a 1974 Sweet 16 player; Mike Peck (154); Allan Strange (154); Chip Beck (155), and Jeff Sanders (157).

Well-known amateurs not making the cut Thursday were Gary Hallberg (153), Jay Sigel (154), Butch Girard (154), Pete Green (155), Bruce Hollowell (156), Jim Stewart (157), Rafael Alarcon (157), George Haines (157) and Danny Yates (160).

The other two remaining area golfers didn't fair well. Jim Laing of Dowagiac withdrew Wednesday with a back injury, and on Thursday Fred Knutel of Three Oaks didn't show up for play (he shot a 93 Wednesday.) Jim Peterson of Dowagiac played but finished with an overall 167.

Thursday's attendance was 1,841, up from last year's figure of 1,491.

Houston Oilers Lose McVea

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers running back Warren McVea has undergone knee surgery and will be lost to the team for the remainder of the season.

McVea injured the knee Monday night in the preseason game between the Oilers and the Kansas City Chiefs.

It was the second operation on his knee. McVea, 30, first injured it in 1972 while with Kansas City. He sat out that season following surgery and was waived by the Chiefs the following year.

Hill Doubtful For Miami

DETROIT (AP) — Recently acquired wide receiver J.D. Hill was reported enroute from his Arizona home to the Detroit Lions training camp Thursday but there was some doubt he would make it in time for the game with the Miami Dolphins Sunday.

Hill, obtained two weeks ago from the Buffalo Bills, asked for time to go to Arizona and settle some personal business before reporting at the Lions training camp, which closes Saturday.

The Lions said Hill was expected to arrive in time to take his physical and suit up for the clash with the Dolphins at Pontiac Stadium.

Leading B.C. Open Allin Cards Sizzling 63

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Buddy Allin, riding high with an eight-under-par 63 in the first round of the B.C. Open golf tournament, wants badly to win this one.

If he does, Allin, winner of the Pleasant Valley Classic on Sunday, will qualify for the 1976 World Series of Golf.

A victory in this $200,000 event, he said, would enable him to get into the select field. But if he fails, he still has a chance to make the classic before the end of the month.

Jerry McGee, with only one victory in 10 years on the PGA tour, was in the clubhouse with a six-under-par 65 when Allin was making his surge Thursday.

Allin began with four straight birdies and finished his round with 10 of them against only two bogies. He one-potted 11 greens as he turned in a course record 63 at the par-71, 6,888-yard En-Joe Golf Club.

"I'm just playing one day at a time," he said, saying his victory in the Pleasant Valley was not putting any pressure on him in the B.C., which began six years ago as a one-day satellite event.

The top prize in this tournament — named after the comic strip "B.C." — is $40,000, the amount Allin won five days ago.

Bob Wynn, who admitted he finally has been playing "pretty solid" the last two weeks, tied McGee for second after 18 holes.

"I struggled for a while after getting a good start on the West Coast this year," he said. "But I left my game there."

There were eight players, including defending B.C. champion Don Iverson, bunched at 67. The others were Bill Mallon, Butch Baird, Mark Hayes, George Knudson, Allen Miller, Phil Rodgers and Dave Hill. There were nine at 68, and 15 with 69s, including Lee Trevino, back in action after an eight-week layoff because of a back ailment.

"There wasn't any pain today," said Trevino, who visited a physical therapist Wednesday night and again after his first round.

For one thing, he said, he began to loosen up after the first five holes. By the 12th hole, Trevino said, "I was cutting the ball again, hitting the irons right at the flag."

Ben Crenshaw, the year's leading money-winner with $213,201, passed up the B.C., as did Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and 1973 B.C. champion Hubert Green.

Bangor, Hagar Get Wins

BANGOR — Robert LaVany pitched a three-hitter as Bangor bombed Bloomingdale 15-4 in its own Bangor Babe Ruth tournament here Thursday.

Hagar outlasted Lawrence 17-7 in Thursday's other game. Phil Babor paced the Bangor hitting attack with a double and two singles. Brian Dziubinski and Mark Wilson added a triple and a single. Pat Watkins had a pair of doubles. Jack Titman slugged a double and a single and Ken Gargus had two singles. The game was halted by the 10-run rule after five innings.

Hagar and Lawrence combined for just seven hits in their game called by the 10-run rule after six.

An 11-run sixth-inning proved to be the difference for Hagar. The game featured 19 errors and 29 walks.

Fla., a law student who is the defending U.S. Amateur champion.

Sweet 16 players from a year ago failing to advance were Tom Steckmann of Omaha, Neb., who suffered a wrist injury Wednesday while shooting an 80 and withdrew, plus Del de Windt of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., an "oldtimer" at 32 in the Am who failed to make the cut after shooting a two-day total of 153.

Two Sweet 16 players from 1974 are also still alive...Doug Fischesser (150) of Niles, the only southwestern Michigan survivor, and Buddy Alexander (150) of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Other leaders include Jamie Gonzalez of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, who joined Jacobson in the 145 score bracket. Gonzalez, another Oklahoma State golfer, has won golf tournaments in 12 different countries. He won the Brazilian Amateur championship just last Sunday, and left immediately on a 26-hour plane trip which got him to Benton Harbor at 7 p.m. Monday.

Joining Reid at 146 are BYU teammate John Fought, who hails from Portland, Ore., plus John Stark of San Antonio, Tex., a University of Houston player, and Mike Soli of DeKalb, Ill., a Northern Illinois player who won the Mid-American Conference championship the past two years, including a record 68 round on the Lake Doster course at Plainwell, Mich.

With Blair and Mudd at 147 are Mike Hurley of Albion, Mich., who plays at Western Michigan and won the Michigan Amateur this year, and Brian Dempsey of Everett, Wash., who goes to Bible school "just to learn more about what it is to be a Christian."

Other All-Americans making the cut were Jim Nelford (149), Tim Simpson (149), Mike Brannan (151) and Lindy Miller (151). All-Americans not making the cut were Tom Jones (152), a 1974 Sweet 16 player; Mike Peck (154); Allan Strange (154); Chip Beck (155); and Jeff Sanders (157).

Well-known amateurs not making the cut Thursday were Gary Hallberg (153), Jay Sigel (154), Butch Girard (154), Pete Green (155), Bruce Hollowell (156), Jim Stewart (157), Rafael Alarcon (157), George Haines (157) and Danny Yates (160).

The other two remaining area golfers didn't fair well. Jim Laing of Dowagiac withdrew Wednesday with a back injury, and on Thursday Fred Knutel of Three Oaks didn't show up for play (he shot a 93 Wednesday.) Jim Peterson of Dowagiac played but finished with an overall 167.

Thursday's attendance was 1,841, up from last year's figure of 1,491.

Houston Oilers Lose McVea

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers running back Warren McVea has undergone knee surgery and will be lost to the team for the remainder of the season.

Doctors performed the surgery at Methodist Hospital Wednesday to repair ligament and cartilage damage to McVea's right knee.

McVea injured the knee Monday night in the preseason game between the Oilers and the Kansas City Chiefs.

It was the second operation on his knee. McVea, 30, first injured it in 1972 while with Kansas City. He sat out that season following surgery and was waived by the Chiefs the following year.

Hill Doubtful For Miami

DETROIT (AP) — Recently acquired wide receiver J.D. Hill was reported enroute from his Arizona home to the Detroit Lions training camp Thursday but there was some doubt he would make it in time for the game with the Miami Dolphins Sunday.

Hill, obtained two weeks ago from the Buffalo Bills, asked for time to go to Arizona and settle some personal business before reporting at the Lions training camp, which closes Saturday.

The Lions said Hill was expected to arrive in time to take his physical and suit up for the clash with the Dolphins at Pontiac Stadium.

JAYHAVEN: One of three new peach varieties to be released next week. The freestone peach has the characteristic red color of the Red Haven family and has greater winter hardiness than the Glohaven. The Jayhaven and the two other varieties, Sweethaven and Spartancing, were first shown to growers at the 1975 peach show at South Haven. Sweethaven is an early peach, tastes better and has more flower bud hardiness than Garnet Beauty. Spartancing is a hardy processing clingstone that ripens early. The new varieties will be available for planting the spring of 1978.

Introduction Set
For Three South
Haven Peaches

Three peach varieties developed at the South Haven Experiment station will be released next week. Station Superintendent Robert Andersen said recently at the annual peach variety show.

The new varieties — Sweethaven, Jayhaven and Spartancing — were first shown to growers at the 1975 peach show at South Haven. At this year's show, held in the Coloma orchard of Grower James Friday, Andersen announced that the varieties have been named and will be released Aug. 10.

Wally Heuser, of Hilltop Orchards, Hartford, said that nurserymen from all over the state will pick up budwood on that date. Andersen indicated that he would give each nursery "a couple of thousand buds, and they won't make a lot of trees," Heuser reported.

Heuser said that new variety trees will be available for planting in the spring of 1978.

Andersen said that the two freestone peaches, Jayhaven and Sweethaven, were selected in 1965 by the late Stanley Johnson, former superintendent of the station. Andersen selected Spartancing, a clingstone peach, in 1968.

Sweethaven is an early, Garnet Beauty season, peach. Andersen said it tastes better than and has more flower bud hardiness than Garnet Beauty.

Spartancing is a hardy processing clingstone variety that ripens two weeks earlier than Baby Gold 5.

At the meeting, which Heuser said was attended by some 50 persons, growers got a good look at many of the early varieties grown by Friday. The show was held at Friday's because the weather was knocked out by the spring freezes.

Memorial Fund Will Pay Hort. Speakers

A memorial lecture fund to be used to defray costs of notable out-of-state guest speakers at the Michigan State Horticultural society's annual meeting was recently established in honor of the late Greenville fruit grower William A. Smith.

The $1,000 lecture fund, established by friends, is to be limited to $300 per year. It is to be used for an oral presentation by an out-of-state scientist whose topic will concern research findings and observations that are of practical significance to Michigan fruit growers.

Smith, who died in the spring of 1975, was known for his attendance at horticultural meetings throughout the Midwest. According to Jerome Hull, Jr., secretary of the Michigan State Horticultural Society, Smith went to the meetings and would return and share the knowledge he gained with Michigan growers.

Orville Trebian, president of the Michigan State Horticultural society, said that it is fitting that Dr. Kenneth Hickey, plant pathologist and superintendent of the Pennsylvania State University Fruit Research Laboratory, and a close friend and confidant of Smith, will present the first William A. Smith Memorial Lecture.

It is to be given Dec. 8 as part of the society's annual meeting.

MDA Tackles Job Of Certifying Pesticide Users

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

In order to buy restricted-use pesticides after September of 1978, every grower and other applicator would have to score at least 70 on a written test, the Michigan Department of Agriculture proposed last week.

The department has scheduled three public hearings (none of them in Southwestern Michigan) for next week to discuss the proposal. The proposal offers a procedure for growers and other users of the dangerous pesticides to comply with a new state law that was mandated by a federal pesticide act.

tified persons could buy restricted-use pesticides, according to Jim Brozovich, regional supervisor of MDA's plant industry division.

The rule would shut off the supply of the chemicals to homeowners and others who are not knowledgeable about pesticide dangers and proper uses, he said.

The list includes the most potent organophosphate insecticides, plus chemicals such as mercury and cyanide.

Currently, anybody can buy the chemicals, although they have to declare what use they plan for the pesticides, Brozovich explained. He said that the list of restricted-sale pesticides now used in Michigan makes up the list of restricted-use pesticides included in the proposal.

"The proposal looks good," he said. "It's similar to the law

we're using now."

Brozovich explained that under the MDA proposal, certification would work like this:

A grower or the operator of a pest control service or landscape gardener would go to the plant industry division or the Michigan State university extension office and apply for certification.

The applicant receives a manual with instructions on how to read the label on a pesticide container; how to clean equipment after pesticide use; which pesticides should be used under certain conditions; etc.

Brozovich said the manual contains all information needed to pass the required examination. When he's ready the applicant takes the examination.

Growers and other private applicators take a general examination, while commercial applicators take both the general examination and further tests in their areas of specialization — agricultural pesticides, forest pesticides, pesticides used in public health work, institutional pesticides, and others.

Brozovich listed a few of the true false questions found on a general examination: "Fungi, nematodes, viruses and bacteria may cause plant diseases." True.

"Plant diseases can be caused by non-living agents." True.

The examinations will have true-false, multiple choice and other types of questions that require no writing. A score of 70 per cent correct is passing.

Once a person passes the test and is certified he can buy restricted-use pesticides. Persons without certification won't be allowed to buy those 20-some chemicals after Sept. 1, 1978.

Under the state law persons applying for certification must pay $10. Commercial applicators have to pay an additional

The plant industry division hopes to have all commercial applicators certified by the end of the year, leaving 1977 and much of 1978 for certification of growers and other private applicators, said Brozovich.

The federal law that requires states to certify pesticide applicators is the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA). The

... But Not Here

Hearings for the MDA proposal will be held Aug. 9 at 10 a.m. in Gaylord, Aug. 9 at 7 p.m. in Escanaba and Aug. 10 at 1:30 p.m. in the Lewis Cass Building, Lansing. Southwestern Michigan was not chosen for a hearing site because the proposal contains "no surprises" for growers, MDA Chief Deputy Director Donald Isleib said. Isleib believes that most farmers realize that under the federal act and the state law MDA had few options when it drafted the certification proposal.

state law which repeats FIFRA's order also states: "A person who violates this act is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than $500 for each offense."

New angles on the story of Southwestern Michigan's short fruit crop continue to surface.

On Wednesday, for instance, a Japanese fruit broker came to the area to visit a tart cherry processing plant. Two members of the Michigan Association of Cherry Producers courteously took him to a plant, but the visitor had to settle for watching the blueberry line.

Actually, Shigeo Matsui, director of Matsusho-Shoji Company, Ltd., knew about the short tart cherry crop before he came to Southwestern Michigan. Still, he wanted to meet members of the Michigan industry because his firm wants to import cherries from the United States to Japan.

The visit by Matsui was prompted by a trip made to Japan in mid-April by Robert C. Frohling, secretary of both the Michigan Association of Cherry Producers and the National Red Cherry Institute.

During his trade mission Frohling met Matsui, and the Japanese broker expressed interest in seeing Michigan's tart cherry industry and finding sellers interested in shipping product to Japan.

Matsui said that in Japan "cherries are used for decoration with other foods." Now they are rarely served as a separate dish "but they are becoming more appropriate, if we can get more," he added.

Most all of the cherries in Japan are hand harvested and quite expensive, he said. And the crop is a small one to begin with. The Japanese aren't familiar with sour cherries, Frohling said. They eat sweet cherries that are like the Napoleon variety found in Michigan.

Matsui said that even when Japanese cherries are canned the stem and pit are not removed.

His company sells produce to about 100 supermarket branches. Besides cherries, Matsui is looking for other fruits and vegetables that might be bought in this country and sold in his, he said.

WANTS TO BUY CHERRIES: Shigeo Matsui (center), a fruit buyer and importer from Osaka, Japan, stopped in Southwestern Michigan this week for a look at the Michigan fruit industry. Greeting him were Robert Kinney (left) and Robert Frohling, of the Michigan Association of Cherry Producers. Matsui said he is interested in buying Michigan cherries and importing them into his country. Although the short crop means he'll have to wait until next year to buy tarts, he decided to tour local processing facilities and orchards during his stay. (Staff photo)

Japanese Fruit Buyer Visits
Area Looking For Cherries

While fresh market vegetable acreage in the United States is down 1 per cent, Michigan acreage of most fresh market vegetables is at or above 1975 levels, according to an extension service report.

Glen Antle, district extension marketing agent, said the increase is due in part to increased roadside market sales, increased transportation costs from Western and Southern areas and the spring freeze damage in southwestern Michigan that caused additional vegetable plantings.

"With some luck in avoiding peak harvest periods in other major shipping areas, price levels could equal or exceed 1975 for most items," Antle said. United States vegetable acreage for processing this year is down 13 per cent, Antle said. And processing crop prices could strengthen for most vegetables as the season progresses, he added.

Michigan acreage for pickling cucumbers is 23,500, down 17 per cent from 28,300 last year. Total acreage for the country is down 8 per cent.

Acreage for slicer cucumbers is reportedly up this year from the 2,000 acres reported by United States Department of Agriculture last year, but no official figures are available. Acreage for the country is up 3 per cent this year, and the total production is expected to be about the same as last year, the report said.

Nationally, acreage for cantaloupe and fresh market tomatoes is down, while cabbage and sweet corn acreage is up slightly.

Michigan has 3,800 contract acres of processing tomatoes reported for 1976. The figure is down 14 per cent from last year. United States acreage is down 13 per cent.

No official figures on bell peppers or kraut cabbage were available.

JAYHAVEN: One of three new peach varieties to be released next week. The freestone peach has the characteristic red color of the Red Haven family and has greater winter hardiness than the Glohaven. The Jayhaven and the two other varieties, Sweethaven and Spartangling, were first shown to growers at the 1975 peach show at South Haven. Sweethaven is an early peach, tastes better and has more flower bud hardiness than Garnet Beauty. Spartangling is a hardy processing clingstone that ripens early. The new varieties will be available for planting the spring of 1978.

Introduction Set For Three South Haven Peaches

Three peach varieties developed at the South Haven Experiment station will be released next week, Station Superintendent Robert Andersen said recently at the annual peach variety show.

The new varieties — Sweethaven, Jayhaven and Spartangling — were first shown to growers at the 1975 peach show at South Haven. At this year's show, held in the Coloma orchard of Grower James Friday, Andersen announced that the varieties have been named and will be released Aug. 10.

Wally Heuser, of Hilltop Orchards, Hartford, said that nurserymen from all over the state will pick up budwood on that date. Andersen indicated that he would give each nursery "a couple of thousand buds, and they won't make a lot of trees," Heuser reported.

Heuser said that new variety trees will be available for planting in the spring of 1978.

Andersen said that the two freestone peaches, Jayhaven and Sweethaven, were selected in 1965 by the late Stanley Johnson, former superintendent of the station. Andersen selected Spartangling, a clingstone peach, in 1968.

Sweethaven is an early, Garnet Beauty season, peach. Andersen said it tastes better than and has more flower bud hardiness than Garnet Beauty.

Jayhaven, a mid-season peach, has greater winter hardiness than Glohaven.

Spartangling is a hardy processing clingstone variety that ripens two weeks earlier than Baby Gold 5.

At the meeting, which Heuser said was attended by some 50 persons, growers got a good look at many of the early varieties grown by Friday. The show was held at Friday's because most of the peaches at the South Haven station were knocked out by the spring freezes.

Memorial Fund Will Pay Hort. Speakers

A memorial lecture fund to be used to defray costs of notable out-of-state guest speakers at the Michigan State Horticultural society's annual meeting was recently established in honor of the late Greenville fruit grower William A. Smith.

The $1,000 lecture fund, established by friends, is to be limited to $300 per year. It is to be used for an oral presentation by an out-of-state scientist whose topic will concern research findings and observations that are of practical significance to Michigan fruit growers.

Smith, who died in the spring of 1975, was known for his attendance at horticultural meetings throughout the Midwest. According to Jerome Hull, Jr., secretary of the Michigan State Horticultural Society, Smith went to the meetings and would return and share the knowledge he gained with Michigan growers.

Orville Trebian, president of the Michigan State Horticultural society, said that it is fitting that Dr. Kenneth Hickey, plant pathologist and superintendent of the Pennsylvania State University Fruit Research laboratory, and a close friend and confidant of Smith, will present the first William A. Smith Memorial Lecture.

It is to be given Dec. 8 as part of the society's annual meeting.

Association Elects New Officers

Charles M. Clay, manager of the National Fruit Product plant in Kent City, was elected president of the Michigan Canners and Freezers Association recently and will assume the office Nov. 1.

Other officers for the coming year will be David Kellogg, Traverse City Canning Company, first vice president; and Carl Landis, H.J. Heinz Company, second vice president.

MDA Tackles Job Of Certifying Pesticide Users

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

In order to buy restricted-use pesticides after September of 1978, every grower and other applicator would have to score at least 70 on a written test, the Michigan Department of Agriculture proposed last week.

The department has scheduled three public hearings (none of them in Southwestern Michigan) for next week to discuss the proposal. The proposal offers a procedure for growers and other users of the dangerous pesticides to comply with a new state law that was mandated by a federal pesticide act.

Under the proposal, only certified persons could buy restricted-use pesticides, according to Jim Brozovich, regional supervisor of MDA's plant industry division.

The rule would shut off the supply of the chemicals to homeowners and others who are not knowledgeable about pesticide dangers and proper uses, he said.

The list includes the most potent organophosphate insecticides, plus chemicals such as mercury and cyanide.

Currently, anybody can buy the chemicals, although they have to declare what use they plan for the pesticides, Brozovich explained. He said that the list of restricted-sale pesticides now used in Michigan makes up the list of restricted-use pesticides included in the proposal.

"The proposal looks good," he said. "It's similar to the law

we're using now."

Brozovich explained that under the MDA proposal, certification would work like this:

A grower or the operator of a pest control service or landscape gardener would go to the plant industry division or the Michigan State university extension office and apply for certification.

The applicant receives a manual with instructions on how to read the label on a pesticide container; how to clean equipment after pesticide use; which pesticides should be used under certain conditions; etc.

Brozovich said the manual contains all information needed to pass the required examination. When he's ready the applicant takes the examination.

Growers and other private applicators take a general examination, while commercial applicators take both the general examination and further tests in their areas of specialization — agricultural pesticides, forest pesticides, pesticides used in public health work, institutional pesticides, and others.

Brozovich listed a few of the true-false questions found on a general examination:

"Plant diseases can be caused by non-living agents." True.

The examinations will have true-false, multiple choice and other types of questions that require no writing. A score of 70 per cent correct is passing.

Once a person passes the test and is certified he can buy restricted-use pesticides. Persons without certification won't be allowed to buy those 20-some chemicals after Sept. 1, 1978.

Under the state law persons applying for certification must pay $10. Commercial applicators have to pay an additional $20 to obtain a license.

The plant industry division hopes to have all commercial applicators certified by the end of the year, leaving 1977 and much of 1978 for certification of growers and other private applicators, said Brozovich.

The federal law that requires states to certify pesticide applicators is the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA). The

... But Not Here

Hearings for the MDA proposal will be held Aug. 9 at 10 a.m. in Gaylord, Aug. 9 at 7 p.m. in Escanaba and Aug. 10 at 1:30 p.m. in the Lewis Cass Building, Lansing. Southwestern Michigan was not chosen for a hearing site because the proposal contains "no surprises" for growers, MDA Chief Deputy Director Donald Isleib said. Isleib believes that most farmers realize that under the federal act and the state law MDA had few options when it drafted the certification proposal.

state law which repeats FIFRA's order also states: "A person who violates this act is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than $500 for each offense."

WANTS TO BUY CHERRIES: Shigeo Matsui (center), a fruit buyer and importer from Osaka, Japan, stopped in Southwestern Michigan this week for a look at the Michigan fruit industry. Greeting him were Robert Kinney (left) and Robert Frohling, of the Michigan Association of Cherry Producers. Matsui said he is interested in buying Michigan cherries and importing them into his country. Although the short crop means he'll have to wait until next year to buy tarts, he decided to tour local processing facilities and orchards during his stay. (Staff photo)

Japanese Fruit Buyer Visits Area Looking For Cherries

While fresh market vegetable acreage in the United States is down 1 per cent, Michigan acreage of most fresh market vegetables is at or above 1975 levels, according to an extension service report.

Glen Antle, district extension marketing agent, said the increase is due in part to increased roadside market sales, increased transportation costs from Western and Southern areas and the spring freeze damage in southwestern Michigan that caused additional vegetable plantings.

"With some luck in avoiding peak harvest periods in other major shipping areas, price levels could equal or exceed 1975 for most items," Antle said.

United States vegetable acreage for processing this year is down 13 per cent, Antle said. And processing crop prices could strengthen for most vegetables as the season progresses, he added.

Michigan acreage for pickling cucumbers is 23,500, down 17 per cent from 28,300 last year. Total acreage for the country is down 8 per cent.

Acreage for slicer cucumbers is reportedly up this year from the 2,000 acres reported by United States Department of Agriculture last year, but no official figures are available. Acreage for the country is up 3 per cent this year, and the total production is expected to be about the same as last year, the report said.

While Michigan acreage for cantaloupe and sweet corn is up, acreage for cabbage and fresh market tomatoes is down, Antle said.

Nationally, acreage for cantaloupe and fresh market tomatoes is down, while cabbage and sweet corn acreage is up slightly.

Michigan has 3,800 contract acres of processing tomatoes reported for 1976. The figure is down 14 per cent from last year. United States acreage is down 13 per cent.

No official figures on bell peppers or kraut cabbage were available.

Unleaded Gas Crunch Spotty

By Associated Press

Motorists in scattered areas of the country are finding spot shortages of unleaded gasoline which is required in 1975 and 1976 model cars and trucks.

An Associated Press check showed most of the problems were along the East Coast and were relatively minor, causing inconvenience rather than any real hardship.

"There are a few spotty shortages, but nothing serious," said Herbert Hugo of Platt's Oilgram, an industry newsletter. "One or two stations in certain areas may be out on a temporary basis, but they (motorists) should be able to get gas from other nearby stations. There are only four weeks until Labor Day. We've made it over the hump."

Service station owners attributed the trouble to an unexpected surge in sales of new cars. The three big U.S. auto makers recently announced record-breaking second quarter profits for 1976, reflecting a recovery from 1975 when earnings fell to a 20-year low.

"They (the automakers) had a surge that was greater than anticipated," said Bill Schemer, president of the Florida Service Station Operators Association. He said a few stations have run out of unleaded fuel temporarily. "It hasn't been of any consequence of Florida, as yet. ... However, it could and probably will get worse."

The unleaded gasoline is required because of anti-pollution devices which are mandatory on newer vehicles. Using leaded gasoline could ruin the catalytic converter and usually is impossible because nozzles on pumps for leaded gasoline will not fit the gas tanks of the 1975 and 1976 cars and trucks.

Hugo said a survey taken by Platt's Oilgram last month showed that unleaded gasoline accounted for about 20 per cent of all sales in the first six months of this year. It accounted for only 4 or 5 per cent of sales in the same period of 1975.

Jake Puteska, president of the New Jersey Gasoline Retailers Association, said the shortage has worsened since July 4. "We find that it's not that there's a shortage of crude, but they just can't refine it fast enough. The new cars are selling faster than expected, people are out riding. ... The refiners are not able to keep up ... so they do run dry over a weekend here and there."

Women, Blacks Gaining In Labor Force

WASHINGTON — Women and nonwhites will make up a fast-growing share of the U.S. labor force over the next 10 years, the Conference Board reports, with nearly 50 million women and nonwhite male employees in 1985, up from 37 million in 1970. Unless practices change, most will work in low-paying jobs — such as clerical and service fields. Currently, some 75 per cent of all working women and 50 per cent of nonwhites work in occupations paying less than the $7,950 a year — about $2,000 below the national average for fulltime workers.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Drift Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower again today, showing little response early in the session to news of a drop in the basic money supply and a rise in unemployment.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down a fraction and declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange held a small lead on three advancing.

After the close of Thursday's session, the Federal Reserve reported that the nation's basic money supply in the latest reporting week fell by an average of $1.2 billion.

A declining money supply over a longer period could lead to a more relaxed credit policy at the Fed, a bullish influence on stock prices.

At the start today, the government said the unemployment rate rose to 7.3 per cent in July from 7.5 per cent in June.

Early prices today included Ford, down 1/4 at 36 1/2; AT&T up 1/4 at 58; and Kerr-McGee, off 1/4 at 75 1/2.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.60 to 966.66.

Declining issues on the Big Board led those advancing by a 7.5 margin.

FIRST IN 18 MONTHS

Chrysler Resumes Paying Dividends

DETROIT (AP) — A financially revitalized Chrysler Corp., which reported a record $155.1 million profit in the second quarter, announced Thursday it would resume paying a dividend for the first time in 18 months.

The action had been expected by Wall Street analysts.

Chrysler Chairman John J. Riccardo said the decision to restore a dividend reflects the directors' "confidence in the competitive strength of Chrysler, the improved national economy and the prospects of continued improvements in Chrysler's operations and financial position."

The nation's No. 3 automaker previously had not declared a dividend since the last quarter of 1974, when it issued a 35-cent payout. The firm omitted a dividend for the following three-month period after reporting a $52 million net loss for 1974. That action represented the first time the firm had failed to pay a payment to shareholders since the Great Depression.

Chrysler, which was hit harder by the industry's two-year recession than any other automaker, reported a net loss of $260 million for 1975, the worst showing in its 51-year history.

Sharing in the industry's dramatic sales upturn begun last fall, the company turned a $72 million net profit in the first quarter of this year, its first earnings in 18 months.

Earlier this week, General Motors Corp. announced it was restoring its 95-cent quarterly dividend, which had been cut to 6 cents 18 months earlier because of the industry's profit slump. Ford Motor Co., which also cut its dividend to 60 cents a year ago, restored its payout to the pre-recessional level of 80 cents in the spring quarter.

The Big Three's dividend action follows reports of record profits — totaling $1.5 billion — for the April-June period. By contrast, the companies had aggregate earnings of $392 million in the same year-earlier quarter, their lowest return in more than two decades.

Chrysler had been forbidden to issue a dividend until now under the terms of a $463 million revolving credit agreement it arranged in late 1974 to help bolster its sharply depleted working capital.

The agreement with a group of 83 major banks stipulated that the firm had to show a net profit of at least $212 million for the first half of this year — to offset its earlier losses — before it could consider resuming a dividend.

The firm met that requirement by earning a record $227 million in the first six months.

Chrysler's total third-quarter payout will come to $9 million, based on 60.2 million outstanding shares of common stock.

Big GM Passing On Huge Profits

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors surprised a lot of people, shareholders and union officials among them, with the timing of its announcement this week that it was restoring its quarterly dividend to 85 cents a share.

Although the world's largest manufacturer had declared a special 50-cent dividend earlier this year it has left the quarterly rate at the recession level of 60 cents. And industry analysts thought it would continue.

Among the reasons given was the company's need to retain capital for expansion and the "necessity" of waiting until wage negotiations were over, lest workers use the dividend increase as an argument for a pay raise.

GM didn't listen to the analysts. After recording an amazing profit of $999 million in the second quarter, and expecting a strong third quarter as well, it decided to turn over close to $344 million to shareholders.

That, roughly, is the sum that 85 cents a share equals when multiplied by 287 million, which is about the number of shares owned by about 1,325,000 GM shareholders.

You may be sure that critics of GM will be quick to argue that this $344 million represents a takeoff by the rich, ignoring the simple division that reduces it to $1.07 per share.

GM is huge, and because of this it produces huge numbers — of cars, sales, dividends, wages, profits, taxes. Its sales figure is to many people almost incomprehensible, some $35.7 billion in 1975, but all GM numbers are that way.

Last year it employed 681,000 men and women, and that was a depressed figure; in 1974 its employment was 734,000. Its payrolls last year totaled more than $10 billion, and yet 1975 was a bigger year for payrolls.

Since it is so big, the numbers sometimes obscure the fact that GM, and other large companies too, are social organizations into which many people contribute and from which many people receive benefits.

More surprising than the fact of a dividend restoration at what some people consider a strategically bad time is the distribution of the enormous revenues that flow into GM.

Last year, according to the GM annual report, 53.4 per cent went to suppliers, 34 per cent to workers, 8.6 per cent to taxes, 2.5 per cent for depreciation, 2 per cent to stockholders, 1.5 per cent for "use in business."

In 1973 the company paid more than $2.1 billion in U.S. foreign and other income taxes. Last year, a relatively depressed one, the total still remained over $1 billion.

All this is not a defense of big business, but merely a reminder that there is more to a company like GM than pollution, defective equipment, recalls, layoffs and strikes, big executive salaries and high vehicle prices.

And there is more to the numbers too. Bigness often is bad, because it sometimes results in monopoly, restraint of trade, resistance to the will of the people, and a concentration of wealth and power in the hands of a few.

But in fairness, and to keep the present discourse over bigness in perspective, one should always seek to divide the dollar figures by the number of people involved.

EASES BUDGET CRUNCH Building Bond Bill Signed By Milliken

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan will be able to sell bonds instead of paying cash to fund its construction projects, under legislation signed Thursday by Gov. William Milliken. The bill was seen as a key to balancing the state's 1976-77 fiscal year budget, since it eases the burden on the General Fund. Milliken has proposed a $370 million bonding program. The new law contains a $400 million ceiling, which could later be raised by the legislature. Milliken has proposed several specific projects for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, including a $140 million medical facility at the University of Michigan, new state office buildings near the Capitol, and new state corrections and mental health facilities. Under the program, only a small portion of state construction would be continued under the traditional "pay as you go" approach.

The state Building Authority, established in 1964 but never utilized, would oversee construction through the sale of bonds. The state would lease the buildings from the authority to pay off the debt. The building program is estimated to produce some 20,000 new jobs in the construction industry, Milliken said, and would help stimulate recovery from last year's recession.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Drift Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower again today, showing little response early in the session to news of a drop in the basic money supply and a rise in unemployment.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down a fraction and declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange held a small lead on those advancing.

After the close of Thursday's session, the Federal Reserve reported that the nation's basic money supply in the latest reporting week fell by an average of $1.2 billion.

A declining money supply over a longer period could lead to a more relaxed credit policy at the Fed, a bullish influence on stock prices.

At the start today, the government said the unemployment rate rose to 7.8 per cent in July from 7.5 per cent in June.

Early prices today included Ford, down 3/4 at 56 1/2; AT&T up 1/2 at 59; and Kerr McGee, off 1 1/2 at 73 1/2.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.60 to 986.68.

Declining issues on the Big Board led those advancing by a 7-5 margin.

NYSE trading volume dropped to 15.33 million shares from the 20.65 million traded the day before.

FIRST IN 18 MONTHS Chrysler Resumes Paying Dividends

DETROIT (AP) — A financially revitalized Chrysler Corp., which reported a record $155.1 million profit in the second quarter, announced Thursday it would resume paying a dividend for the first time in 18 months.

The firm's directors voted in New York to issue a 15-cent third-quarter dividend, payable Sept. 10 to shareholders on record Aug. 16.

The action had been expected by Wall Street analysts.

Chrysler Chairman John J. Riccardi said the decision to restore a dividend reflects the directors' "confidence in the competitive strength of Chrysler, the improved national economy and the prospects of continued improvements in Chrysler's operations and financial position."

The nation's No. 3 automaker previously had not declared a dividend since the last quarter of 1974, when it issued a 35-cent payout. The firm omitted a dividend for the following three-month period after reporting a $52 million net loss for 1974. That action represented the first time the firm had failed to pay a dividend to shareholders since the Great Depression.

Chrysler, which was hit harder by the industry's two-year recession than any other automaker, reported a net loss of $260 million for 1975, the worst showing in its 51-year history.

Sharing in the industry's dramatic sales upturn begun last fall, the company turned a $72 million net profit in the first quarter of this year, its first earnings in 18 months.

Earlier this week, General Motors Corp. announced it was restoring its 95-cent quarterly dividend, which had been cut to 6 cents 18 months earlier because of the industry's profit slump. Ford Motor Co., which also cut its dividend to 60 cents a year ago, restored its payout to the pre-recession level of 80 cents in the spring quarter.

The Big Three's dividend action follows reports of record profits — totaling $1.5 billion — for the April-June period. By contrast, the companies had aggregate earnings of $392 million in the same year-earlier quarter, their lowest return in more than two decades.

Chrysler had been forbidden to issue a dividend until now under the terms of a $463 million revolving credit agreement it arranged in late 1974 to help bolster its sharply depleted working capital.

The agreement with a group of 83 major banks stipulated that the firm had to show a net profit of at least $212 million for the first half of this year — to offset its earlier losses — before it could consider resuming a dividend.

The firm met that requirement by earning a record $227 million in the first six months.

Weesaw To Sell Old Fire Truck

NEW TROY — The Weesaw township board has decided to sell a 1948 fire truck which was recently replaced by a newer model.

The board voted Wednesday to advertise for bids on the truck.

In other areas during the meeting, the board voted to participate in the Berrien county mutual aid pact of fire departments. The pact calls for the sharing of firemen and equipment when needed.

The board tabled action on a resignation submitted by Rolland Hahn, secretary of the township zoning board. Board members said they would contact Hahn and ask him to continue in the post.

The board voted to pay its election workers $2.50 an hour.

Big GM Passing On Huge Profits

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors surprised a lot of people, shareholders and union officials among them, with the timing of its announcement this week that it was restoring its quarterly dividend to 85 cents a share.

Although the world's largest manufacturer had declared a special 50 cent dividend earlier this year it has left the quarterly rate at the recession level of 60 cents. And industry analysts thought it would continue.

Among the reasons given was the company's need to retain capital for expansion and the "necessity" of waiting until wage negotiations were over, lest workers use the dividend increase as an argument for a pay raise.

GM didn't listen to the analysts. After recording an amazing profit of $909 million in the second quarter, and expecting a strong third quarter as well, it decided to turn over close to $244 million to shareholders.

That, roughly, is the sum that 85 cents a share equals when multiplied by 287 million, which is about the number of shares owned by about 1,325,000 GM shareholders.

You may be sure that critics of GM will be quick to argue that this $244 million represents a takeoff by the rich, ignoring the simple division that reduces it to $107.40 per shareholder.

GM is huge, and because of this it produces huge numbers — of cars, sales, dividends, wages, profits, taxes. Its sales figure is to many people almost incomprehensible, some $35.7 billion in 1975, but all GM numbers are that way.

Since it is so big, the numbers sometimes obscure the fact that GM, and other large companies too, are social organizations into which many people contribute and from which many people receive benefits.

More surprising than the fact of a dividend restoration at what some people consider a strategically bad time is the distribution of the enormous revenues that flow into GM.

Last year, according to the GM annual report, 53.4 per cent went to suppliers, 34 per cent to workers, 6.6 per cent to taxes, 2.5 per cent for depreciation, 2 per cent to stockholders, 1.5 per cent for "use in business."

In 1973 the company paid more than $2.1 billion in U.S. foreign and other income taxes. Last year, a relatively depressed one, the total still remained over $1 billion.

All this is not a defense of big business, but merely a reminder that there is more to a company like GM than pollution, defective equipment recalls, layoffs and strikes, big executive salaries and high vehicle prices.

And there is more to the numbers too. Bigness often is bad, because it sometimes results in monopoly, restraint of trade, resistance to the will of the people, and a concentration of wealth and power in the hands of a few.

EASES BUDGET CRUNCH Building Bond Bill Signed By Milliken

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan will be able to sell bonds instead of paying cash to fund its construction projects, under legislation signed Thursday by Gov. William Milliken. The bill was seen as a key to balancing the state's 1976-77 fiscal year budget, since it eases the burden on the General Fund. Milliken has proposed a $370 million bonding program. The new law contains a $400 million ceiling, which could later be raised by the legislature.

Milliken has proposed several specific projects for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, including a $140 million medical facility at the University of Michigan, new state office buildings near the Capitol, and new state corrections and mental health facilities. Under the program, only a small portion of state construction would be continued under the traditional "pay as you go" approach.

The state Building Authority, established in 1964 but never utilized, would oversee construction through the sale of bonds. The state would lease the buildings from the authority to pay off the debt. The building program is estimated to produce some 20,000 new jobs in the construction industry, Milliken said, and would help stimulate recovery from last year's recession.

Midland N-Plant Cost Rises

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — The estimated cost of the Consumers Power Co. nuclear plant in Midland has risen to $1.67 billion, company officials announced Thursday.

The previous cost estimate for the plant, now under construction, was $1.4 billion.

Officials said the increase results primarily from changes in requirements of the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

"Federal regulatory requirements are ever-changing and the company has attempted to anticipate these changes," said Consumers vice president Stephen H. Howell.

Construction at the problem-plagued Midland plant, scheduled for completion in 1982, was halted for a time last month when it was discovered that builders had omitted required steel reinforcing rods in walls — the 22nd time such omission has occurred.

More than $360 million has already been spent on the project, which is designed to produce 1.3 million kilowatts of electricity in the Consumers electric system and up to four million pounds per hour of process steam for Dow Chemical Co.'s Midland manufacturing plant.

Chikaming OKs Sewer Builder

LAKESIDE — The Chikaming township board last night voted to concur with the Berrien county board of public works on the BPW's tentative selection of a contractor to install a sewage collection system in the township and two neighboring municipalities.

The BPW last week tentatively selected Woodruff and Sons, Michigan City, Ind., as contractor. The firm's bid of $8,135,158 was the lowest of seven received, according to Mrs. Lena Abrahamson, township clerk.

The project is part of the Galien River sanitary sewer system which will provide sewage collection and treatment for the townships of Chikaming and New Buffalo and the city of New Buffalo.

In a related action, the board voted to enter into an agreement with the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad for the right to run a sewer line under the tracks at Bell avenue. The agreement calls for payment of $100 now and $25 a year for the life of the agreement.

In other areas, the board heard the building inspector's report noting that permits were issued for estimated $89,196 worth of construction in July. Included were permits for two new houses.

The ambulance committee reported there were 26 ambulance runs made in July.

It was announced last night that board members plan to attend the formal dedication ceremonies for the new tennis courts at River Valley high school Saturday, Aug. 21, at 3 p.m.

The $20,000 courts were partially financed with a $3,000 grant from the township.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Disturbances End In Arrest Of 3

Benton Harbor police said two people were arrested and a juvenile girl taken into custody Thursday after an apparent neighborhood argument erupted twice and shots were reportedly fired.

No one was hurt in the alleged shootings, but police said Benton Harbor man received cuts on his face when he was reportedly struck with a broken jar, was Joseph Alexander, 38, of 1025 Pavone street.

Police said they were called to the 600 block of Ogden avenue at 3:30 p.m. and again at 6:15 p.m. on reports of a disturbance.

During the first incident police arrested Earline Huddleston, 40, of 669 Ogden avenue, on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and she was booked at the Berrien county jail. Police said witnesses reported a woman fired a shotgun and a .410 shotgun was confiscated.

Police said in the 6:15 p.m. incident, a man identified as Lora Junior Huddleston, 23, also of 669 Ogden, was arrested and booked at the county jail on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, a 16-gauge shotgun. Police said a house at 666 Ogden was struck by pellets, but said no one was hurt although several persons were reportedly standing near the house. Occupants of the house were not identified.

Witnesses also told police Alexander was knocked from his bike in the street and involved in a scuffle during which he was cut, allegedly by a young woman using a broken jar.

A 14-year-old Benton Harbor girl was lodged at the Berrien juvenile home pending petitioning to juvenile court on a charge of assault with intent to commit great bodily harm, less than murder.

In another incident in which shots allegedly were fired, Benton Harbor police arrested a man late Thursday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon about 11:45 p.m. No injuries were reported.

Booked at the Berrien county jail was James Lewis, 27, of 1256 Agard avenue, Benton Harbor.

Police said the incident occurred at the rear of the home of Mabel Hill, 384 Summit street. She told police a man came to the door demanding to see another man. When told the other man was not there, she said, the man with the gun fired shots into the air and then pointed the weapon at her. Police said no weapon was found.

St. Joseph police Thursday arrested a man on a charge of careless use of firearms after two shots were allegedly fired inside a home, one which reportedly went out of the house.

Booked at the Berrien county jail was Glenn Marshall Dunham, Sr., 57, of 918 Pearl street, where the incident allegedly occurred about 3:15 p.m. No one was injured, police said and a .22 rifle was confiscated.

Benton township police said eight juvenile boys were released to the custody of their parents Thursday after youngsters were reported stealing golf balls at the Blossom Trails golf driving range, 1565 East Britain avenue.

Police said three boys were apprehended by Aurora Simon, a range employee and five were taken into custody by police. The incident was reported about 4 p.m.

Police said the boys ranged in age from seven to 14 and were from Benton Harbor and Benton township. They were to be petitioned to juvenile court on charges of larceny.

St. Joseph firemen yesterday told city police a fire helmet was stolen from a storage room at the department. The helmet was valued at $32, was yellow and had a protector visor.

BERRIEN COUNTY

Special Education Budget Increased

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Berrien county intermediate school board last night approved the special education and general operating fund budgets for the coming school year, with an increase in the special education budget and a decrease in the operating budget.

Approved for the 1976-77 school year were $659,134 for operations and $5,412,953 for special education. The operating budget tentatively approved by the board in February called for $863,283, and in March the board tentatively approved $5.1 million for special education.

Supt. Raymond Sreboth said the special education figure was up from the tentative budget because of a $209,000 increase in construction costs for the proposed centralized school for mentally impaired youngsters, to be built in Berrien Springs. The special education budget includes construction costs for the school, estimated to cost more than $2 million.

Sreboth explained the rest of the special education increase came primarily from increases in fixed costs, such as insurance, retirement, and unemployment benefits.

He also pointed out the general operating budget decreased because the district's printing costs, including purchase of paper, were less than anticipated.

In another matter relating to the central school, the board heard a progress report on plans from Architect Guido Binda, of Battle Creek, and agreed to meet in special session with him Aug. 11 to discuss more detailed plans before preparing bid documents.

Sreboth said no date has yet been set for bids or when a contract might be awarded.

In other matters, the board: —Set Sept. 2 for a hearing on property transfer requests from Mr. and Mrs. Ed Warren and Mr. and Mrs. Don Blankenship, all of Route 1, Bridgman, from the River Valley to Bridgman district. Sreboth said the Warrens have two children, and the Blankenships have four.

—Hired new personnel, including Nancy Niederlitter as school psychologist; Kathy van Houwelingen as consultant for the emotionally impaired program; Linda Witkowski as an occupational therapist, and Nikola Nelson as a speech and language consultant.

—Appointed Wayne Wiltshire, North elementary school principal in the Watervliet system, to the Career Education Planning council.

—Paid bills of $88,679.

Sick Pay Is Issue In BH Retiree Suit

A retired Benton Harbor fireman has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court against the City of Benton Harbor seeking full compensation for 842 hours of unused sick time.

Leslie Hartman, who retired in April after 24 years with the department, claims he has accumulated 842 hours of unused sick time and under the labor contract with firemen is entitled to between $1,000 and $3,000.

He claims the city has refused to pay for the sick time, with the city contending the labor contract requires the city to only pay for sick time at 75 per cent of his last hourly rate. Hartman's suit alleges he is entitled to 100 per cent of the hourly rate.

The suit claims Hartman and the local firefighters' union filed a grievance with the city, but says the city contends that Hartman, as a retired employee, has no standing to raise or pursue grievances, and has refused to respond to the grievance.

The suit asks for a court order, compelling the city to pay Hartman all money owed to him under the terms of the bargaining agreement and that refusal to pay full benefits is in violation of the bargaining agreement's provisions.

Year-Round Schools Now Cover 2 Million Students

By NIKKI FINKE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Year-round schools may be the substance of nightmares for some students, but a growing number of communities are switching to them with dreams of saving money and improving education. A Cambridge consulting firm, in the first major study of its kind, examined 24 year-round schools operating around the country and concluded they were "a very promising innovation." The report, prepared by ABT Associates Inc. under a $52,000 contract from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said year-round schools:

—Were a rapidly growing, locally initiated movement in education.

—Show potential for providing school districts with economic and space savings as well as educational gains.

—Could have a significant effect on federal policy and on American society in general.

In year-round schools, some portion of the student body attends staggered school terms during each season of the year. Vacations are shorter but more frequent than under the traditional school calendar. The study said many educators see the traditional school calendar as a social anachronism, left over from America's early agrarian days, that persisted into the late 20th century out of custom. Many year-round programs were started to cope with a sudden influx of new students or a shortage of teachers, especially following the two world wars and periods of heavy immigration.

What began as a space and money saver became recognized as a way of introducing educational innovations and curriculum changes to the school district as a whole. "We must recognize that schools should respond to the ever-changing social and educational needs of their students and families," Morris A. Shepard, chief consultant for the report, said in a recent interview. "I think we've got to look at this concept as a wave of the future."

More than two million children currently are enrolled in year-round schools, the study says, and California leads the country with more than 38 programs. In 1974, districts in 19 states were operating about 100 year-round schools and 96 other school districts were seriously considering them. The report said the flexible school calendar has special advantages for children from nomadic families, like military officials or migrant workers, who often move several times in the same school year. Researchers also believe that year-round schools can minimize the usual learning loss which children experience during their three-month summer holiday.

The study noted that the new calendar has not always met with praise and approval. While some parents enjoyed being able to take vacations in the off season, others complained that year-round schools disrupted the family's lifestyle. Other parents criticized the program because their children showed signs of psychological letdown and strain after attending school months longer than students in nearby districts. The study emphasized that changing the calendar alone cannot achieve the kinds of educational gains sought by many administrators. Without sufficient curriculum planning, teacher training and an extensive public relations campaign, year-round schools often do not accomplish their objectives. One sore point, the study noted, was the refusal of federal policymakers to take an interest in the movement to year-round schools.

"Year-round schools have been the product of a grassroots movement in this country," Shepard said. "But Washington officials put on blinders when something's not happening under their noses. They tend to discount its importance." The report urged the federal government to take an active role in the movement while being careful not to wrest the schools from state and local control. "The federal government should allow local school districts a freer hand in spending federal funds on new ideas in education," Shepard said. "Policymakers have to be more willing to take a chance and run with the tide. In this case, the year-round school movement looks like a good investment of the taxpayer's dollar."
